The surprise promised to some 100 persons attending the Engineering Symposium on Beach Erosion Control held in Stuart Thursday and Friday, April 20 and 21, by Fred L. Bell, Martin County Engineer, turned out to be an order from Gov. Claude Kirk to develop guidelines in final form, to help the Legislature and the governor chart a course designed to solve Florida's beach erosion problem.

Bell's surprise came at the close of Thursday's session at which revetment walls built by a Stuart firm (Dickerson, Inc.) were praised by the mayor of Delray Beach as the answer to critical erosion problems, but also the answer to "getting votes by politicians."

Mayor Al Avery said the half-million dollar revetment wall built with bond issue funds and $50,000 state aid, was esthetically beautiful, and completely practicable.

"It was rough when they were building it," he said, "Sidewalk superintendents gave us fits; they said it wouldn't work, but we had to try it because we were fighting to save a mile of public beach and SR-A1A at the same time.

"The results, the building up of the beach, the beauty of it, and now the enthusiastic response from our citizens, have convinced me the revetment not only saved the beach and road, it is a tremendous vote-getter. Our people love it; I love it because it means we have a beach again," said Mayor Avery enthusiastically.

Mayor Avery's talk was not on the agenda. He was asked to say a few words by James L. Titzel, Dade County coastal engineer, who criticized vertical sea walls as "detrimental, erosion-creating," in a talk on structure design standards.

William R. Vines, urban planning consultant, urged multiple users of beaches and wiser advance planning to permit simultaneous uses.

Dr. James Purpura, director of the Coastal Engineering Laboratory at the University of Florida, cited new research tools coming into use by oceanographers and erosion engineers, as indicative of new efforts to solve old problems.

"We have the new techniques, but we still don't understand exactly what is going on. It's like the common cold--we can define it but we can't cure it," Purpura said.

He listed the Sauerman scraper, used for three sessions at Jupiter Island; the hopper dredge, as tools to be used in bringing suitable materials, economically, onto the eroding beaches.

He defined new radioactive sands used as tracers to show patterns, predicted electronic computers would soon be put to general uses in helping to use the mass of data being gathered through the new techniques, called for a state-wide program using these new ideas.

Five separate committees were named by Bell, who said that, stemmed from an executive session of experts in the solution of the problem.

Committees named by Bell to come up with suggestions assisting the governor were:

Legislative proposals, Phil Bennett, attorney for the Board of Conservation, Tallahassee; Dean Tooker, county attorney, Stuart; and Turner Wallace, chairman of the Legislative committee of the Florida Beaches and Shores Preservation Association.

Finance, and Local programs, Ala. S. Gordon, county commissioner, Dade County; Robert Weatherly, Pinellas County commissioner and Mayor Al Avery, Delray Beach.

Information and Education, Ney Landrum, Tallahassee, director of the State Outdoor Recreation Planning Council; Ed Gluckler, Stuart newspaperman, and Alex Chamberlain, Titusville, on the Regional Planning Council for East Central Florida.

Resolutions, William R. Vines, Miami, urban planning consultant; Kenneth Thompson, city manager of Sarasota and James L. Titzel, Miami, coastal engineer.

Action, Nathaniel Reed, Jupiter Island, the governor's administrative assistant on conservation matters; Bell, who arranged for the entire symposium, and James DeLozier, Ft. Myers, county engineer in Lee County and president of the Florida Beaches and Shores Preservation Association.

Kirk And Hodges Ask For Action

Gov. Claude Kirk, in a telephone message Thursday, urged erosion experts gathered at the Beach Erosion Control symposium in Stuart, to get started on ideas and programs to restore and maintain Florida's beaches.

Randolph Hodges, director of the Department of Conservation, had been introduced and was speaking to the group when the Governor's call came.

Nathaniel Reed of Jupiter Island, the governor's administrative assistant on conservation, reintroduced Hodges who went on to say he had hopes of continued support from the Legislature in erosion control funds appropriations.

Hodges said, "The last session gave us $500,000 for erosion control and studies. We have hopes for more this year, but the way the present Legislature is operating, we will be fortunate to get that much again this year."

Gov. Kirk spoke of the tremendous federal appropriations made to seek solutions to worldwide problems, suggested that sumptuous lesser expenditures to solve the problem of erosion at home would get far better results.

"I understood you have a real reason to talk about this, but I promise you that if you will come up with answers to the problems I am going to get something done with federal and state monies," said the governor in his telephone message.

The two-day symposium was opened by Fred L. Bell, Martin County engineer, with welcoming speeches made by Stuart City manager Joe N. Crowder and County commission chairman Jack T. Saunderson.

OF DRINKERS- Dr. James Purpura, head of Coastal Engineering Laboratory, University of Florida, Gainesville currently engaged in St. Lucie Inlet model study, and Fred L. Bell, Martin County engineer and chairman of the Engineering Symposium on Beach Erosion Control held in Stuart last week, break for a refreshing drink of Florida orange juice.

"ATTACK"--Alex Gordon, Dade County commissioner, was guest speaker at Friday night's banquet for the Beach Erosion Symposium. His speech, "Attack, Attack, Attack," was on the need of action to control erosion along Florida's shores.

Soft Drink Tax Proposed

A one-cent tax on standard-size soft drinks was suggested by the Action committee of the Engineering Symposium on Beach Erosion Control to finance a beach-saving program. The plan would cost up to $20 million in the next five years.

As outlined by Alex Gordon, Dade County commissioner, the committee on finance, at its closing session Friday, suggested:

That the state assume 100 per cent responsibility for funding the program, with Federal participation; that the excess over needed funds raised by the soft drink tax be used for funding other conservation projects;

That a crash action five-year beach restoration and preservation program be arranged through the State Board of Conservation, with cooperation of U.S. Corps of Engineers.

The finance committee also asked that all interests in the state, including the Legislature, memorialize Congress in support of the Tydings Bill to allow tax credits for shore preservation and protection expenditures, and that proceeds of sales of state submerged lands be earmarked for shore improvement in the county where the land was sold.

The Action legislative committee endorsed the report of the finance committee and added:

Support for an immediate money bill of $1.5 million for beach work, and the retainer of A. J. Ryan of Ft. Lauderdale to represent the Beach and Shore Preservation Association in support of immediate legislation.

The committee on information and education asked that the governor direct the Florida Development Commission to "use its unusual talents to place the problem before the people of the state."

pers movements or it ends up as wasted energy. The hips operate the bottom part and the shoulders function as the upper part in that order.

In the starting position the left shoulder is held higher than the right and it's only natural as the left hand is higher on the club than the right. This relationship is maintained throughout the backswing and most of the downswing. In the hitting position the left shoulder raises and the right goes down as does the rest of the right side to allow you to get down to the ball. From the hit to the finish the left shoulder is still the leader and maintains its height over the right.

This shoulder relationship is a barometer as to the balance of the body and allows you to keep the club in a good plane back and down and thereby get a good clean hit at the ball. Remember the left always leads and the right follows if you want a consistent, accurate, powerful hit.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

Martin County...A Sportsman's Paradise...The home of some of the finest fishing and all-around water sports in the world. A mecca for members of the golfing world, with some of the country's top courses. Surfing, skin-diving, water-skiing, hunting...almost any desire in the world of sports, Martin County can probably fill anyone's needs.

Be it salt or fresh water fishing, the county offers an abundance of each. The offshore fishing is only slightly short of fantastic. Sailfish in great numbers, king and Spanish mackerel, cobia, blues and many others pit aquatic antics against the skills of the angler. An ample charter boat fleet draws anglers from all fifty states in quest of an offshore trophy.

Inshore salt water fishing is as good as offshore. Large snook, trout, tarpon and a wide variety of bottom fish can be taken by everyone novice, once they have become acquainted with the fishing methods.

Fresh water rivers and ponds stretch from the coastal region to Lake Okeechobee. Large mouth bass in the six to eight pound class are common, and plenty of shellcrackers, bluegill, catfish and specks fill the anglers' stringer.

Golfers visiting here will thrill to the challenge of three great courses in the area. The Perry Como Amateur Invitational is an annual event during November, and many other state and area-wide tournaments are held here.

The many miles of untouched beaches offer the swimmer, surfer and skin-diver a Utopia. Swimming and surfing conditions are usually ideal, and a long, sloping beach offers a wide margin of safety to young and old alike. Florida lobster and a wide variety of spear fishing plus the possibility of an underwater treasure-find provides interest and activity for the skindiver on the nearby reefs.

Hunting during the winter season offers the followers of this sport dove, quail, duck, squirrel and deer heading the list. Plenty of wide-open country is still available to the hunter hardy enough to tromp the Florida woods.

The relaxed life of the sportsman is a prevailing atmosphere in Martin County. It's a good place to live, work, or retire, and to take advantage of nature's back and call.

Beach Is For Fun

'Growing Pains'

When the ice would become 18 to 24 inches thick, men would come for ice harvesting. They would cut ice to fill the ice houses for summer use. Rockdale had an ice house for the creamery and a walk-in ice house for the butcher shop. SI the creamerie had ice houses and the farmers used to haul the ice to fill them. Sawdust was used to put between the layers of ice to keep it from melting. This sawdust always had to be washed off before using the ice.

Bob hitching was another sport we kids enjoyed. We would stand on the runners of the farmers' bobsleighs and ride out into the country until we met another sleigh and ride back. Sometimes the other sleigh didn't come and we would have to walk back. Sometimes we would hitch our sleds to the sleighs and have 19 pull them back home.

We all had skiis. They were made from hardwood by a local carpenter "Henry's Field" joined my father's hill. There was a stile over the fence between the two properties, Henry's hill was ideal for skiing and sliding. It was white with snow in the winter--and white with daisies in the summer. Our boys built a small tower and a ski jump on Henry's hill so they could practice. We children learned to go down the tower and jump like any of them.

Tellefsons' had a toboggan. We would go down the hill and bounce off the bank into the ice and sail across the pond. One time I was end man and as we bounced I fell backwards hitting my head on the ice. I say stars - big ones with many little ones coming from them. I had a bump on my head for a long time. Isabel Tellefson broke her leg on one of these slides.

One day we were all going down the hill "belly-flop" on our sleds. When we came to a wire fence we had to duck in go under it. My brother, Roland, did not duck in time and the wire caught him on the chin, tearing his lip and knocking out a tooth. In seconds every child on the hill disappeared to tell my mother, leaving me alone with poor bleeding, crying, Roland. Of course Uncle Doctor was called and he came down by horse and cutter and sewed up the cut. The kitchen table was the operating table. All of us were waiting outside to hear that Roland was all right.

Christmas was always an exciting time. We always hung our stockings up on Christmas Eve and long before daylingt we were down to see what Santa left for us. Santa always trimmed the tree after we had gone to bed. The Tellefson children and we would try to see who would call first to see what all got as gifts. The first call was often before daybreak.

The churches had Christmas programs and we often took part in each if they were on different nights. The trees were trimmed with strings of popcorn and cranberries, real candles were used for lights.

All our relatives came from Cambridge for Christmas and we spent Thanksgiving and New Years with them. When the weather was right, we would skii, slide or skate. Mother always had a turkey dinner and many Norwegian delicacies.

During the week between Christmas and New Years, we kept the Norwegian custom of Yule-boking (Christmas fooling.) We would dress up and wear masks made out of cloth and go calling; young and old would go. The people would try to guess who we were and we usually ended up with coffee and treats. Our attic was a favorite place to find "dress up" clothes.

Henry Reels was the colored barber. He was a very polite man and held in high esteem by all. He was married to a white woman who he called Minnie. Mr. Reels had a race horse that he kept in a barn behind his house. He also kept a big vicious dog in the barn. None of us ever went near the barn because of this dog. Sometime each day Mr. Reels would hitch the horse onto a racing cart, put on his racing cap and exercise the horse up and down the road. Sometimes he entered races. We children were all fond of Mr. and Mrs. Reels; we would stop in to chat with Mrs. Reels after school and were always treated to cookies. (This series will be concluded next week.)

ISH FIRE THREATENS OCEAN BREEZE--Anxious eyes watched the oud of smoke to the west of us April 22 and 23, as the worst grass and sh fire for years raged in the several square miles of wild land between o and Jensen Heights. Luckily for Ocean Breeze, the wind continued to ow from the east and the fire was contained in the more westerly area. re hazard is very high as we have had no rain for a long time and grass is mostly brown. The picture was taken from the high bank overlooking South Jensen Heights. Also watching the fire are Michelle and Nicolette Wallbor whose home is in the foreground.

April 24, 8 P.M. A temporary change of wind activated the fire again before noon and it headed for Ocean Breeze, then it shifted again and the fire fighters at this time have it corralled after many long hours of fire fighting.

LANTERN TREE--Larry (Steve) Stevens has a lot of unfamiliar plants around his place. We discovered this fine specimen of lantern tree out back of his residence. Elois oyt admires the blossoms.

Airstream Rallies Planned

Don Lee was inside the Airstream Recreation Mobile Unit, checking the sound system equipment today when I called. Don has wintered in Ocean Breeze for several winters but this is the first time I have noticed this unit here. Don is the chief sound technician for the Wally Byam Caravan Club and Airstream Corporation. Don says there will be five major rallies this year. The first was in Florisd in February; the next will be in Pennsylvania towards the end of May. The big international rally will be held this year in California, around July 4, for two weeks. Over three thousand Airstream trailers and 10 to 12 thousand people are expected to be there. Preparing for this big event is no small job. Four big tents have to be erected the largest of these tents, Don said, is a rough guess, would be about 250 feet x 350 feet. An outdoor grand-stand also has to be built to seat about ten thousand people. In addition to the sould truck there will be four 60 ft. mobile homes for administration purposes. A very important item in such a huge assembly of this sort is the sould system. Don Lee has been in charge of the sound equipment since the club started some 11 years ago and he is the one who is responsible today. He has six helpers to sit up for such a big rally as this. I have an idea of the cost of this type of equipment. As he talked I was sizing up the various power units, microphones and speakers and I would estimate that a good many thousands of dollars involved just to provide sound.

Another rally will be held the last week in August near Portland, Oregon and the last one in California again in late October. Joe and Monica Hogel are valuable assistants of Don's. When they leave here the beginning of May, Joe will drive the recreation sound truck and his wife Monica will tow their Airstream. Each vehicle has a two way radio, so in case of an emergency, they are able to contact each other.

A NATURAL CAMEO- Harvey Hill, one of our earliest residents of Ocean Breeze Park, and now our only rock hound and amateur lapidarist, when in the Upperwash Park, Lake Huron, Ontario, discovered this natural cameo. It was part of a large boulder of sedimentary rock. Harvey chipped the piece off it and when he was home made this specimen for a bolo tie. The picture of his "Lady of the Lake" is about four times natural size.

From Fla. Sun To N.H. Snow

We have a letter from Dorothy McKenzie in which she writes:

Keene, N.H. April 17th 67,

Mr. Mirror arrives faithfully each Satur lay and in a few hours I feel close again to my beloved Ocean Breeze home, I just hate to think I must wait 11 2 months to be home again.

The weather has been just awful ever since we got home, I was at our daughter's for two weeks and while there 2 snow storms with eight inches of snow came to rail and snow was on the ground for a whole week. The temperature has been down to 19 degrees since I got home and it's hardly ever above 42, the my book, that is cold. The forcast is for the same all this week.

My mother (Mrs. Susan Huntington) has a beautiful new mobile home. She is excited and should be moved in sometime in May.

I met some folks and happy but I am sure he will be thrill and love of fishing me to the lingo.

Best wishes from the cold North to our friends in sunny Florida.

Lee.

FIREMEN FIGHT--A fire that took three days to fight and burned over 1900 acres of Jensen Sevenmile was held in check time and time again by firemen from all over Martin County as tinder-dry brush sparked up again and again. The fire was fought day and night.

BIG FIRE--Even the sun was dimmed by the smoke of the brush and woods fire which burned over 1800 acres between Rio and Jensen Beach Cut-off Road on the weekend. Firemen continued to fight sporadic rekindlings of the big blaze as late as Monday afternoon, after two earlier days and nights of fire fighting. Photo was taken facing the sun on the Cut-off Road. Vehicles are fire trucks.

President Glad To Be Here

The new president of Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, Frank Forsberg, [illegible] told The Mirror why he came to Jensen Beach. Forsberg, Jensen Beach realtor, was re-elected [illegible] here in 1966.

"This community embodies all the qualities we visualized when planning for the perfect spot for our retirement: location, climate and [illegible] friendly and courteous people," he said. My wife, Hazel, and I have been vacationing in Florida since the winter of 1947, searching the state for the ideal spot."

"In 1948 we found Jensen Beach which, at that time as it does today, seemed to be the answer to our dreams. I was not in a position to retire [illegible] and found it satisfying [illegible] my building activity. We chose this community because of its relationship to the ocean, the rivers and the splendid, high ground in Skyline Heights, in the early stages of its development, we could see a great potential.

"In the years between 1948 and 1958 we saw our three daughters married and their families established. Thus, in the summer of 1959 we sold our home and other holdings in New York State and moved to Florida.

"Five days of rain gave us the opportunity to observe [illegible] conditions. After touring the area, we decided that Skyline Heights, because of its high, well-drained terrain, was the perfect spot. We purchased several lots and began construction of a model home.

"It was our intention to build only four or five homes a year. So enthusiastic was the reception to our homes that in seven years we have completed 70 houses, plus many smaller service units.

"During these years we have developed many friends among Jensen Beach residents and out-of-state people as well--people with kindred tastes who sought the same Utopian conditions that we visualized in our dreams. The decision we made in 1958 has never been regretted."

Fishing Excellent

Heading the list of fish in the rivers are trout, snook, jacks, redfish, ladyfish and bottom fish--plenty of all.

Blues all over the place, inside the inlet, the surf, and waters beyond.

Excellent fishing for Spanish mackerel between the surf and a mile out, as schools continue to move along the coast. Seas have been favorable for small craft, making fishing a lot of fun.

False albacore, at least 20 pounds, inside inlet so buoy for those who like rugged action.

Dolphin and sails continue excellent offshore; barracuda plentiful.

Snook fishing in both forks best of the year right now.

POSTPONED action asked by Keaton who aimed to install group telephone alerting system, possibly including schools and manufacturing plants, to permit simultaneous alert warnings in times of pending disasters. Postponement was to permit study, by commissioner J. H. Bruner, who has been studying an overall county telephone plan. Cost of Keaton plan would run between $47 to $147 a month.

NAMED Al Jones, Latonia Ard and Earl Newhouse to board of custodians of Charlie Leighton Park, Palm City.

GAVE request of Underwood its approval to build wall across Michigan Ave. to S. Kanner St., Palm City, providing the street and relative countryseed, and providing permission is obtained from U.S. Corps of Engineers of Trustees of International Improvement Fund if such approval is necessary.

HEARD county attorney Dean Dewey give state auditor's public hearing plans and set necessary, when county funds are moved from savings accounts to checking accounts, but are needed when certificates of deposit or safety deposit box contracts are up for renewal.

VOTED to reconsider item 3 until Board and appropriate members of state senate committee on finance, in addition to House Bill 102 and Senate Bill 55, both of which would give the Sheriffs an increase in revenue from narcotics taxing stacks, the loss estimated by J. W. Hussey, commissioner, who asked the action, to be $5,000 to each county.

City Actions

Stuart City manager Jon N. Crosby told the city commission Monday night that report bids for the city's sewer and water main project would be advertised in about two weeks. Bids for bond interest will follow, he said.

The revenue certificate issue was validated recently in circuit court and will be advertised as soon as construction bids are settled.

In other business, the commissioners:

AWARDED contract for a half-ton pickup truck to John Jocelin Chevrolet, low of three bidders at $1,518.97.

TOLD Mrs. Francis Frank, Harold Whalen and Robert Cottone that the city will endorse no clearing here as soon as the state legislature comes up with an enforceable set clearing law. Then combined about 40 cleared lots in Pine Manor creating a fire and health hazard.

PLUMBASED for $913.99, negotiated price, a road paint striper, from Florida Equipment Co., Miami.

HEARD a little Dixie resident complain that police permitted children there to ride bikes at night without lights, and dared motorists to hit them. Action was promised to correct this.

Presiding at the tea table were president Mrs. Marie Miller and first vice-president Mrs. Hazel Forsberg. Corsages and engraved past-president's pins were presented to the honored guests.

REPOSE--Martin County is the place for leisure, easy living quiet relaxation, away from the hustle and bustle of city life. Here a man sits and meditates while soaking the warm sun and enjoying the balmy breezes coming off the sparkling clear water of the ocean. Here on the beaches we find many types: bathers, swimmers, surfers, and strollers, all enjoying the glory of the area.

Wins Classrooms Contract

A contract to build a four-classroom addition to Martin County High School was awarded G-A Construction Co. on its low bid of $46,900. The 135 days for completion of the project should provide the four rooms for use shortly after the fall term of school starts, it was pointed out at Tuesday's meeting of the school board.

The bid was accepted on recommendation of Supt of Schools Thomas L. Crook, school architect Donald Armstrong and school attorney James Littman.

At the same meeting, board member Homer Wall asked for plans for a two room or more, addition to Warfield School be considered and he asked that attempts be made to build four rooms.

Warfield capacity is 515 and there are 485 pupils in the school, he pointed out. There are 69 children enrolled in the Warfield Annex, where there is one teacher, an aide, two toilets, all in a room 22 x 26 feet.

Wall recommended that the board start two new rooms at Warfield immediately to house the annex pupils and to phase out of use the annex when the rooms are completed.

Discussion developed the fact that the State Board of Education survey team had approved only two rooms. According to F. M. Brailsight, finance officer, no more is available to build more than two classrooms at Warfield before July 1.

A motion made by Mrs. Barbara Britton directed the superintendent to ask approval from the SBE for the addition of four rooms as an amendment to the priority list.

In other business, the board:

HEARD Mrs. Britton relay a request by Jensen Beach PTA that it be permitted to sit in on discussions concerning the proposed new Jensen Beach area school.

ADOPTED post-facto, two resolutions asking the county's legislative delegation (last Saturday) to up the ceiling of the salary of the superintendent of schools and to set a ceiling on purchases to be made without bids from $300 to $500.

PAID Littman $300, as requested, in addition to his retainer fee, for appearing for the board in the teacher hearings asked by Mrs. Emily Carras.

Palm City Zoning Code Is Adopted

The county commissioners Tuesday adopted a months-attended version of the new Palm City urban area zoning code, however, action on two other associated issues was delayed.

One was the adoption of the re-written county zoning code as updated and streamlined, the other was the establishment of a new highway line on Hutchinson Island, both of which were advertised for hearings on Tuesday.

As changed, the Palm City zone changed from R-2 to R-2-B, the area from Cornell to McCord, and Palmetto to 12th St., to effect increasing the square footage of homes from 600 to 800 feet.

Established as extended business zone on M-9 and between 12th St. and Palmetto, but deleted a change recommended by the zoning board that SR-714 from M-9 east to the turnpike be upgraded from commercial to residential.

The proposed updated zoning code was tabled until the board can undertake further study of the code at a work session set for May 2 at 7:30 p.m.

A request that zoning area maps be made available before the code is adopted was taken under advisement and will be discussed at the work session.

The commission also reformed to agricultural zones the west side of the Florida East Coast Railroad right of way in the county line.

The published hearing, over which only the person appeared, Harper Barrack, was held over for failure of either proponents or opponents to appear.

Captured Stealing Wire

Three Brevard county men were charged with grand larceny when they attempted to make good a pickup of 2,400 pounds of copper wire.

The loot was stolen from the Indian River Road supply yard of Florida Power & Light Co., Stuart.

Albert J. Cuff, 32, Cocoa, Charlie W. Scott, 27, Merritt Island, and Bonnie Gilmore, 27, Cocoa, were dabbed by deputy sheriffs Tuesday night and State Green Bond was set at $5,000 each by Justice of the Peace Harvey Pitts.

The theft had been reported Monday by Harold Whelan, manager of the FP&L facility. Two 1,200 pound spools of wire, plus four 100 pound reels worth a total of about $700 were missing.

The loot had been hidden in the brush.

Arrested In Bolita

Two bolita arrests were made last weekend by deputy sheriff Henri Herbert, according to Sheriff Roy C. Baker.

Gene Delancey, 38, Mars Hill, was charged with possession of bolita. He posted $500 bond.

Andrew W. Glenn, 45, Ft. Pierce, was charged with possession of numbers tickets Friday night. He posted $50 bond.

Confiscated from Delancey was $108.

4-H Holds Workshop

The Martin County 4-H Council held a Citizens' Workshop Monday, a teacher-work day in the schools, where the county officials explained the workings of their jobs.

Council president Gail Wood conducted the morning sessions at which Miss Betty Mifflin, assistant state 4-H Club agent, spoke.

The afternoon session was conducted by county commission chairman Jack Saunderson in the county commissioners' meeting room.

Appearing on this program were Mrs. Martha Norton, county home demonstration agent and 4-H leader; Sheriff Roy C. Baker, commissioner J. W. Hussey, tax collector Alvin Andrews, tax assessor A. Clyde Courson, and county clerk Dorothy Pierce.

BACKFIRE--Jensen volunteer fireman Bill Yurillo directed volunteers with shovels and brooms into the brush last Friday as a brush fire threatened to explode across U.S. #1, north of Stuart. Firemen backfired the area and held the fire to the east side of the main artery, which was closed to traffic for several hours due to heavy smoke and fire-fighting equipment traffic. Autos were routed through Jensen Beach during the fire.

Emergency Declared

Arson In Rash Of Blazes

Gov. Claude Kirk has proclaimed a fire emergency in Martin County, according to word received from Tallahassee. The governor called upon all law enforcement agencies, including conservation officers, to help enforce the ban on all burning operations. The emergency outlaws setting fire to any forest, trash, woods, marsh or even having a bonfire or campfire.

The county is so dry that a cigarette tossed out of a car on U.S. 1 south of SR-707-A set fire in the median strip on the highway.

County officials pointed out that most of the estimated 5,000 acres of land burned over in the past two weeks were away from habitation.

Grass and brush, tinder-dry, constitute the main menace, it was pointed out.

Fire chiefs in Martin County, almost without exception, have said blazes which have kept firemen busy have been set.

"We traced the 1,800 acre fire of the weekend of April 22-23 to three boys playing with fireworks in the tinder-dry brush," said fire chief Randolph Spinney of Jensen Beach. He said his department had 976 hours of fire fighting in April, more hours than in the entire year of 1966.

"I feel Friday's fire which destroyed another 800 acres and threatened homes and businesses in the area bordered by Baker Road and U.S. 1 was set," fire chief Al Walker, of the Rio department, said earlier.

Fire chief Russell Yates of Palm City said there was no question many blazes in that area Friday night and Saturday morning were set. He said about 1,000 acres were burned over. Deputy Sheriff Melvin Waldron was detailed to investigate, according to Sheriff Roy C. Baker.

Fire chief Milton (Hunt) Griffing agreed that fires were being set in most cases. The Stuart department has been aiding outside departments during the emergency, particularly in the Jensen-Rio area where buildings were threatened.

Jack Saunderson, assistant fire chief of the Port Salerno department, concurred and pointed to suspicious blazes in his area.

Martin County became the second in two years in the state to be proclaimed an emergency area by governor's proclamation. In May, 1965, and again last week, Polk County was declared in a state of emergency because of the fire hazard.

A. C. Gilbert, chief investigator of the Florida Board of Forestry, and J. P. Pleti, investigator in the ten Southern Florida counties, outlined responsibilities of the enforcement agencies under the emergency, at a meeting of representatives of all policing bodies in the county, including the sheriff's department, the Florida Highway Patrol and the various municipalities.

State forest fire laws were outlined, including one which provides for a fine of up to $1,000 and three years imprisonment for setting fires of even causing one by other means.

County fire chiefs called for alertness by the public to suspicious actions by anyone at or near scenes of fires.

The county-wide meeting was held at the courthouse.

No Draw Span

High Level Bridge Is Planned At Palm City

Plans for a high-level, no-draw bridge over the St. Lucie River South Fork to replace the present low-level Palm City Bridge were revealed Saturday for the first time publicly in a request for approval submitted by the State Road Department to the U.S. Corps of Army Engineers at Jacksonville.

The application for approval, submitted to the corps, left little doubt the high level span had been recommended.

An earlier report said the cost would be $2.5 more but that this would be compensated in less than four years by bridgetenders' salaries.

Cost of the bridge has been estimated at about $1,250,000.

July 4 Festival

An Independence Day celebration for Martin County was assured this week as the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce announced it would coordinate its July 4 celebration with the Jensen Volunteer Firemen's Causeway dinner and fireworks.

"We'll have a full day of activity," said Chamber president Frank Forsberg.

Committees for the day were set up at the Chamber meeting of the board of directors Monday night. Events for the day include amateur boat racing, inner-tube races, watermelon-eating contest, jousting from innertubes, pram races, and horseshoe pitching throughout the day.

Chairmen for the various committees include: Dick Campbell and Herman Reitz, amateur boat racing; jousting and innertube races, not assigned; pram races, not assigned; watermelon contest, Don Wilkie; horseshoe pitching, Don Wilkie, food races and games, Jensen Beach Lions Club; soft drink sales, Harry Leeth.

The amateur boat races, a 45-minute marathon, will begin at 2 p.m.

Fireworks will begin at dark, with intermittent salutes throughout the day. Bill "Boom-Boom" Yurillo, who has become noted for his unique and exciting fireworks displays, will again feature what was termed to be an "outstanding show, better than last year". Eleven thousand persons were estimated to have witnessed the display in 1966.

Price Low

Watering Costs Hurting Citrus

Martin County grove owners' wallets are "hurting" more than the groves during the extended drought, said county agent Levi M. Johnson. "The price of citrus is so low, the cost of watering items high," he said Tuesday. He said he counted 15 big spray rigs at work watering one grove alone.

"Some trees, away from ditches, are suffering, but I believe not badly, with the big plantings doing just fine," he said.

Because of the proximity of St. Lucie Canal or C-23 and intermediate ditches, he listed Minute Maid, Caulkins, Bessemer, Hord and other big groves as "not suffering."

Average rainfall for April in Martin County is about 4.5 inches. Last month's rainfall totaled five-one-hundredths of an inch, a record in the annals of the reporting service of WSTU.

PROTECTION--A Jensen Beach tank truck stood by to protect homes (near U.S. #1) as flames and smoke poured across U.S. #1 near Stuart. The fire jumped the highway in several places, but each fire was extinguished by alert firemen. No homes were damaged in two weeks of fire-fighting by firemen and volunteers with brooms, shovels and any tool that could be used to beat back the flames. Over 5,000 acres of timber and brush were burned, as the county was placed on the hazard list by Governor Claude Kirk.

Air Cushion Craft Scared The Daylights Out Of Fishermen

One of Bell's Air Cushion Vehicles from Homer Key, near Miami, landed on the causeway on A-1-A at the Indian River, where it stopped to refuel en route from Miami to Cape Kennedy early this week. It will undergo tests for the military.

Chief test pilot for Bell Aerosystems Co., of Buffalo, N.Y., Daniel G. (Sam) Helms, was amused to see the looks on the faces of some of the fishermen, he said, "It scared the daylights out of some of them."

The $40,000 craft beached on the south side of the causeway in a cloud of mist generated by the craft's engine.

The 40-foot long craft appeared to be almost as wide. It is equipped with a 6 of T-58 engine, similar to those Bell uses in some of its helicopters.

The craft was floated by two trucks which had previously lit up the east coast. Helms said the single engine worked as a pump to push air through the bottom of the rubber skirt which keeps the vessel off the surface of the water and pushes it ahead at the same time.

The craft, Bell's SK-5, has three counterparts in Viet Nam, Helms said, where under U.S. navy control, it carries 50 cal. machine guns and other weapons.

When last seen, the craft was headed north in the Indian River.

SAUCER- Craft reported as a "flying saucer on the causeway" was really a Bell air cushion vehicle, sometimes called a "hovercraft", which stopped to refuel on Indian River Causeway south of Jensen Beach. It is shown being guided into the water to continue trip from Miami to Cape Kennedy. Clouds of sand, then water, were created by craft as it moved off shore.

Blues Are Best Bet

Bluefish continues to be the hottest of the small fishing for the surf anglers, boat trollers, bottom fishermen and even bridge anglers in the Indian River.

Spanish mackerel good, but too far off the beach for the surfers; bottom fishing for them in the inlet is good.

Spotted sea trout and big snook active in the Indian River, up the St. Lucie and in North and South Forks above and below the Stuart bridges.

Tons of jacks all sizes in all areas, including the rivers.

Offshore, false albacore schools moving closer to the beach, preparatory to spending the summer no doubt. Lot of fun on light tackle.

Sailfish very good, plenty of dolphin, kingfish, some stray kings offshore, and some school sizes inside the three-mile reefs.

$16 Million Deficit Must Be Offset

Postal Rates Increased

An increase in international surface and airmail rates went into effect Monday, May 1, Charlotte Ryanski, clerk-in-charge of the Jensen Beach Post Office announced.

The new international rates will not apply to mailings for members of the Armed Forces overseas. Domestic postage rates are applicable to mail addressed through APO's and FPO's.

The rate increases for both surface and airmail—averaging 19%—were first proposed on January 14 and publicly confirmed on March 1. The Department explained at that time they were needed to help offset a deficit of about $16 million in international mail operations.

Specific information on the new international rates can be obtained from the service window at the post office, Mrs. Ryanski said.

This was the first general increase in international rates since July, 1961.

The increases are:

1. Airmail letters to Central America and Caribbean area from 15¢ a half ounce to 15¢ a half ounce.

2. Airmail to the rest of the Western Hemisphere remains 15¢ a half ounce, except for Canada and Mexico which remain 8¢ an ounce.

Airmail to Europe and Mediterranean Africa from 15¢ a half ounce to 20¢ a half ounce.

4. Airmail letter rates to the rest of the world remain unchanged at 25¢ a half ounce.

5. Aerogrammes and airmail post cards to foreign countries, except Canada and Mexico, from 11¢ to 13¢.

6. Items sent by air, other than letters and parcels, such as small packages, books, periodicals and other printed matter increased 10¢ per piece to all countries except Canada.

7. Surface letter mail to all nations (excluding Canada and Mexico) increased from 11¢ to 13¢. Post Cards raised from 7¢ to 8¢.

8. Most printed matter, including publications, increased one cent a piece. For second class publications to Canada only, the one cent increase will be deferred for six months to become effective November 1, 1967. Also, the present bundling rate which permits postage to be computed on the bulk weight of packages of publications addressed to Canadian post offices will remain in effect until November 1, 1968, at which time it will be discontinued.

9. Surface parcel post rates to all nations increased 20¢ a parcel, an average of 7%.

"Postage rates for surface first class mail, airmail letters, and surface third class printed matter to Canada and Mexico correspond to U.S. domestic rates, which are set by the Congress, and are not being changed at this time," Mrs. Ryanski said.

Merchants Sponsor 'My Mom' Contest

A "My Mom" poetry writing contest open to children 6 to 12 years of age is being sponsored by Stuart Retail Merchants Association. The entry may be a jingle, verse or poem. Entries must be mailed prior to May 12 to Stuart Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1107, Stuart.

Prizes will be awarded.

James H. Reardon was presented with a citation for beautification of his new building, at the merchants' luncheon Thursday. Members viewed the new portable welcome sign used to publicize the area at local events.

Rio Civic Club Plans Parties

Dessert card parties are being planned for May 16, said 30 at 1 o'clock, by Rio Civic Club.

Pictures of Alaska will be shown by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Weiss at the May 11 meeting of the club. A covered dish supper will be held at 6 p.m. prior to the meeting.

Local Home Burglarized

The home of William Olney, 307 S. Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach, was ransacked sometime between Sunday and Tuesday, of last week, according to Deputy Sheriff James Mills.

Missing was a television set and other items when the break was discovered. Entry may have been made by the driver of a white car known to have been in the Olney driveway three times between 10 and 11:40 a.m. Sunday.

The home of J. A. Ramsay, White Pine Lane, Jensen Beach, was the object of an attempted break-in Sunday night, investigation revealed.

Three pins were removed from the back door but entry was not made, Mills reported.

Diffendals Return From Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Diffendal, 210 South St., Jensen Beach, have returned from a family reunion at Westminster, Md., held in honor of his mother's 90th birthday.

A dinner was held for 19 including three sons, one daughter, three grandsons and ten great-grandchildren.

At the dinner, Mayor Joseph H. Hann, Jr., presented the honorees with a souvenir plate and congratulatory message.

Steed Clears Jurors

John Doe warrants were issued for six jurors recently. The intimation was that jury tampering was suspected after one of the six said after the trial that he felt a guilty verdict was warranted but that he did not vote for it.

State attorney Arthur L. Steed, Orlando, reported in writing this week to Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge that he could find no evidence of a criminal act by the circuit court jury or jurors following the investigation.

Judge Trowbridge said he had asked Steed to make the investigation after he received a report that led him to believe such an act could have been committed.

Subpoenaed for appearance before Steed were Paul A. Bellas, Rio; Willis L. Schrock, Jensen Beach; John J. Marr, George Huss and John J. Driscoll, Jr., all of Stuart; and Glen Edwards of Indiantown.

The trial was of Darrel D. Swanson, 22, Roy K. Finney, 34, William A. Dempsey, 42, all of Miami, and William A. Morris, Jr., Port Salerno and Belle Chase, La.

The charges involved possession of burglary tools.

Legion Renews Scholars

Scholarships to two local girls, awarded last year by Jensen Beach Unit #126, American Legion Auxiliary, have been renewed, it was announced at Monday night's meeting of the Auxiliary.

Recipients were Mary Ann Meyer, Jensen Beach, and Barbara Fous. These scholarships were renewed so the girls could continue their studies. Usually the Auxiliary presents two scholarships annually to graduates of local high schools.

Mary Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Meyer, is a student at Dade Junior College, Miami, majoring in business administration.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Fous, Sewall's Point, is taking medical secretarial work at St. Joseph Junior College, Jensen Beach. She is a junior member of the Auxiliary.

Each scholarship is for $150.00.

Both girls were accompanied at Monday night's meeting by their mothers.

Memorial Day services will be held at All Saints' Episcopal Church on Tuesday, May 30, at 2 p.m. All members are urged to attend.

Unit president Emma Snyder thanked all who had made her term in office such a successful and happy one.

Hostesses Helga Speta and Dorothy Grimm served refreshments.

PTA To Install

Mrs. Gladys Snipes, Indiantown, president of the Bi-County PTA, will install officers of Jensen Beach Elementary School PTA next Monday night at the school cafetorium, according to Dick Campbell, outgoing president. Mrs. Snipes was elected to the district post recently.

To be installed as 1967-68 president of the Jensen school PTA is Mrs. Ransom H. Tilton, already an active church and scout leader in the community. The meeting will start at 8 p.m.

Other officers being installed are; 1st vice-president Mardee St. Clair, 2nd vice-president Rene Marsteller, secretary, Mrs. Eugene DeLancy; and treasurer Mrs. Edward Earl, Jr.

Mrs. Mary Smith, librarian, will discuss library facilities, and Jensen Beach Girl Scout Troop #231 will participate in a program.

Court Dismisses Zglinicki Suit

A dismissal decision made by Circuit Court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge in the suit filed by Andy Zglinicki against the Martin County commission in April, 1965, has been upheld by Fourth District Court of Appeals.

In a suit against the board collectively and individually, Zglinicki alleged that the commission did not keep proper minutes of their meetings. He asked the judge to enjoin the commission from directing clerical personnel as to content of meeting reports and to cease dictating minutes of meetings not actually held.

The initial suit, filed by attorney Edgar R. Hamilton, West Palm Beach, and Errol Miller, Ft. Pierce, co-counsel, was dismissed then later amended and dismissed the final time in December 1965.

Dean Tooker, county attorney, represented the commissioners.

Zglinicki had specified there were errors in the minutes. Tooker argued that the minutes hadn't been proven wrong.

The decision in December, 1965, was "for failure to state a cause of action" Judge Trowbridge ruled.

Taxpayers Offer Expert To Study County Roads

The Martin County Taxpayers Association, in a letter to the county commission read Tuesday, offered to bear the entire cost of a study of the county's road and bridge fund by a certified public accountant. The offer was accepted by the board.

"The voice of the people" is in favor of a tax cut, rather than any tax increase, according to R. T. Warneheim, president

"It has been our belief for some time that the county cannot run a road building business as economically as the county can build roads on a bid basis, using private industry," Warneheim wrote.

James W. Kindelan, CPA, with Hing, Mahon) & Arner, will make the study to demonstrate whether or not it would be advisable to continue in the road-building business as a county government.

The TPA has earmarked $4,000 for the project.

Kindelan, expected here Friday, has made two other studies in Martin County, one in the office of the county clerk, and one in the school system.

Part of the survey would entail study of possible state tax changes in new legislation, and any other necessary studies to give a true picture of what is being done with annual budgets of between $450,000 and $500,000 of the past few years in the road and bridge Department.

"We believe the study will be of great benefit to the taxpayers of the county and a service to the commission," Warneheim said, adding that road maintenance projects were not being criticized as such.

Bills Are In Mill

Sen. Beth Johnson, Tallahassee, has reported by telephone to county commissioner J. W. (Bill) Hussey on the status of Martin County bills.

Nine bills have been approved for immediate introduction, Hussey said. The Palm Beach-Martin County delegation in the House and the five-county delegation in the Senate, met at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday to go over Martin County requests.

Those approved include bills on lot clearing, beaches funds, leasing of recreation lands, return of welfare funds, medical examiner, airport lease, train speed limits, control of motor vehicles on beaches, and railroad grade crossing signals.

The county commission on Tuesday voted bitter opposition to a move to retain all race track funds in the state. The county also gives its $290,000 share half to the school department and half to the Road and Bridge Fund.

Loss of the total would mean loss of a two-mill levy value.

Took A Year

Island Bulkhead Passes Hearing

In a landmark decision, the Martin County commission Tuesday concluded deliberations on the Hutchinson Island bulkhead line after spasmodic discussions and oft-postponed hearings that spread over a year's time. The new line was adopted unanimously.

The new line replaces the old line from a point just north of the House of Refuge to the Rand development, just north of Sea Isle Shores, from 1,200 feet to a maximum of 600 feet, and in some places as low as 350 feet, depending on the shoreline contours.

The Izaak Walton League, according to H. A. (Bill) Sewastie, president of the Martin County Chapter, would prefer a one-foot line, but did not oppose the greatly reduced distance. He described the natural channel which, he said, carries marine life into the Indian River from the ocean along the east shore of the waterway, and asked that attention be paid to it if dredging is done.

Frank A. Wachs, commissioner, said he did not feel the commission had the power to intervene in dredge and fill operations, other than as an objector or a permit approver, but Chuck Kindred, a national vice-president of the I.W.L. contradicted him, said the commission is the prime mover to which the U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Trustees of Internal Improvement Fund, look when granting permits.

At Kindred's urging, and on Wachs's motion, the commission adopted a request for a survey of the entire Hutchinson Island waterfront in Martin County, to determine ecological matters, the best methods of dredging operation and the best places from which to take fill without disturbing marine life of all sorts.

The commission's request was the first and probably the only one of its nature in modern history here.

The IIF, the State Dept. of Conservation and the U. S. Fish & Wildlife River Basin service, which has a Vero Beach office, will be asked to make the needed surveys to establish fill methods and channels.

About a year ago the old 1,200 foot bulkhead line was protested by the IIF. The old line was from the ocean front high water mark; the new one will be measured from a surveyable mark, the center line of the county road down the island.

Draper Babcock, one of the owners on the narrow stretch of the island where the new line applies, said the line was reasonable and there would be no objections.

Pioneers Gather In Jensen Beach

Pioneers of the Lower Indian River area and their many descendants, coming from various points in Florida and the southeast, will meet in Jensen Beach Saturday, May 13 for the 1967 meeting and picnic of Early Settlers of the Lower Indian River.

Mrs. Anita Rixon Tilton of Jensen Beach is this year's president.

The meeting and picnic will be held on the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m., followed by the annual business meeting at 10 a.m. Each family will bring its picnic lunch which will be held at noon. Beverage, plates and cups will be provided.

The 10 a.m. meeting will be called to order by A. B. Tilton. Election of officers will be held and awards will be given to the largest family, oldest and youngest Pioneers.

Chairmen include Isabel Gamble, registration and tags; Lottie Hellier, collection of dues; Sarah Babcock, food service; raffles Anita Hoke; cold drinks, Buck Hendry; Harry Jennings, set up tables and chairs, and cleanup; publicity, Harry Schultz; presentation of awards, Walter Hellier; Meta Chesser Hardee, memorial.

The nominating committee includes Meta Chesser Hardee, Howard Saunders, Buck Hendry, Karl Rixon and Mrs. Tinker McClain Clark.

Hostesses and greeters are W. B. Tilton, chairman; Mrs. John Taylor, Stuart; Ruth Hallstrom and Catherine Sims, both of Vero Beach; Hasti and Ray Saunders, Ft. Pierce; and Mildred Brown Garrett, Ft. Pierce.

Arrangements for printing programs were made by Frances Richards and Leonora Park.

The new president for 1968 is Frieda Kroegel Thompson of Sebastian.

More than 250 persons are expected to attend the get-together this Saturday, said Mrs. Tilton.

The Settlers group was organized in 1956 in Fort Pierce.

A "past-presidents" meeting will be held prior to the 10 a.m. business meeting.

123 Feet Added

Land Swap Gets OK

Public beach on Jupiter Island was gained by Martin County Tuesday when county commissioners agreed to a swap of two road ends, totaling 75 feet, for 123 feet of beach abutting the present Bridge Road public beach.

The board adopted the agreement unanimously, contingent on signatures from the Hobe Sound Company and the Town of Jupiter Island.

The deal, culminating several months of discussions and hearings, was described by chairman Jack Saunderson as "a gain in costly beachfront for the public, and something I've sought for a long time."

Two unused rights-of-way to the ocean, Delespine Trail and Devonshire Road, will be abandoned in the swap, which includes provisions to provide $7,500 by the Jupiter Island town council to the county to use for bulkheading; use of the added beach for the public; the supplying of fresh water main by the Hobe Sound Co.; and cancellation of restrictions formerly held on the town over the Bridge Road beach site.

The new beach site will be provided with a paved parking area, and be landscaped, both by the county. No concession stands will be permitted.

A new $34,300 revetment wall will be built with county funds, some of which has been supplemented by a credit of about $3,000 spent by the county on a previous wall.

Amended Zoning Code Is Adopted

The newly written and somewhat amended Martin County zoning code was accepted by the board of commissioners, subject to changes as worked out in a work session last week. The code had been submitted by county zoning director Frederick L. Bell.

The code, adopted as written and assembled during the past year, is the most complete compilation yet reached in county zoning matters.

The acceptance of the code specifically exempted two county areas from its provisions under an amendment offered by commissioner J. W. Hussey. They are Port Sewall and Hutchinson Island, both of which have their own zoning codes.

In a short time maps of the various urban areas will be available for reference, according to Bell.

Minute With Social Security

Q. I will be 65 soon, but I earn too much money to draw any social security benefits. Do I have to retire or reduce my earnings in order to qualify for medicare?

A. Definitely not! You should sign up 3 months before your 65th birthday to be sure you have coverage as of the 1st day of your birthday month. If you choose part B of medicare, you will pay your $3.00 per month premium insurance payments to social security.

Q. I don't understand what the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Organization of Florida, Inc. has to do with medicare.

A. In almost every state, private insurance companies have qualified to act as intermediaries to make medicare payments in that state. In Florida, Blue Shield, Inc. handles most reimbursements for medical claims and Blue Cross handles most hospital claims. Other organizations may be The Aetna Insurance Co. in Florida, and The Travelers Insurance Co.

Career Pilot Training Program Set For IRJC

Plans for a two-year program in Aerospace Technology at Indian River Junior College are being completed, according to a bulletin released recently. The objectives of this program are to educate and train career pilots.

This program meets all requirements of the Veterans' Administration as well as the Federal Aviation Agency. Many veterans have indicated interest in the program, the report said, and VA approval should have a significant effect upon enrollment. Several thousand new qualified pilots will be needed in the next decade, according to the release.

Applications for the fall term are now being accepted.

The program will include classroom and in-flight instruction leading to an Associate in Science degree and a commercial license and instrument rating.

GED Tests Scheduled

Indian River Junior College will administer General Educational Development (G,E,D,) tests May 15, 16 and 17 in Room A-208, according to Charles W. Sample, Dean of Student Personnel.

All applicants must have a full year's credit in American history and civics, be 20 years old by May 15, and be a resident of Florida.

The test is designed to assist persons in obtaining a high school diploma.

Winn Charged With Liquor Violation

Wyatt reported the sale was to a boy under 21 years of age two months.

Winn made bail and was released on his own recognizance pending trial.

Author Visits Jensen

Ella Gale, author, and her husband, Herbert Houghton, Jr., have been spending several weeks at the Crossroads, Jensen Beach. They have been coming to Jensen for 15 years and expect to build on their Skyline Drive lot sometime in the future.

Mrs. Houghton, author of "Dollars and Sense", a book of The Month Club selection, has just completed a new book, to be published early next year, as yet unnamed. The sub-title, Mrs. Houghton told The Mirror, is "What Americans REALLY Value."

En route south, Houghton attended a three-day international conference on urban transportation in Pittsburgh, Penna. Troy, Mich., is their home.

Guatemalan Holiday

One day lately, I ran across my diary of 1959. I started to read the part about our trip to Guatemala and became so interested, that although I had many other things to do, I didn't lay it down until I had read the whole story. When I finished, I thought to myself, "If that story is so interesting to me, why not share it with others." This I intend to do. The story is written in detail and when you have read the last chapter, it will surprise me if many of you do not get the urge to visit this most interesting country.

"Guatemalan Holiday"
Chapter I

As I write, it is the last week in February of 1959. Our Yellowstone travel trailer is located in Cabrillo Trailer Park, near the University of Mexico, at the eastern limits of the city of Mexico. Our friends, Doug and Rose Blyth also from Texas, Breeze, have their trailer spotted a short distance from ours. We travelled around the Gulf of Mexico together and have been here a week. The elevation is around 7,500 feet, so the temperature the year around is moderate, quite cool nights and warm to hot days. Our ambition is to visit Guatemala which up to date has been inaccessable by automobile except by shipping our car the last 175 miles from Tehuantepec to Guatemalan border by rail, and then taking the coastal route to Guatemala City. Doug Blyth and I have visited the United States Embassy and found that diplomatic relations between Mexico and Guatemala had been severed due to some violations of flanking rights. The embassy did not favor our contemplated trip.

A visit to the Mexican Automobile Association, the next day, was more encouraging. They informed us that some tourists were getting through. We asked if they had heard from any who had returned. They told us they had not. Conditions did not look good so that night we talked it over and the Blyths decided against the trip. If we had been sensible, we probably would have done so too. My wife, Nellie, is almost as stubborn as me and we decided to proceed as planned. Doug said, "You folks go ahead. We'll amuse ourselves around here till you get back."

Next day we obtained our visas from the Guatemalan embassy and on Thursday, February 26, we pulled our trailer across the city to the airport where we left it in the Mexican customs yard. We had a cold chicken sandwich at the airport restaurant and drove out of the city. After an almost rainless winter this cultivated plain was very dusty, but not for long. We soon started to climb. The road at that time was very winding and sometimes steep. Shortly after reaching the summit we drove through the little town of Rio Frio which means in English, Cold River. We thought to see any signs of a river but it sure was a cold one as the elevation is 10,530 feet. I think it must be the highest town in North America.

From there we gradually descended to the Pueblo plain and Cholula, the city of churches. Why they have so many churches I will never know but the town is worth a visit. What is claimed to be the largest pyramid of North America is on the eastern side of the town. We climbed the winding trail to this dirt pyramid to the top and were surprised to find such a large church built there. I suppose it was built on top of their pyramid. We entered and found many worshipers. In the pews, although it was late afternoon. Our guide took us into the inner sanctum and we received quite a shock. Golden ornamentations were everywhere. I am not a Catholic but I had the feeling that this place was very sacred and it was not fitting that I should be there.

We descended to our car and continued on our journey. As we neared the city of Puebla we had a good view of the twin volcanos of Popocatapetl and Ixtaccihuatl. The latter name always floors me but my wife Nellie can roll it off her tongue as easily as her own name. She calls it Ix-ta-see-watl.

As there are no good motels further south, we stayed over night at Puebla, a very large city, expecting to reach Oaxaca, (pronounced Wa-ha-ka), which also is a large city, the following night. We took a room at the Pan Am. Motel which is Mexican but is patronized by many Americans. It doesn't go too much for style, but it is quite clean, quiet and inexpensive.

After looking the town over we went to bed early, expecting to make an early start the next morning. However the saying is, "The best laid plans of mice and men often go wrong." We were no exception to the rule.

More next week.

Charlie Slezak, Postmaster

It is not common knowledge that Charlie Slezak was postmaster in a small town in Ohio. We have before us a copy of The Brecksville News, Cleveland, Ohio dated Feb. 28, 1947 over twenty years ago. In this newspaper there is a very good picture of Charlie sorting mail, as well as a story, some extracts of which Charlie's friends will be interested in.

"--Happy over the prospects of new and enlarged quarters, the Postmaster and his wife, affectionately called "Charlie and Jennie" by everyone, were full of enthusiasm when they were interviewed at their home on Fitz-Hugh Road.

"Many changes have come about since I was appointed postmaster in 1934," Charlie said. "The post office was then in the small frame building just east of the center on route 82. We worked under severe handicaps, without heat, water, or conveniences of any kind. In the winter we often wore gloves to sort the mail."

The business handled was one-third of the present volume. Besides the postmaster, there was one clerk and two carriers.

"From the beginning my wife was so interested in the post office that she worked for two years without pay," Charlie added, "and she's been there ever since."

In 1940 the post office moved to the present quarters in the Masonic building on Brecksville Road leased by Mr. George Klein.

"It was like heaven." Slezak recalled. "We moved to a fine new building with heat, adequate light and water facilities. It meant that we could give much better service all round--the mail could be sorted faster, customers could be served with greater ease and facility, and everyone was happy about it."

Since then business has steadily increased until now there are two full time clerks, Jennie Slezak and David Bratton; one full time substitute clerk, Virgil Eberton; and one auxiliary clerk, Gordon Cartwright besides three rural carriers.

Three years after the foregoing article was written, Charlie and Jennie retired from postal work. A neighbor of theirs, Isabel Bodner Gardner, had been spending the winters in Florida, at Ocean Breeze Park, and he became enthused to be Slezaks. For the first time owners the Slezaks rented apartments in the park and then moved to their present location on North Fourth. Jennie's many friends were greatly shocked when she passed away on Jan. 1961. Charlie stayed on and Jennie's sister Sylvia, whose husband had also passed on, has shared the home and lawn ever since to the present day.

Visit To Port Everglades

Freda Peterain with companion Mary Adrean, took her friends Jack and Jean Sezat to Everglades to catch the S.S. Canberra on which they were to sail to Europe. We will let Freda tell of this trip in her own words:

"When Jean Sezat told me that she and her husband, Jack, planned to leave from Port Everglades on the S.S. Canberra on May 4 for England, I decided that I would like to see this city and see my friends off on their summer trip. My friend, Mary Adrean came along for the ride and we arrived at Port Everglades in plenty of time.

The S.S. Canberra, gleaming white, was tied up to the dock and a few lazy puffs of smoke were coming from her smoke stacks. It made me wish I could have been there at 7 A.M. to see her being brought into port. The maneuvering would have been worth watching.

The customs building was so arranged that two cars could drive abreast and unload the baggage onto the table with the designated letter with the minimum of effort. After the customs inspection was completed, the luggage was tagged with the number of the owner's cabin and away it went aboard the ship.

While this was being attended to, Mary and I went aboard the ship to enjoy it's luxury and quiet restfulness. From the promenade deck we looked out over the water and counted four different shades of blue and knew it would not be long before this ship, which had left Honolulu April 14, would be continuing it's journey to Lisbon, LeHarve and Southampton where it was to arrive May 14."

Motorists Warned

Please bear in mind that our streets have not been designed for the exclusive use of motorists. You have to share our streets with pedestrians, including school children, bicyclists and tricyclists.

You are expected to consider that fact and not at any time to drive faster than conditions safely permit.

Visitors To Canada Check Insurance

Mrs. Bill Baum drew our attention to an article in a Canadian paper which may affect United States citizens in regards to their auto insurance, and United States visitors to Canada this summer are advised to check their car insurance. An extract from the London Free Press, Ontario, Canada, dated April 28, 1967, reads as follows:-

In all Canadian provinces except one, British Columbia, the law requires motorists do have an inclusive minimum of $35,000 in insurance. That means that, in an accident involving personal injury or property damage, there is $35,000 available for the settlement of claims. In British Columbia the minimum is $50,000.

Most people in the "States" have more than the minimum. But even if they have insurance to meet Canadian requirements, they will need the "Yellow card."

The yellow card is the Non-Resident Inter-Province Motor Vehicle Liability Insurance Card available to motorists through insurance companies.

Most companies have adopted a policy of supplying their clients with free, extra coverage, "for a one-shot" trip to Expo 67.

This means an insurance spokesman said, "that we will give extra coverage, at no extra cost, provided we are notified in advance

Her Hobby

When Lila Redinger returns from summer wanderings she usually brings back a new hobby which she generously shares with other residents of the park. She also starts a class wherever they stop along the way.

Once it was hats--they made more than 400--the last year it was tote bags. Her group worked yarn designs on nearly a mile of furniture webbing from which they made more than five hundred of them.

This year it is beads. Despite a late February start, her pupils have crocheted more than 430,000 Japanese pearl beads in to hundreds of necklace strands and ear drops.

Lila has reluctantly refused several urgent requests to teach classes outside the park. After all, there's only one Lila and anyhow the beads have not been easy to obtain in quantities sufficient for even her own Ocean Breeze groups.

No Legislation To Be Requested Now

Sport And Commercial Fishermen Discuss Problems

Three representatives of the Martin County Anglers Club and three of the Port Salerno Chapter of Organized Fishermen of Florida (OFF), plus an outsider, sat on opposite sides of the county commission meeting room last Friday and discussed fishing problems in the area.

Sitting on the podium was Frank A. Wacha, county commissioner, who had offered to act as "referee".

Shortly after the one and a half hour session started, it became apparent there would be no requests for changed legislation affecting river fishing by either commercial or sport fishermen in this legislative session.

After the meeting, Wacha confirmed this. "Too late to advertise; mostly the need for study, possibly further compromise," he said.

The meeting started with the sports delegation made up of Jerome B. Wood, Mrs. Virginia R. Forrest and Dr. Francis G. Slack, offered a letter to be signed by both sides and directed to Col. R. P. Tabb, district engineer for the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Jacksonville.

"We agree to work jointly," the letter started indicating harmony at the session. It went on to ask reduction of the amount of discharged fresh water into the South Fork of the St. Lucie River and to ask that other outlets of Lake Okeechobee be used to avoid distress of Martin County's salt water fish and marine life.

Members of the commercial delegation signed up at once including William H. Gilliard, Lewis W. Jacobs and Ira Black, Mrs. Jean Hupfel, who accompanied them, looked on with flowers crossed.

Mrs. Forrest read two points on which future studies or changes might be made.

The commercial representatives, after much discussion, asked the sportsmen to "give us a ring if someone gets out of line. Call Donald Rose or Hubert Stiller. We want to police our own. If they're annoying you, get the boat numbers and call...we'll handle the complaints," they said.

Howard Haid, newspaperman who lives in Hibiscus Park, added, "Call me, too. I'd be glad to help."

It was agreed that every angler, whether commercial or semi-pro, should have a license if fish are sold. A salt water fishing license for everyone was discussed, then discarded as unpopular state-wide.

The sportsmen felt that all commercial fishermen should have licenses, not just boat operators. Non-resident commercial men should pay a higher price, too. The topic will be explored.

Sportsmen asked the commission to possibly use the income from the licenses to employ a deputy as provided for in an effective law. This will be studied.

The sportsmen also asked the commission to carry out by the county judge for violations of the fishing laws, and a check up of bridge anglers as well as commercial men was asked.

Definitions of "haul and dragging" were asked, and Wacha agreed to have the definitions clarified; he also agreed to ask for an ecological survey to get answers to the "mud weed" found in the Indian River. Another question to be studied is what to do with snook caught and killed in commercial gillnets.

If legislation is needed, it was agreed, it would be carefully prepared for introduction in 1969. Future meetings will be held as problems are studied.

Fishing

Excellent

Snook are all over the place. Bear tail they're all males waiting for their warm-weather females who will show up when the water temp hits 80 degrees. Eagle-faced eels will arrive at the same time to make excellent bait. Until then, use your favorite lures.

Very large schools of blue runners along the reefs and in the inlet feeding schools of silversides. Also large schools of jacks and some snapper in the inlet. Some snapper will soon appear in schools as large as the blue runners.

Bluefish continue heavy in the surf, some inside the inlet, many along the reefs. Spanish mackerel in spurts and in all schools north of the Hutch, south of the inlet, but some coming up the east L.

Offshore fishing excellent with allusions, kite trolling and kingfish predominant.

Trout and redfish in the shallow sides of west fork extended at night, producing large quantities. Shrimp, crabs and lizards in deeper holes. Grass flats of the lake are shallow for fishing just now but should soon.

Water Use Assailed In IWL Beef

Criticism of water use policies, particularly in connection with the Everglades National Park, were loud and clear at the annual convention of the Florida Division, Izaak Walton League of America, held last weekend in Stuart.

Local issues were not overlooked either, as state directors prepared resolutions for adoption.

At the top of the local list was one condemning the State Road Department for seeking to push a new route for Interstate 95, a federal limited access freeway through Jonathan Dickinson State Park.

Delegates including J. F. Redford, president of the Florida Division, from the Miami area were particularly critical of both Gov. Claude Kirk and Ney C. Landrum, Director of the Outdoor Recreation Advisory Council, for failure to acquire 830 acres of Cape Florida for a state park in Dade County.

The convention appeared set to go on record in a strong resolution favoring provision for more water to the Everglades.

"The park needs an allotment of 300,000 acre feet a year, not 46,000, as it has had since the first of this year, and it should be delivered when needed as determined by the park officials," Redford said.

Support for HR 25, the Congressional estuary and bottomlands ecological approved bill had director support, as did a state stand to protect the alligator.

"Louisiana tried a method suggested by Dr. O. E. Frye, director of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, and had almost no alligators left in two years," Redford charged.

He said 95 per cent of alligators in Everglades National Park had been eliminated in the past 10 years and that they were suicidal in that now that poachers were raiding the nurseries places displaying them along Tamiami Trail.

Martin County Izaak Walton League resolutions included one which would set up a long range study of new and more effective methods of artificial propagation of desirable native marine fish and would organize a plan to supplement dwindling supplies of naturally raised species.

"Something must be done to replace the destruction of our waters as it is being done now," said H. A. (Bill) Newcombe, president of the local chapter.

Some action to protect the common dolphin, or porpoise, in waters of the St. Lucie and Indian Rivers was taken.

Philip (Bill) Lund, state vice-president, spearheaded the drive to have the State Road Department east of the state park before I-95 plans are settled.

Showers Cheer Martin Drought

The first rain in about two months provided some cheer, if little relief Tuesday afternoon in Martin County. However, plans for the digging of up to 185 cattle water-drinking holes on some 125 farms and ranches continued. About 55,000 acres of pastureland were deemed in need of re-establishment.

The statistics were supplied by county agent Levi W. Johnson to civil defense director Al Keaton who was asked by area CD supervisor John (Buck) Buchanan to supply the data. The latter supplied the data at the direction of H. W. Tarkington, state civil defense director.

Martin County was listed in a disaster area which included all counties from a line south of and including Pinellas, Hillsborough, Orange, Brevard and Polk Counties.

Buchanan, whose headquarters are in a 4-W1I underground concrete reservoir used by the U.S. Army at Camp Murphy, now a part of Jonathan Dickinson State Park, said late Tuesday he was gathering such data as State Road Department maps of remote area roads, the number and type vehicles available in each county to conduct emergency operations designed to provide drought relief.

Buchanan said he would meet Gov. Claude Kirk Wednesday (today) as the latter made an inspection tour of the area.

Much of the rain that fell Tuesday was in areas where rain measuring devices were available.

Shower activity was heavy west of the turnpike and east of Indiantown, but light in downtown Stuart; heavy over citrus country in southeast county areas, but light on the coast.

The water table had dropped rapidly in some county areas, county engineer Fred L. Bell said. The level was so low that it was impossible to pinpoint, but at Fair City locations it had dropped from 18 inches to five feet below the surface.

Bell said the County Water Management Board, scheduled for a regular meeting tonight (Wednesday) would be asked to discuss salinity controls on certain county ditches, including the airport ditch which, when it has water, discharges into the St. Lucie River.

PTA Installs Mrs. Tilton

Mrs. Ransom R. Tilton was installed as president of the Jensen Beach Elementary School Parent-Teacher-Association Monday night at the final meeting of the organization for this school year.

Installing officer of the ceremonies was Mrs. Gladys Snipes of Indiantown, newly elected president of the Bi-County PTA.

Mrs. Tilton spoke following the installation, asking for the help of all members of the PTA in making the coming year a success. Mrs. Snipes outlined the aims and goals of the PTA prior to the installation, when she charged the new officers with the responsibility of their individual offices.

The program for the evening meeting was a presentation of a film on the library by Mrs. Mary Smith.

Installed as first vice-president was Mrs. William St. Clair. Second vice-president was Mrs. Daryl Marsteller, Mrs. Eugene DeLancey was installed as secretary and Mrs. Edward Earle, Jr., as treasurer.

Plans Fall Convention

Plans for the November state Convention of the Florida Press Association were discussed at the spring mid-year convention of the association, held last weekend in Jacksonville. The convention, which will bring publishers and editors of all Florida's daily and weekly newspapers to this area, will be held at St. Lucie Country Club.

Discussing the plans for the meeting at a Friday afternoon session were Bob Duvall, general manager of the country club, and FPA director Dick Campbell, editor of The Mirror, with FPA officials.

One sidelight of the meeting was the planning of a printing machinery show to be held in conjunction with the convention. The show will be held in a new convention hall planned for the country club area.

Rezoning Request In Port Salerno

The regular monthly meeting of the Martin County Planning and Zoning Board will be held Thursday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the county commission room of the courthouse. The board will be faced with a full five-item agenda for the first time during the past several months.

One of the major items on the agenda will be a request by Ben Medley of Port Salerno to attempt zoning change from the present classification of R3A to a M1 for industrial use to permit an auto assembly plant to be built in that area. The area referred to is a lot immediately adjoining the present Country Store and plumbing shop site.

Also considered will be an application by Roger Shillman to rezone present tracts of land from R4 to HCTA with the intention of establishing a marina site in that area.

An area which will border the south side of Cove Road at the Intracoastal Waterway, once the road is established to the Intracoastal, has been requested for change from R2B and interim to R3A by South Winnepaug Ltd. for a proposed mobile home park.

Other items on the agenda will include change from C1 to R3A of the triangle section of land at SR 707 and Sewall's Point Road. The board is acting to resubmit this to the county commission based on their original proposal which was changed to the C1 classification at the time of its inception.

The new R2T category which will permit trailers to be placed on a lot for a period of five years, which the board intends to utilize in extremely low income areas, will also be heard. If the board adopts the new R2T category, it will apply the same at the Thursday night meeting to the Booker Park area in Indiantown, now under study.

Murray Back; Phaseout Rises

Pupils of Murray Junior-Senior High School returned to classes Friday, ending the boycott that upset students, parents, school administrators and the Martin County public for two weeks.

Ended also, it appeared, was the plan which would have continued the school at least one more year as an all-Negro school.

The appointment of Jim Navitsky as principal for next year started the boycott. The appointment by Supt. Thomas L. Crook, appeared to be the one point on which continued unsettled conditions might rest if the school were to continue as a junior-senior high school.

Navitsky has been head football coach at Martin County High School.

Thursday night, many parents of the students threatened a county-wide boycott of all schools by all Negroes; Friday morning Murray students joined them.

On Friday, Dewey Dobbs, Title VI Compliance chief for Florida in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, here from Washington, told the administration, including Crook and four school board members:

"From the information I have, from talking with you and from information in your files, I see no reason why Murray High School should not be phased out in 1967."

There appeared to be no opposition to the year-early phasing out of the school to a district junior high school fully integrated.

Attending Friday's session were Dr. Gordon Foster, assistant director of the South Florida School Desegregation Center at the University of Miami; Mrs. Hazel Jordan, Ft. Pierce, a consultant for the Center in this area, and Primer E. Williams, State Department of Education aide in the Technical Assistance Program.

Tee Off On Route

I-95 Search Is Beginning Here

Officials of the State Road Department are probing for a way to replace the missing link in the Interstate 95 Federal freeway route down the Florida peninsula. The missing link is the stretch between Fort Pierce and Donald Ross Road, West Palm Beach. Between those two points, I-95 has tentatively been approved as a section of the turnpike.

The probes now being made include such widely varied routes as the one through Jonathan Dickinson State Park, which is creating a stir among conservationists, and a route east of US 1 which could eliminate one of the holes on the Martin County Golf and Country Club course, according to Charles Hopkins, Interstate engineer and Federal Aid Coordinator in Tallahassee. Nothing has been settled, he said.

However, there is little doubt that the limited access freeway would be of greater benefit to Martin County and parts of both Palm Beach and St. Lucie Counties, if it were a separate freeway and not a part of the turnpike in this area.

There is no doubt conservationists will fight a route through Jonathan Dickinson State Park. An emergency resolution opposing such a plan was passed at the State Directors' meeting of the Izaak Walton League last weekend.

Data on the routes is a little vague.

The route in this area will continue to be along the toll highway, according to Hopkins, unless a way is found to obtain a release to the turnpike bond covenants, the route will continue along the toll highway, according to Hopkins.

The fact that the Road Department is seeking alternate routes, however, indicates there is hope in that direction. No one at Tallahassee would say that the Turnpike Authority would seek such a release, however.

The surprising part in the route search is that which would take I-95 east of US 1.

This move is being studied, however, according to Hopkins, and the fact was confirmed by Harold Strauss, St. Lucie Skyways operator and operational director of Stuart Airport.

"Three or four men from the State Road Department asked me to take them to the end of the runway nearest the golf course. I did, and they discussed the possibility of crossing between the airport and the golf course, possibly even cutting off one of the golf course holes," said Strauss.

Last week, a rough map of the route, which would cut across both the golf course and the State Park, publicly revealed this test route:

A course between US 1 and the Indian River, south of Fort Pierce, entering Martin County just west of Jensen Beach, traveling south to the north shore of the St. Lucie River, crossing it at the northeast corner of Stuart city limits, a point which is actually in the river.

It would continue on the south shore of the river at a point roughly west of Snug Harbor, and gradually swing easterly on its southerly route crossing SR 1 west of Port Salerno.

At that point, it would again bend easterly as it moved southerly, hitting the northwest corner of Jonathan Dickinson State Park and running southerly on the route of Kitchen's Creek, well east of the west border of the park.

N. E. (Bill) Miller said he had plotted it as running down the creek and eliminating it, crossing the Northwest Fork of the Loxahatchee River a mile inside the park's western border between Audubon Island and the boat dock and picnic area, which are a side area part.

The Park Board voted by mail or telephone unanimously to protest the route which would ruin the park, according to Miller.

South of the Martin County line, the Federal freeway would meet the previously known route somewhere east of the turnpike at Donald Ross Road.

Turtles Return In Surf

The gigantic loggerhead turtles are returning to Jensen Beach. The ponderous loggerhead turtles, weighing up to 500 pounds, and the even more gigantic green turtles, weighing up to 2,000 pounds, arrived in the surf of Jensen Beach's Hutchinson Island right on time, to kick off the 1967 summer season.

Sightings of many turtles dragging their great bodies out of the ocean at high tide, crawling up on the high part of the beach, and laying some 100 to 300 eggs in a nest dug with powerful flippers, have taken place for the past week.

While the mama sea turtle lays the eggs, the father sea turtle swims offshore, never coming in to land.

The spectacular event of nature draws thousands to Jensen Beach each year to see the summer-long parade of sea turtles.

The turtle is oblivious to all around once she begins laying the eggs, and visitors sit on her back and watch by flashlight as each rubbery egg drops into the foot-deep nest.

Once the job is completed, the turtle covers the nest in a blinding whirlwind of sand from her flippers, and moves back and forth to plane off the nest, defying anyone to locate the original spot without probing with sticks.

Lights on the beach still be a familiar sight through the summer, as residents and tourists alike ask the fearless to hopes of seeing, and often see doing just that, the turtle lay of eggs.

Otherwise bare, Mrs. Turtle, summer is here.

Wilderness Inspection Is Made

Reed Wilderness Beach, the Florida Audubon Society sanctuary, was inspected Tuesday by a three-man team from Everglades National Park as part of the study being made of the possibilities of making the area a national landmark under the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Inspection tour was made by Charles Bachelier, president of the Martin County Audubon Society and a state warden for the park, and Robert T. Bair, conservation leader, made the inspection tour.

The survey team was comprised of Larry Tillman, park naturalist; Dr. Francis Craigheau, retired ecologist, and John Ogden, biologist.

Results will be disclosed at a later date.

200 Early Settlers Picnic On Causeway

Over 200 members of the Early Settlers' Association of the Indian River Area met on the Jensen Beach Causeway Saturday, May 13, for a 41st annual picnic.

Mrs. W. B. (Anita Ricou) Tilton, as president, presided at the morning business session, following registration. Invocation was by Rev. Newton Tweedy, pastor of Jensen Beach Community Church.

Hosts and hostesses among the settlers were Mrs. Madie Hoke, Mrs. John Taylor, Mrs. Ruth Hallstrom, Mrs. Mildred Brown Garrett, Banty Saunders, Ray Saunders, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Tilton.

Pioneers who arrived in the Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River County areas by 1905, and their descendants, make up the membership of the organization.

Meetings were held from 1926 to 1942 at which time they were suspended because of WWII. The group was reactivated in 1942 by W. L. Fee, Ft. Pierce, and Mrs. Barbara Ferson, Eden.

This year's officers, in addition to president Mrs. Tilton, are Mrs. Annie Brown, Ft. Pierce, secretary-treasurer; 1st vice-president Harry Schultz of White City; 2nd vice-president Mrs. Leona Smith of Palm City.

Oldest man in residence attending the outing is Dr. W. E. VanLandingham, who practiced medicine in Fort Pierce between 1905 and 1918. He now resides in West Palm Beach.

Oldest woman in residence was Mrs. Mary Cleveland of Stuart, born in 1889.

Youngest girl was six-weeks old Pamela Denise Hawthorne, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Hawthorne, Fort Pierce; youngest boy was David Parks Kroegel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Kroegel, Sebastian.

Oldest woman present was Mrs. Frank Richards, 90, of Eden.

The Joseph Klings, Jensen Beach, were the oldest married couple, having wed 61 years ago.

Largest family present was the Millers with 31 attending, including the E. R. Ensays from Merritt Island who attended with two sons, one daughter and numerous grandchildren. Mrs. Ensay is the sister of Mrs. Barbara Ferson.

Cdr. Tilton Assigned To Pentagon Duty

Commander Charles N. Tilton USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warner B. Tilton of Jensen Beach, has been assigned to an administrative task in the Pentagon. He has been commander of Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron Five, with home base at Quonset Point, R.I.

At the change-of-command ceremonies held last week, Tilton was praised by Rear Admiral Forsyth Massey, USN, Commander of Fleet Air, Quonset.

Tilton, who enlisted in the Navy as an apprentice seaman in July, 1942, served on the USS New York, then went into the air until the end of the war. He has a law degree from University of Florida.

The squadron had 2,125 carrier landings in the past year, set a flight hour record in December of 100 hours over the previous record at 1,232 hours, and set another record of 1,675 approaches in a single hover in one month, while operating from a carrier.

Cdr. Tilton's parents were unable to attend the ceremonies, chiefly because of the reunion of the Early Settlers last weekend, his sister, Mrs. Anita Hoke, attended, as did his wife.

Guatemalan Holiday

The last minute preparations for our journey and the packing of our car and storing of our trailer, had taken half the first day. On top of this, the other activities had us pretty well tired out, so as soon as our heads hit the pillows we were asleep. I knew nothing till about 3 A.M., when I awoke from a sound sleep with a feverish headache, stomach cramps and diarhea. Anyone who has experienced this Mexican Travellers Disease has no doubt as to the diagnosis. To guard against such a contingency we always carry some "Inforno" tablets immediately. I felt real rotten and expected we would be staying where we were at least for the rest of the day, However after a few hours all "Montezuma" were pretty well cleaned out and my headache disappeared. After a cup of coffee and a bite to eat, I felt better and felt like moving on.

We left Pueblo at 10 A.M. Nellie drove the car and ever minute I felt better and I really did enjoy the beautiful scenery that is typical of this part of Mexico. The two volcanos with their white snow tops, both about 18,000 feet high, stood our clearly against a lotely, blue sky, making a beautiful picture. This part of Mexico is flat and blessed with good soil. The climate at this altitude of 6,000 feet is such that oranges, apples and peaches can be grown in the same orchard. From enquiries we made these apples are not the northern apples but look the them and serve the purpose. In the center of this land of eternal spring (so it seemed to us) we saw wheat fields in every stage of growth from that of the newly sown crop to that of harvest.

It is quite fitting for such fertile and prosperous area the little town of Atlisco pronounced At-lees-co serves the area. We drove very slowly, through the town, seeing the clean streets, the fresh(), gaily painted houses. As we entered the central plaza we brought our car to a stop. Typical of all plazas, the inner part of the square was occupied by shops, banks, hotels and various places of business. The center square was a beautiful park. Full of large trees and in the shade of these trees were 8 or more benches where people can rest and enjoy the beautiful surroundings. These benches by the way were real works of art, being covered with ceramic tiles of varying designs. In the center of the park was a pavilion where cold drinks and ice cream was being served. It was the hottest part of the day and we enjoyed a cold 'coke.'

About twenty miles south of Atlisco the road drops downward two thousand feet to the town of Matamoros. Miles of sugar cane are grown in this irrigated stretch of country. Bananas and mangos seem to grow wild in the jungle and backyards are gay with bougainvillae blossoms. In the drier areas we see giant organ pipe cactus trees. By chopping out the inner cactus fronds, these giant cactus assume a wineglass shape and are used by farmers for storing hay or feed for their livestock through the unproductive season. Some of these will hold several tons of feed.

As we journeyed south, the country became more hilly. When we descended to the small town of Acatlan we tried if it was late in the day do we decided to take a chance and stay at Acatlan's only hotel. I suppose no Americans stop at this little town. The place was clean enough and our bed was OK, but the food left much to be desired. Most people seemed to help themselves to what there was and sit at a plain board table to eat it. We are not fussy eaters but that is one time we

Ocean Breezers Attend Lutheran Conference

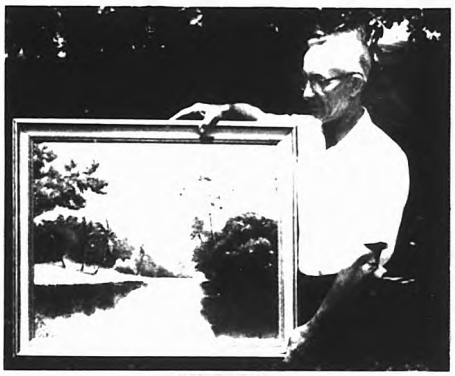
Mrs. Esther Tiemeyer and Miss Ewa Jacson attended the seventh annual convention of the South Eastern Conference, Eastern District of the American Lutheran Church women, held at Faith Lutheran Church, Orlando, Fla. May 8, 9, 10. The theme of the conference was, "Here I Stand."

The guest speaker was Mrs. Addy Ostman of the Lutheran Church of America. A few years ago she had toured the Holy Land to learn of the Biblical places there, slept in the caves and visited the mountains. Returning to America, Mrs. Ostman became a missionary to the Indians in Wisconsin for five years. At present she is a lecturer working out of Miami.

This year marks the 450th year of the reformation and Rev. Claud Tejay of Titusville displayed a medal that belonged to his grandfather that marked the 350th anniversary of the reformation.

Esther took with her many pieces of the work done by the ladies of the Lutheran Church of St. Andrew, Port St. Lucie, during this past years. Among this display were lap robes and quilts for the needy for the hospital. The church was credited with sending 12 pounds of assorted things to Bethel and also where they are sorted and sent. The bonds raised also to the area is quite good.

SHADE- Our mail carrier, Osmond Newsome, has a well-shaded home. Mrs. Newsome and visitors Ruth Phelps and Nellie Cook admire the Bird-of-Paradise plant.



Andy Shirkey

Andy Shirkey Displays Painting

Andy Shirkey is Ocean Breeze's leading scenic artist. His latest 24 x 30 painting on canvas inspired by the natural scenic beauty of the north branch of our St. Lucie River. Andy is known for his ability to capture the natural colors of nature. Andy ural colors of nature. The water in this picture looks so natural that one feels an urge to dive in, or go for a boat ride, but on second thoughts, one would hesitate to do so for fear of disturbing the surface and so spoiling the picture. We consider, from a rank amateur's point of view, that this is Andy's best work of art.

Andy takes his hobby seriously. In addition to the tuition received from Don Houshis, he studies the writings of leading authorities on oil painting. I noticed a stack of about half a dozen of these books.

The Sherkeys, like many of our friends, are preparing to leave us for the summer. They plan to leave shortly by car for Chicago where they have a home, in June they are flying to have a visit with their grand-daughter at Vacaville, Calif., Tehn to Walport, Oregon, to visit Mr. & Mrs. William Hislop, who some may remember. They lived in Ocean Breeze about 1948. Finally they will fly back to Yreka, Calif., to visit Sarah Blesser and her daughter before returning to their home in Chicago.

Andy and Leona Shirkey came to Ocean Breeze in 1939 and have always taken in the several activities in the park and so are well known.

Letter From Doug Blythe

Hendersonville May 5 1967
Dear Tom,

Things are going along nicely here. The weather turned quite cool shortly after we arrived here and we have had a couple days of rain. Now it is hot as the south but the temperature is just a little under warmth. I just hope it warms up some and we can get some sort of weather we had last year.

The plans for our European trip are slowly beginning to shape. We are changing our plans again, as will leave here June 12 and spend eight weeks in Britain and with Holland. After that we are reversing the route to Scandinavia and one of the end headquarters for about a week will be in Amsterdam, Netherlands, what we will do after that is subject to the conditions we find when we get there.

I keep looking at the papers to see if any rain will get some here. The dry spell must be making some sort of a record for Florida.

See you in the fall.

Doug

Eastmans Are Bird Watchers

Livingston Manor, N.Y.
May 5, 1967

We arrived home April 17 with Good Old Man Winter still right in evidence. However, the days are warm and beautiful, both of us are bird watchers and we really enjoy this time of year, for the spring birds are here in abundance.

Besides our home we have a three acre field. We attract the birds to this field by feeding them. To name a few, we have the purple finches, summer cardinals, towhees, house wrens, different species of sparrows (not English sparrows), Bluebirds, rose breasted grosbeaks, chickadees, (but what I call chickadees, that what I call chickadees, and the yellow throat. The Waxwings have not arrived but are due any day.

Despite the fact that we are always glad to be home with our feathered friends, we really enjoy our home in Ocean Breeze and our many friends in the park, both join me in sending the very best.

Sincerely,
Evan Eastman

Roues Write From Home

May 8, 1967

Dear Tom & Nellie:

We had a very fine trip. Good weather, no car trouble and traffic not too heavy. Just one night out, Bill didn't feel around, our daughter and son-in-law got home safely too. They came as far as Elizabethtown, Ky., with Raymonds Reeds, Dorothea said he sure got a rug and rug to follow. I guess he doesn't waste any time either, Nellie. I have two nice ideas for the bobbi class and am anxious to get started on them. We got the grass cut and raked, and the lilacs are in full bloom. It is lovely here. I am sending you a clipping from our local paper.

Bye for now
Sincerely,
Vern & Bill Rowe

Quenna Hoke's Sister Dies

Clara Heeter passed away at the Spring Lake Rest Home in Sanford last Friday May 12, at the age of 84.

Clara came to Ocean Breeze the winter of 1943-44 and made it her home until 1961 when she was admitted to the Indian River Nursing Home. This home closed some three years later and she moved to the Spring Lake Rest Home.

Among others who attended the funeral on May 15 was Gaylord Leslie. Clara was present when Leslie was born. They moved here in the winter of 1925-26 and were among the first to settle in the park. Gaylord left Ocean Breeze in 1929 and was unable to attend her funeral.

Olingers Plan Alaskan Trip

We have a letter from one of Stella Olinger's sisters, Ida, in which she says that she will take two weeks vacation after arriving home from Europe in two months.

Then plan to leave on their Alaskan trip May 25. They will drive to Reno, Nevada, a slight detour to Colorado and Denver, Pikes, Yosemite and Grand Lake National Parks. They will board the ship at Vancouver June 7 for an 8 day cruise to Alaska, returning via Banff, Lake Louise, Glacier and Yellowstone. Our progress thru the states will be slow as we plan to visit many friends and relatives.

Stella says that in the shopping line she will be Christmas at Lake Bend Park in Pike, so we can look forward to receiving many cards and gifts in the months.

Until we could be with them, sounds like a real interesting trip. Tom

Burned Area Is Good Hunting Ground

Snake Hunting Is Their Favorite Sport

By Alice Hickey and Ruth Bowman

Gordon (Beau) Battey, son of Mrs. Kenneth Johnson of Stuart, and his friend, Frank Ross, Stuart, arrived in Martin County last Thursday from their home in Ft. Lauderdale, to spend a couple of days pursuing their favorite sport, rattlesnake hunting.

The men searched over the 1800 acres of burned area between Jensen Beach and Rio, and in two days rounded up nine rattlesnakes, bull snake, red rat snake and a black snake. These will go to Bill Haast's Serpentarium in Miami where the rattlesnakes will be milked for their life-giving venom. The non-poisonous snakes will be used for exhibit.

HUNTERS- Gordon "Beau" Battey, left, and Frank Ross, right, hunt three or four times a year for snakes. To them this is a sport.

Battey, now the manager in charge of Aircraft Services at the International Airport in Fort Lauderdale, wrote to Ross Allen at the age of 18 asking him for a job. Allen is head of the Reptile Institute in Silver Springs. Being accepted, Battey was sent to Largo, Florida, for a six-months training period before being permitted to handle the snakes. During the ten years he worked with Allen, Battey spent two years in Mexico and one year in central South America hunting snakes.

During the 20 years he has worked with snakes, Beau estimates he has handled 100,000 and caught between 5,000 and 6,000.

Beau hunts three or four times a year, just for the "sport", he says, and to stay in practice.

In order to get pictures of the hunters with their catch, we met them as they were coming out of the woods in Rio. After showing us one of the nine rattlers, which he took from a wooden box in the rear of his station wagon, he demonstrated the milking process for us. Ross held a wine glass while Beau milked the rattler of its precious venom. We guessed that 12 to 15 drops of venom ran down into the glass, enough to kill four men, as we were told. It takes about ten days for the milk to form again, after the snake is milked. We were surprised to learn that both male and female snakes are milked.

We learned a lot from the two men concerning their hunts. They never hunt alone. Ordinary hunting clothing is worn, no special protective clothing, and their gear consists of a 42" converted golf club with a hook on the end, a shovel, a red muslin bag for carrying the snakes, and a couple of orange flags to mark holes to which they will return later in the day.

The snakes are found in burned areas hiding in gopher holes with other wildlife. Just that morning, Beau looked into a gopher hole and found himself face to face with two skunks. The same day he found a fox, a coon and a possum.

Wild animals do not run from a fire if they are small enough to find underground cover.

The men use the converted golf club to hook the snakes and pull them out of the holes. Beau carefully places his fingers behind the jaw so as not to break the small blood vessels in this area. If the blood mixes with the venom in the nearby pocket, it will render the venom useless. The venom is expelled through the snake's hollow teeth.

The venom of the snakes is used for anti-venom serum, for medicinal properties. The fat of the rattler is converted into oil to be used for artists paints. This is exported to France, we were told. The gall bladder of the snakes are exported to Formosa for medicinal purposes, and the heads are sent to various institutions throughout the world for study. The meat, regarded as a delicacy, is canned.

The rattler is a very clean snake. He eats only what he kills, rabbits, rats, and similar animals. Snakes are known to eat only every two weeks. Once a rattler strikes his prey, the latter walk about 15 feet...the snakes takes his time reaching it as he knows the animal will fall in its tracks.

The cottonmouth is a scavenger and will eat anything that is found dead.

When hunting snakes, the men pointed out that the rattler leaves a straight track. He uses the scales on his stomach to crawl and depends upon no foreign object to propel him. Other snakes make use of twigs or irregularities in the ground to propel themselves.

The men can follow the track of a rattler to his hole. If the snake is too deep to be "hooked", one of the orange flags is placed near the hole. Later the hunters return and either "hook" the snake or dig him out.

Once the snakes are bagged, the hunters are very careful not to get between the bag and the sun. It is a simple thing for the snake to strike and bite through the bag at a moving shadow.

Beau has been bitten only once, then by a cottonmouth moccasin, and was hospitalized overnight.

The largest rattle snake, measured while still alive, was 8' 3" and is in Smithsonial Institute. The second largest was 8' 2" and is in the Museum of Natural History.

A rattlesnake can strike from one-third to one-half its length, on an average. Its best strike is two-thirds of its length.

On occasion Beau and his companion have encountered linemen from Florida Power & Light Co. The linemen say: "Boy, I wouldn't want your job," and Beau and Frank retaliate with, "Boy, I wouldn't want your job," preferring their snakes to the 35,000 volts at the top of the high pole.

When asked how their families felt about their "sport" Beau told us his eight-year old twin daughters spend their leisure time playing with the family pet, a six-foot Blue Indigo snake.

As far as we're concerned, Battey and Ross were two of the most welcome visitors Martin County ever had--may they come back soon and clear the entire area of ALL snakes.

MILKING A SNAKE--The venom milked from a rattler drops into a glass as "Beau" Batte milks a snake, Frank Ross holds the glass for the demonstration. Enough venom to kill four men was extracted from this rattler. The fluid is used to make an anti-venom to save lives of snake-bitten humans.

HOW TO HOLD--Beau Battey shows the proper way to hold a snake to keep from being bitten, if anyone would like to know. The next time you pick up a snake, you'll now know how.

A RATTLER--"Beau" Battey holds one of the four-foot rattlers caught in the savannas of Jensen Beach. The sport hunters took nine snakes back to the serpentarium in Miami following a two-day hunt.

City To Contribute $3,000

County Agrees To Subsidize Ambulance

PROUD SPINNEY--Fire Chief Randolph Spinney smiles with pride as he is presented with a resolution recognizing his twenty years of service to the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department. The resolution was passed by the Martin County Commission and is presented by commissioner Frank A. Wacha. The resolution also designated the week of June 5-12 as Volunteer Fireman Week in Martin County.

Ambulance service for Martin County will be provided at an annual cost of $12,000 by a new Aycock-Baird Funeral Home which is expected to absorb the balance of the cost of operation, according to Richard R. Baird and G. Wade Aycock, Fort Pierce.

Service will start when Central Martin County Ambulance Association ends its service May 30.

Stuart City Commission has agreed to pay $3,000 of the $12,000 needed. Payments by both city and county commissions will be made monthly. The temporary homequarters, pending establishment of the funeral home, will be in quarters vacated by Central Martin County Ambulance.

Baird said the Fort Pierce funeral home would supply the first ambulance, the second and will be provided at once, and would be available on a 24-hour a day, seven-day a week basis at rates lower than private firms are charging in any area of comparison.

The county has been without a private service since Johns Funeral Home gave up its two ambulances a year ago. Volunteer services in Jensen Beach, Hobe Sound and Indiantown will continue. It was pointed out, although Aycock and Baird said their ambulances would travel as requested anywhere in the county.

Jim Humphrey, president of the Central Martin County Ambulance Association, reported that the board of directors had decided to give all assets of the association to charitable causes.

He estimated there would be between $8,000 and $9,000 in cash available after the Cadillac ambulance is sold. The Association's trailer office will also be sold.

He said the association had collected, through membership or charges, $11,498.20 since the outset of the group and through April 27, and had spent $8,784.31.

Humphrey said any Martin County residents who paid the $5 annual dues for ambulance service since Jan. 1 of this year could get a refund on a pro rata basis upon application to the association.

Humphrey said outstanding bills due were "considerable" but, "We will make a concerted effort to collect outstanding bills; we will pay our debts."

SUBSIDIZED- C. Wade Aycock, left, and Richard R. Baird discussed their proposed ambulance service to Martin County in the hallway of the county courthouse, following the decision of the county commission to subsidize the service to the tune of $9 000, which, added to the City of Stuart's $3,000 subsidy, will make an annual $12,000 subsidization of the ambulance.

Spinney "Flabbergasted" By 20-Year Recognition

Randolph Spinney stood with his mouth clamped shut and his eyes as round as a child's as, in a surprise move, the Martin County Commission Tuesday morning set aside a scheduled bid on the new Jensen Beach fire truck and instead passed a resolution commending Spinney and all volunteer firemen for their efforts. Commissioner Frank Wacha presented the resolution to Spinney, who this week celebrated twenty years of service with the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department.

"I didn't know what to say. They had me flabbergasted," Spinney said later.

The Jensen fire chief didn't know what flabbergasted meant, for on Tuesday night, while the firemen of the company took Spinney out for a fire drill, the women's auxiliary decorated the fire hall and hid in a corner as the truck and the chief returned. Spinney walked into another surprise, a party in his honor.

There was a cake, decorated with a fire hat and Spinney's name, and the firemen presented the chief with a gold watch inscribed with "R. B. Spinney, 20 years, 1967, J. B. Volunteer Fire Department" as a memento of his service. He also received a radio desk set from the members of the auxiliary. Forty firemen and their wives attended the party.

In the county commission resolution, the week of June 5-12 was set aside to recognize local volunteer firemen.

Hypnotherapist Is Denied License

Dr. Frank W. Holt, who told the county commission on Tuesday that he had practiced hypnotherapy for over 14 years, and presented credentials citing psychology degrees from universities in Italy and England, including two doctorates, was refused an occupations license by the commission on advice of counsel.

Dr. Holt was told by Dean Tooker, county attorney, that he was applying to the wrong authority. Tooker suggested he apply to the state board for an examination. Dr. Holt said he had been advised by attorney William F. Crary to seek the county occupational license.

Inlet Work Asked

Martin County commissioners Tuesday voted to seek $4,000 from the State Department of Conservation to help in the development of the new 123-feet Jupiter Island beachfront county park.

The move followed a series of suggestions offered by commissioner Frank A. Wacha, who also asked and received support, by resolution, of erosion and inlet bills in the State Legislature.

Added to the list was acceptance of an offer by commercial fishermen to help set measurement posts denoting proper commercial fishing distances from bridges and the inlet, and the new plans to seek Federal aid in the inlet project.

Wacha reported in further detail on his recent Washington trip in connection with the inlet, and, in addition to the inlet study, passed the way for an early request for further aid as warranted by late studies of new industries, research and development work.

In other business, the commission:

CLOSED county facilities, including much of the courthouse, Memorial Day, Tuesday, May 30,

PROVIDED for closing out of four $40,000 certificates of deposit and transfer of funds to county open savings accounts.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

Mother Nature works her wonders in mysterious ways. Some of the things that occur are hard to understand. The recent drought conditions in Martin and surrounding counties stand out vividly as a mysterious doing.

The effect of the drought has been widespread, taking its toll of both plant and wildlife. Concern for lawns, gardens, shrubbery, has probably been uppermost in people's minds...now emergency measures are being taken to wildlife areas for game, fish and fowl.

Unlike plants, where usually some form of care can be given, the wildlife is much more inaccessible. It presents quite a problem to try to save or help the animals and fish.

During a recent tour of this county with Wildlife Officer John Roberts, I became suddenly aware of the effect this dry spell was having on our wildlife resources. Areas that only a few months ago were completely covered with water are now dust bowls. Fish that inhabited these areas have died by the thousands, and more ponds and canals are drying up each day increasing the kill. Alligators have been forced to travel long distances to reach the remaining water holes, and many of these have succumbed along the way. Smaller game such as coons, possums, squirrels....the deer...birds of all varieties, haven't felt the effects as yet because they can move freely to better areas. But... the better areas are becoming less and less.

Locally the Game Commission is planning to blow some water holes in the back country to help preserve the wildlife. They are continuously checking known 'gator habitats, capturing and moving 'gators to existing water areas. Unfortunately, very little can be done for the fish...Transportation is a problem and fish coming from a drought area usually are not in the best of health. However, according to Game Commission chairman W. C. McBroom, pond and canal areas will be renovated and prepared for stocking when the water returns. "Bass," he stated, "will on the average grow to the one-pound size in six months and reach two pounds in a year."

The biggest event on the schedule now is National Golf Day whereby any and every golfer can play against the PGA champ Al Gelberger and Billy Casper, the National Open champ. The dates for our club are May 27, 28, 29 and 30. Players use full handicap with the ladies receiving seven additional shots.

This event in golf is all for charity. Get out and compete and donate to golf. In addition to just fun, if you beat the champ you receive a nice plastic bag tag for your golf bag, stating such. Then on May 30 for the handicap you can play against Matt Moore by putting up a small amount. Beat my score with your handicap and you get two new balls of your choice.

In the Indian River League held at Vero Beach Sunday, Martin County finished second gaining three points. The host club, Vero Beach, was first with five points. Fort Pierce Indian Hills Club got one point for third, and the other club, St. Lucie Country Club, finished fourth with zero points. St. Lucie is new in the league and will be better represented at the next meet which will be held at St. Lucie Country Club.

In the Blitz the winning team was Larry Timmons, Don St. Onge, Clyde Gibson and Ray Unsel with a net score of 55 which is sorta tough to beat.

Starting the 8th of June at 4 p.m., we will have twilight golf which is a mixed foresome affair. Couples can tee off up to 5:30 p.m. A Scotch foresome is the first scheduled event.

Sunday, June 4th is our Husband and Wife championship using combined low net for scoring.

June 10 and 11 will be the Buick Open Tourney with low gross and low net prizes.

LESSON

GOLF CLUBS TO FIT THE INDIVIDUAL

Fifty years of manufacturing golf clubs, and the mass production of our modern day, has set certain standards as to golf club construction.

A standard length has had to be adopted as every set would need special construction.

The driver in a stock set of clubs is 43 inches long. The number two iron is relatively the same length, and three and four woods are a half inch shorter than the driver, and a little heavier, so that they can be balanced to the driver as to feel.

The stock number two iron is thirty-eight and one-half or thirty-nine inches long, depending on the manufacturer, and as you go down through the set to the sand wedge, each club has four degrees more loft.

The lie of a club is classified as medium, upright or flat. Medium is the standard; upright and flat are the variations.

Each club in a set has a different lie. The longer the club, the flatter the lie. The driver has the flattest lie, the nine iron the most upright. The manufacturer sets the lie as to hozel angle. With the woods, the lie is built in, and can't be changed, but with the irons, the lie can be adjusted by using a bending iron.

There are two weights to be considered, the overall weight and the swing weight. The overall weight is the true weight. The swing weight is a balance among the clubs, and should be constant throughout a set. Without getting too technical, the overall weight and swing weight are determined by the shaft weight and tension.

Shafts have four classifications: stiff, medium, light and ladies. The degree of flex is like a rubber band. If you are strong physically and have a lot of whip in your swing, you need stiff shafts. The average male golfer would use a medium shaft.

If slight of build, a man would use the light or flexible shaft. Ladies' golfers should use the ladies' flex, unless really strong physically, in which case they might use the light men's flex.

Use as light a club as you can handle, as the speed of the club determines the distance you hit the ball. Use as much flex as you can tolerate, as the flex is like wrist action and adds kick to the ball.

Remember the size that fits you is the shaft that fits you. See your pro. He'll see that you get a correct fit.

Fantastic Fishing Is Forecast

Fantastic snook fishing is expected the early part of June when the dog-faced eels arrive up the branches of the St. Lucie River. Snook fishing now is excellent but limited to a few hours daily. Big ones hitting at night, mostly; bridge anglers hit a couple of dozen over 25 pounds between midnight and 1 a.m., the other night, a common event. Trollers doing well on wiggly plugs.

Good sized Spanish mackerel in small schools off inlet, medium sized false albacore sometimes with them, sometimes in small schools; big schools of blue runners mixed up with both, making fishing somewhat wild, particularly on light tackle.

Plenty of jack crevalle upstream, some in widely separated schools around inlet areas.

Drought has kept inlet to ends of both branches of St. Lucie River heavily salted, so such fish as Spanish mackerel, blues, blue runners, being caught way up the rivers.

Tarpon up to 40 lbs. being taken in North and South Forks.

Surf good for blues, also some whiting and jacks.

Offshore, dolphin particularly plentiful, also false albacore. Sails spotty for week or so; those taken appear to be no further out than four miles.

B-2 Commercial Requested

Light Industry Zoning Denied Port Salerno

Martin County Zoning and Planning Board last week denied a request to authorize a change from R-3-A semi-commercial zoning to a light-industry zone at the north end of the Port Salerno commercial area. However, the denial was connected with a request to expand the zone to B-2 commercial in a wide area.

The expanded zone would permit retail, wholesale and distributing businesses, including warehouses and storage yards, bottling works, repair shops, laundries and wood-working shops, drive-in theaters and similar businesses.

Elton Schwarz, attorney representing R. E. Crane, made the request. Crane's fish business would be included in the area. He is the object of a suit filed last week by the county in which county attorney Dean Tooker sought to determine whether or not he was in the wholesale fish business.

Crane, at the zoning hearing, admitted for the record that he sold surplus catches not readily saleable in the store on the wholesale basis.

Ben Medley, proprietor of The Country Store, applicant for the M-1 industrial zone change, said he wanted to construct a building in which to put 145-lb. kits of auto parts, manufactured in California, on chassis of cars here. They are to be sold as "The Meyers Mite."

Medley said he applied for any proper zoning, not specifically for industrial zoning.

County engineer Fred Bell said he doubted M-1 zoning was needed, then at that point Schwarz entered the picture. The latter was given the task of notifying all land owners within 300 feet of the area to be specified in the zoning change request.

In other business, the board adopted:

A new zone, R-2-T in which mobile homes may be used for dwellings under special three-year permits issued by the Board of Adjustment, providing homes are built by the end of the period. The zone was established for depressed areas and each permit was deemed non-transferrable.

The first such zone was established for an area in Booker Park.

An area of 120 acres which someday may be on the access road to a new Jupiter Island State Park was changed from R-2-B, single family residential and interim, to R-3-A, a liberal multiple family residential district, on request of Wm. F. Kock, Jr., speaking on behalf of South Winnipeg, Ltd., a Canadian firm in which former Lord Mayor of London, Sir Denys Lowson, has an interest. The firm expects to construct a mobile home park on the land.

Approved was an application by Roger M. Skillman for changes on Rocky Point facing the Intracoastal Waterway, from R-4 to HB-1-A to permit motels, hotels, condominiums and marinas, and the area was enlarged on request by at least one other unidentified owner.

Also approved was a request by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Fifield, Jensen Beach, which would change a C-1 commercial zone to a R-3-A zone, upgrading to permit apartment construction.

An announcement was made by chairman of the board Howard Haid that a special committee named by Games Garvey to study Hutchinson Island zoning would meet with the zoning board June 1 at 7:30 p.m. to make its report. This will be a public work session of the board.

At the request of Bell, Haid agreed to attend County Water Management Board meetings as a representative of the zoning board. The next meeting will be June 5.

A plat for a trailer park off SR 76 between the turnpike and Kansas Ave. was approved subject to a change in number of trailers to be permitted before a central sewage plant is constructed.

A health department representative at the meeting noted that the plat called for 19 trailers before such plant construction; the law, he said, is for not over eight trailers.

The board approved a change to PS, a public service category, on 320 acres of land owned by Sidney Grien, Port Salerno, on Martin Grade four miles west of the Turnpike and one mile north of the Grade for use as a county dump.

Actions by the zoning board are subject to approval by the county commission following two hearings.

Violations Charged

Two out of county men were arrested during the past week by local conservation officers for salt water violations.

Arrested for towing a water skier without proper equipment was R. L. Packard of Ft. Lauderdale. The arrest was made by Agent John Peters in the Manatee Pocket.

Also arrested was L. C. Jones of Bryant, Florida, for possession of crawfish out of season. The arrest was made by Conservation Agent R. C. Byrd at Randall's Boat Basin.

Byrd also commented on the new beach buggy acquired by the department for beach patrols. During the coming months while turtle season is in effect it will prove especially helpful for covering the miles of beach that must be patrolled.

Zoning Violation Charged

A Bill of Discovery suit was filed last week against Robert H. Crane, Port Salerno fisherman and fishing business operator, by Martin County.

The suit, filed in circuit court, was instituted so Crane could be questioned through a probe of his records, papers, deposits, bank books and journals, according to county attorney Dean Tooker.

The action was authorized by the county commission at its last meeting when Tooker told the board court action would be necessary to fight an alleged zoning violation.

Crane has a fish business on a Manatee Pocket creek. The building, which was constructed under an application for a sports goods shop, is being used as a wholesale fish house. This is a zoning violation, the county says.

Card Parties Planned

Two June parties are being planned by Jensen Beach Women's Association. On Tuesday, June 13, a luncheon card party will be held at St. Lucie Country Club.

A dessert card party will be held Monday, June 19 at the club house. Reservations for these parties may be made by calling Mrs. Marie Miller, 287-4943, or Mrs. Hazel Forsberg, 287-3455.

The next regular meeting of the club will be Monday, June 5. At that time a proposed amendment to the by-laws, regarding discontinuance of July and August meetings, will be presented.

Breaks Reported

Weekend breaks in eastern Martin County were reported by both the sheriff's department and Stuart police department.

Bruce Lee Hooks, 20, of Camden St., Stuart, was arrested by city police and charged with breaking and entering at Pure Oil Co. on the corner of Colorado and Flagler. About $93 of the $101.28 taken, was recovered, Hooks admitted the break to Deputy Sheriff Jack Curry and Patrolman Orvis Yawn.

Breaks were also reported at the home of Lawrence Bryant, Hobe Sound, where three panes of glass and five pennies were taken; and at Luckhart Construction Co., Flagler Ave; and the home of G. C. Stone, Orchid Drive, Fonciana Gardens. Nothing was reported missing at the two latter places.

e many weaknesses in the present on Island zoning code. The present ugh, could be the proper plan for the owth of Martin County's beach, with changes.

It is true that trends in building and development will develop over the years. It is an old saw among island buffs that the zoning there must be tight, for nothing has happened out there.

We hope that the Martin County Zoning Board takes a long look at the present zoning, and that the citizen's committee, headed by James A. Garvey, looks long and hard at the present plan of zoning on the island. It might be a proper vehicle through which recommendations can be made.

Howard Hald, chairman of the zoning board, has said that there is nothing wrong with the present zoning plan, except that it should have greater restrictions on building. He added that proper development would come through proper planning. "We must be able to live with what we build today twenty years from now. That is our goal," Hald said.

We believe that change for the sake of change is wrong. Sometimes an updated plan is better than a new one.

Annex Port St. Lucie?

is a feeling among the people of County that the people of Port St. ust north of the county line in St. ounty, are "our kind of people", d more people discuss, more and ently, the possibility of that mas- nned city being urged to ask an- into this county.

is also a possibility that the people St. Lucie are thinking along those mselves.

ecreational activities of Martin Coun- l to the people of Port St. Lucie, y of them have made this county a their social life. They fish here, it and fresh water, and they are the clubs and organizations here. one will immediately realize that down, drag racing, fight between the forces of St. Lucie and Martin would ensue if the people of Port e decided to make the move to be That is why we are bringing the subject into the open for the first time.

There will be two years between now and the next legislature. During those two years we hope that the people of that fine city to the north search their consciences and discuss the possibility of joining this county.

We know that relations between the county and the town officials of Port St. Lucie have been cordial, and we know that there is a friendship that exists between the people of the south part of St. Lucie County and Martin County.

We also recognize that St. Lucie County would lose much taxable property if Port St. Lucie were to ask for annexation. This would be a bitter pill to swallow.

Martin County cannot annex, but the people of Port St. Lucie can ask. That would be the first step.

It is an interesting thought...one that is continually popping up. We wonder what the people think.

e recent legislative hearing, held in nty courthouse, Frank Wacha, county issioner, said that there was no plan I-95 through Martin County, and s county would be losing considerable revenue in road millage if the gas tax formula was changed, because there are no turnoffs on the toll Sunshine State Parkway, and the parkway is to be the route of I-95 through this county.

That we suddenly have a search for a prospective route under way means that we might have reached someone with his comments.

The route of I-95 needs considerable planning. The number of people and the number of communities to be served is the ultimate goal, for the highway can be a boon to the coastal communities as well as a fast freeway route from town to town.

We know that the SRD planners will give every consideration to the route of I-95. We hope that they realize that everyone in this county who loves J-D Park will oppose any move to destroy part of it.

American city has underground 'down- for nearly 100 years' re from Atlanta, Ga., obably don't know (or until you saw it in ent Sunday paper), right; it's Atlanta. ent some time there ver heard of it, there or elsewhere. The fact that it's mostly abandoned shouldn't alter it--a six-block section sits "dark and gloomy now under the rumble of downtown traffic." It was used from the Civil War til the 'Gaslight era'. Now, with modern lighting and ventilation, the cobblestones may soon feel the return of busy feet. Imagine that! I didn't know such a marvelous work of man existed... and I'd been there, walked over it, and I didn't know!

If you know where Atlanta's Alabama and Broad St. intersect, you know the overhead area. If you know the 1st National Bank's location, you know, too. The 41-story bank's foundation is still using the original bank (the Lowry Bank) which still stands in the Underground.

Six city blocks with streets and all, make it the biggest fallout shelter that I know of in any urban area. No wonder many shout: "The South Will Rise Again!" If we get bombed, this country will be a true, modern day "Atlantis", because that will be about the only place where a large population could survive.

If you hear an air raid siren and find shelter, you'd better start brushing up on "Dixie", because that's what you'll have to sing when you come out--I hope. It beats the "Internationale".

Minute With Social Security

Whenever possible, The Mirror will print this column as a public service to its readers. Send questions to "A Minute With Social Security", 1804 Okeechobee Rd., Ft. Pierce. All questions will receive a personal answer.

Q. Medicare has been here almost a year and I'm still confused. Does the period of time for the $50 deductible on doctors' bills run from July to July, or from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31?

A. It was just a coincidence that Congress passed Medicare effective July 1, 1966. The $50 deductible applies each year from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31 (on a calendar year basis). Just treat 1966 as a "short year" of six months for which the regular $50 deductible applied.

Q. Do I pay this $50 deductible to the Social Security Administration just as I have to pay the first $40 to the hospital in each spell of illness?

A. You never pay social security any money, except for your regular $3 a month premium payments for medical insurance. The $50 deductible means that you must first have $50 worth of doctor and-or medical expenses BEFORE medicare will reimburse you for the 80% of all reasonable charges on medical expenses over and above that first $50 per year.

Application Approved

Application by the committee for Operation Headstart Funds has been approved by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity, through its Atlanta regional office, according to Dr. Cecil E. Boast, president of Martin County Community Action Committee last week.

A budget of $43,940 for 150 children was approved for eight weeks at four facilities, including East Stuart, Hobe Sound, Warfield and Port Salerno Elementary Schools.

The program, to start June 19, will be directed by Eli Howell, Murray Junior-Senior High School. Allotted funds provide for complete medical examinations, including follow-up examinations.

The grant was made subject to usual terms and conditions.

LIVE....and love it by Dick Campbell

One Year Ago, A Bomb

It certainly doesn't seem like a year ago, but it was. It seems more like ten years ago when glass and flames spewed over the floor and up the walls of The Mirror office. One year ago.

I remember my first sight of the flames as I came out of the office. I froze in the doorway. The entire south wall of the office was aflame. The flames rolled across the ceiling toward me. They cracked and roared, and were halfway across the room.

Howard Hald punched me in the back and said, "Grab the fire extinguisher." He ran out the door for the hose. There was more confusion.

The fire extinguisher ran out before the flames, and the garden hose became our only tool. I called the fire department and they were there in moments.

I still think about that night, when someone bombed The Mirror. I am not overly brave, and I like to kid a lot. But that night I was frightened. A molotov cocktail in the window of a newspaper, shattering the peaceful night of Jensen Beach, and uncovering the hate that lay hidden in the county.

We still haven't found who did it. We do have little bits and pieces of information that seem to form a part of a pattern. Some day we may be able to pin point it. Special Investigator Tom Wyatt has been holding on to everything he could get. Some day we'll find who paid for, or who did the bombing.

It had to be concerned with politics, for that was the only heated issue of the time. It had to be over issues of that election, for they were prominent and bitter. Beyond that, who knows.

One year later The Mirror is still in business, with the same staff doing the same things...putting out a newspaper.

As I look over the issue of May 26, 1966, I try to remember the aftermath of the bombing, but everything is fading into the soft, sweet oblivion of memory. Much has happened since then, and we forget.

The sight is still vivid, but the effect is wearing off. We no longer spotlight the office, and we sleep easily now.

It has been a long time since The Mirror was hit, and it will probably be a long time before it happens again. I think the bomber ended up more frightened than we were. And he knows we are still looking for that one break that will put him in prison.

One year ago, a few pages in history.

Temporarily Stalled By Complaints

Flood Control Plan May Get Off Ground

Martin County's $15.5 million multi-purpose flood control plan has received a vote of confidence by the Martin County Water Management board, and is about to be "kicked off", according to Robert Padrick, board member of Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District.

The plan had been temporarily stalled by complaints of southeastern county men, unidentified. Their objections, in a letter to the Atlantis office of the U.S. Corps of Engineers, was in the deletion of Southeastern County works from an earlier plan. One unnamed man was a citrus grove company president, the other a plumber who owned three lots in a subdivision near Port Salerno, who apparently had no interests in the Loxahatchee River area where protested canals and control structures were removed from plans.

Water board members emphasized, however, that Tom Garland, former board member and operating head of Hobe Grove Associates, Ltd., was not the protesting grovesman.

"Garland has his own water plan and would rather not have the FCD works there," said Charles H. (Chuck) Kidder and Levi M. Johnson, board members.

The letters were written, explained William Storch, FCD engineer, following the April 11 hearing at which general approval was stated and objections recorded for correction of real or imagined ills in the plan.

Storch and Padrick met with the water board last week after Ed Ball, executive-director of FCD had asked for a speedy meeting and decision on the flood control plan.

Philip (Bill) Lund, Jupiter, who had led the initial fights to preserve the Northwest Fork of the Loxahatchee River, was at the board meeting.

Lund said he felt conservationists in the Loxahatchee area could resolve any problems concerning the protests. He said his group certainly had not done it.

Padrick said if Martin County participates, particularly commissioners and water board members, asked him to do it, he would file a protest but predicted another year's delay in the implementation of the plan.

"I'd do it with the utmost reluctance," said Padrick.

Johnny Crawford, board member, made the motion to re-affirm approval of the plan; Johnson seconded the motion. The vote was unanimous with Jack Norris, chairman; Ed Mapp and Kindred joining in the vote. Also present were county attorney Dean Tooker and Fred L. Bell, county engineer, as was county commissioner J. W. Hussey. Not present were George Oliver and E. C. Matson.

It was pointed out that C-131, the so-called Lake Okeechobee charger canal for C-23 and C-24 canals, was still in the plan on a contingent basis, depending on results of the overall South Florida water needs study, just about underway.

(NB: Arthur Marshall, River Basin division U.S. Wildlife Service, whose office is at Vero Beach, said last week he would be working almost exclusively on the water study for the next two months. It was assumed other services directed to take part would be working on it at or about the same time.)

The Water Management Board took other actions at the recent meeting including agreement to follow a suggestion by Bell that a study be made of possible wide area water management districts.

Bell outlined these areas as, possibly, that bounded by U.S. 1, SR 76 and Monterey Rd. to the South County line or the State Park; one possibly including only the area of the Poppleton Creek watershed; one possibly including only the South Fork of the St. Lucie River north of SR 706.

"Water uses in these areas need coordinating, as much as flood control is needed," Bell said. He was told by the board to proceed with planning.

Bell also discussed salinity controls to be built on ditch mouths to salt or brackish waterways.

The next meeting of the board will be at the courthouse June 5 at 8 p.m.

Inlet Survey May Be Updated

Discussions held by county commissioner Frank A. Wacha at Washington three days last week could result in an updated survey of St. Lucie Inlet, possibly a new one.

Wacha reported that he conferred with Sen. Spessard Holland, Rep. Paul G. Rogers and staff members of Public Works Committees of both the House and Senate.

Col. S. W. Pinnell, U.S. Corps of Engineers staff member outlined steps which should be taken by the county to update the survey made in recent years, or to lead to a new survey, Wacha said.

He was told that the adoption of the inlet as a Federal maintenance project, plus the initial survey made by the Corps to lead to a safer inlet, could be considered Phase I of the project.

Col. R. P. Tabb, Jacksonville District engineer of the Corps, would be asked by the Washington Corps office to provide a breakdown of figures to show Federal share costs attributable to navigation and to erosion control, according to Wacha.

"Possibly data to be supplied by the University of Florida study could lead to updating of the inlet study," Wacha said.

The visit was intended to pave the way for inlet improvement at as early a date as possible, he explained.

"Both Sen. Holland and Rep. Rogers said they would be willing to ask the respective Public Works committees to set new studies if they can be justified on the basis of more need of a better or safer inlet," Wacha said.

Law Books Reconditioned

About 4,000 books in the Martin County law library on the second floor of the courthouse have been reconditioned in a program to improve the library, according to Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge.

The contractor agreed to clean and coat the bookcovers of 2,000 books for $540 but instead did all books in the library, estimated at 4,000, for that price, he said.

The county now has the best library facilities in its history, with two new tables placed in the room, and several chairs moved there.

The valley was quite level and we saw wheat being threshed by a threshing machine, also some peas or beans being threshed in the primitive way. Several men were spreading the pea vine on the ground for horses to trample with their feet. The horses were hitched four abreast, the inner horse being fastened to a stake. As the horses went round and round the men were turning the pea straw till all the peas were threshed out. The men were working in shifts. One shift was having lunch and they invited us to join them, which I thought was very nice.

After leaving the valley we crossed another hilly piece of country with it's usual winding roads. About 4 P.M. our car rounded a shoulder of a mountain and there before us and below us was the city we had heard so much about, Oaxaca, pronounced Wa-ha-ka, with the accent on the second last syllable, as usual. With the lowering sun lighting the city below, it looked so beautiful, but when we drove into it we found it was not much different to other Mexican cities. The most popular hotel was full, so we backtracked and located at the Victoria Motel on the hillside overlooking the city. This was a lovely new and modern motel but rather expensive - $20.00 a day including meals. However we had a very comfortable cottage to ourselves on a steep slope over-looking the valley, and the food was excellent. Just the opposite to the accommodation we had the previous night. After a good dinner we sat out on the verander watching the lights of the city below and wondering what the next day had in store for us.

Tyrees Announce Daughter's Engagement

Mr. & Mrs. Dwight (Ty) Tyree of Cypress Drive were guests of Mr. & Mrs. Lawrence Moore of Winchester, Mass. for four days last week. While there, an engagement party was held in the Moore residence. The Tyrees announced the engagement of their daughter, Margie, to Pfc. Ronald Moore to the 65 guests assembled.

Miss Tyree, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, now resides with her parents in Ocean Breeze Park and is employed at Martin Memorial Hospital, Stuart.

Her fiance was attending college at the time of his enlistment. He is now home on leave from Fort Hood, Texas and expects to leave for Viet Nam this summer. When he returns, wedding arrangements will be planned.

Ty said their visit was a complete surprise to Margie. They were able to fly non-stop to Boston from Miami. Winchester is a suburb of Boston.

Marty Koitzsch Writes

Cheltenham, Pa., May 11
Dear Tom & Nel,

Had a moment this cold, rainy evening and decided to partially fulfill my promise to you. Am terribly handicapped without my normally trustworthy Baby Corona. It's in the shop for a mechanical appendectomy of some kind. They promised to have it out of surgery pronto. Apparently there must have been a re-stitching of a torn ribbon; special therapy for relaxing the marginal release; extra exploratory general observation - or what not. Anyway I'm weeping for Baby Corona - am lost without her.

Another factor prompting this bit of nonsense was the amusing letter received from the Dillers. Their place in Lyndel (near Downingtown, Pa.) is a seven acre paradise of rolling landscape, formal gardens and rustic wood with creek. The Dillers' special delight is their vegetable and fruit garden. As you will gather from their letter enclosed, their problem has been, "Can we physically continue with this fun". According to their letter the answer is apparently a strong and happy Yes.

Al Winegard was operated on today. Folks both North and South are rooting for him and Martha. They are swell folks. More when my 'Baby' returns.

Cheerio,
Marty Koltzsch.

Scotts Visit St. Petersburg

Walter and Alva Scott went for a three-day trip across the state for a change of scenery. While in St. Petersburg, the Scotts stayed at the A.A.R.P. Hospitality House and were quite impressed with it. It is located downtown near the junction of Central and First. Walter said they have very reasonable rates for AARP members and the hotel is very comfortable.

The rooms do not have individual televisions but there is a nice set in the lobby, also there is a writing room and a games room. The Gulf station, close by, provides car parking for 75 cents per day and a good restaurant is within walking distance.

One day they took the bus trip from their hotel to Busch Gardens, and another day they drove to Clearwater and had dinner at the famous Kapok Tree Inn. This tree is 30 feet in circumference and has a spread of 200 feet.

Walter said the weather was fine, but both thought it was hotter there than on this side of the state.

Many Deer Seen In Wis.

Webb Lake, Wis., May 16, 7 a.m., temp. 40 degrees.
Dear Tom & Nellie,

We arrived home Sunday, May 14. The people who opened up our house didn't turn the water on for fear of freezing the pipes. The grass cutting was no problem. It has been too cold to grow, the leaves are just starting to bud. The driving up here is quite hazardous due to the largest number of deer we have ever seen. We counted 16 in a field two miles from us, and altogether we must have seen 25-30 deer in that one trip.

On our way up we took in the boat ride at the Okeefenoke Swamp. We were told that if rain didn't come soon they would have to discontinue them boat trips as the water was so low.

We stopped overnight at Franklin and spent the evening with the Burks. Claud had not got his garden in yet. He said it has been too cold.

It is very dry up here in spite of the heavy snow of last winter. The lake levels are high.

As ever,
Bob

Dillers Are Gardening In Pa.

Lyndel, Pa. May 6-67
Hi Everybody,

It will be two weeks tomorrow since we arrived. The country is just beautiful and the grass is badly in need of cutting again. I had great hopes of getting the fertilizer on the garden today but it is raining. To really get me in the humor the strawberry plants and the seeds arrived this morning, so you can see I'm raring to go.

We have had several messes of asparagus and the rhubarb is ready--I can see you all drooling. To say nothing of the blossoms on the strawberries.

My neighbor plowed the snow in our drive last winter and pushed a lot of the stones in the grass. I intend to tell him not to bother next winter. The mower doesn't cut the stones too well, so it took me best part of a day to rake it back into the drive.

I failed to tell you in paragraph two that I had m on the riding mower. She did a swell job and I am sure glad I brought her along. I also failed to mention the dogwood was in bloom as well as a lot of spring flowers. We'll have lilacs by the middle of the week. Just beats all how business keeps up.

The man who was to paint the house has not come, so now I have to look for another painter. Just another of my problems.

Well I guess that's about it - just wanted to tell you that we are not putting the house on the market - at least not for the time being, so put your money back into your pocket.

Our best to all of you,
Cliff & Clara Diller

Motor Trouble Causes Cassidys To Return

John and Mae Cassidy packed their Cadillac and, full of optimism, started on their journey to Dracet, Mass., the morning of May 11. They had gotten within four miles of Yeehaw Junction when their car began to labor, then came to a dead stop. The car was hauled to a garage in Yeehaw. This is a bus stop boasting four gas stations, a restaurant, a motel and a saloon. If I remember right, it used to be called Desert Centre, which wasn't a bad name, for altho the surrounding country is not productive and it can hardly be called a desert, there is not a town within 30 or more miles.

What I am getting at - could one pick a worse place to have a breakdown. Apparently, a year ago in a new motor had been installed in this '55 Cadillac, but the 'mechanic' had failed to connect the oil pipe. Even a Cadillac refuses to run without sufficient oil, and the main bearing seized.

The garage said they would get another motor and in the meantime the Cassidys took a room in the motel. Day followed day with no progress in getting their car fixed, so by Monday, being unable to stand the 95 degree heat and the monotony any longer, John phoned the park and one of his neighbors, Gordon Burdick, drove out and brought them back to the park.

Today, May 16, when interviewing the Cassidys, I asked Mrs. Cassidy when they will be leaving. She replied, "I'm so glad to get back here, and now I have everything back in place, I don't care if we never leave."

BACK-YARD PICNIC--While on my rounds last Thursday, I noticed this group busily 'filling their faces'. It was a hot day but delightfully cool in the shade of this mahogany tree in Wilder Weeks' back yard. Wilder is fond of music and background music was being supplied by his stereo record player in the trailer. The group includes Margaret Weeks, Janice Weeks (daughter), Wilder, Maurice Reverdy and Flora Reverdy. Janice Weeks is recuperating from a recent operation.

Sgt. Pischl On Leave

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Pischl of North Fourth had the pleasure of a visit from one of their sons for ten days, Sgt. 1st class Edward V. Pischl, after completing a year's service in Viet Nam, had some leave coming.

Edward has served in the army for 18 years and has now returned to Japan for another two years, after which he will be retired.

As Sgt. 1st class, he was in charge of communications at Qui Nhon, Viet Nam, for the past year.

Of later years, he has received two commendation awards, the last one was with the First Oak Leaf cluster.

Mr. and Mrs. Pischl's other son, Adolph, Jr., is in New York where he is concert master at the Juilliare School of Music.

HOME FROM VIET NAM--Sgt. Edward V. Pischl is home from Viet Nam and recently visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Pischl, North Fourth. Above, Col. Fitzpatrick presents commendation award and medal to Pischl.

FEA Sanctions May Be Adopted

Teacher Strike Not Expected Here

A teacher strike is not expected in Martin County, not even for one day, according to Supt. of Schools Thomas L. Crook, who said he could find no sympathy among members of the Martin County Classroom Teachers Association favoring a strike.

"The sanctions proposed by Florida Education Association probably will be adopted or furthered here," he added.

The possibility of a strike was raised by the FEC in a series of meetings attended by its members in a series of regional meetings held May 15.

Local representatives of CTA who attended a Vero Beach meeting held conflicting views following the sessions there. "We talked about sanctions but not strike," said one. Another indicated strike had been mentioned but not adopted as a policy.

The teacher salary index adopted here last year for the 1966-67 term, Crook pointed out, was based on a $5,000 minimum pay for starting teachers, higher than the state average and much higher than many counties in Florida.

He said the school board had already indicated nothing could be done on the local level and that salary increases were dependant on state action.

However, Weldon D. Allison, CTA president here, headed a delegation of teachers who presented demands for a six-point salary increase program early in April. A minimum starting base of $6,000 was sought in that program.

The school's finance officer, F. M. Boatright, estimated the increase would total $278,000 for the coming fiscal year, an increase of about one and a half mills to be borne locally by real estate taxpayers, if adopted.

Other demands included a new hospital-life insurance program; full pay for sick leave allowances at retirement, relief from baby sitting at school lunch hours, two pay checks in September and a sabbatical leave program.

Similar fringe benefits were asked in other area counties.

Crook pointed out that M.C. schools are allowed only 199 teaching units on the state-aid scale. "We have 225 teachers," he said. "This means we pay all on the average of 26 teachers."

Veon Spencer, a St. Lucie County teacher, recently reported that per pupil expense in Martin County was comparatively high at $510.57 per pupil. St. Lucie's figure is $440.74 per year, and Indian River County's comparative figure is $514.52. Of the three counties, he said, St. Lucie is granted the most money from Federal and State contributions.

Recently, Joe Greenlees, chairman of the local school board, pointed out that other school system needs were being omitted to provide teacher raises; for example, the $200 increase in the current pay scale.

The teacher walk-out was not listed on the FEA sanction sheet but could be penciled in a space provided, according to a CTA member.

Some of the teacher-feeling in opposition to even a one-day walk-out here stems from adverse comments about the Murray Junior-Senior High School walkout of nine-days.

One teacher said, "We can't afford to act like a bunch of striking pupils; it just isn't professional."

Several local board members are more critical of the State Department of Education than of either the FEA or the CTA, including local groups of both.

As one spokesman put it, "If they would wipe out the deadwood in the State Department and move in some creative thinkers, get rid of the entrenched bureaucrats who are strangling the schools of the state, they wouldn't need this whole state upset over salaries. Taxpayers and school boards would be fighting to increase salaries if the whole system from top to bottom were shaken up."

D.A.R. SPEAKER--Mrs. O. G. Koski, Miami, past regent of Cape Florida Chapter D.A.R., was guest speaker at the May 18 meeting of Halpatiokee Chapter held at the home of Mrs. Charles Greenlees, with Mrs. George Jones and Mrs. Grace Steelman as co-hostesses. Mrs. Koski is the sister of Mrs. James A. Garvey, registrar and program chairman. Mrs. Edna Conant was installed as regent for the next two years. Departing regent is Mrs. D. P. DeBerry. A Good Citizenship Award certificate and pin were presented to Miss Mary Sue Shelton. Mrs. Grant Chamberlain was accepted as a new member.

Fish Net Captures Runaway Ski Boat

In the crew's recorded accident, an old fish net was used to halt a runaway ski boat in Manatee Pocket, Port Salerno, after a 16-foot boat carrying a 25 hp outboard threw its owner overboard, according to Deputy Sheriff Daniel Grimes.

Witnesses said the boat, owned by George Seifert who was thrown into the water and the vessel identified as "Smiley" was turning in tight circles at about 20 feet when the Dept. of Conservation Boat Launch cut off with no control from agents and two U.S. Coast Guardsmen aboard, tried to board the runaway.

Grimes, on shore with the dog set to hunt, fired a shot into the air to get the attention of the would-be rescue quartet. On the first heave, the net spread across the runaway's path and the engine came to a grinding halt.

One of the crew members was also thrown overboard while trying to throw a line into the prop of the craft.

Voltz Injured, Car Accident

Ervin Voltz, 50, of Fair Lake Park, was taken to Martin Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries received when a car, driven by Gary Selin, 23, Rio, struck him Friday at 11:45 a.m.

The accident occurred on Baker Road, according to Deputy Sheriff Morgan Sprott, who investigated. He said Selin started the car, his foot slipped from the brake to the accelerator, and the car jumped ahead, hitting Voltz.

Citrus Label Hearing Denied

Circuit Court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge has denied a new hearing of the William E. Owens case against the Florida Citrus Commission and the Indian River Citrus League, both of which had filed motions seeking to overturn a decision in favor of Owens.

Owens won injunctive action against FCC and IRCL which enables him to continue use of the Indian River Citrus label on his Dancy-grown fruit.

Two miles south of SR-708 on U.S. 1, Hobe Sound, a car driven by Richard Hudnet, 24, Jupiter, traveling south, slammed into the rear of a car driven by Helen S. Fox, Port Salerno. Deputy Sheriff Morgan Sprott said the Fox car was halted because of the heavy rain in that area Monday, and because of windshield wiper trouble.

John J. Moran, 54, Fort Pierce, was injured in a one-car accident on Roosevelt Bridge Friday afternoon.

City patrolman Orris Yawn reported that Moran lost control of his car on the curve entering the bridge at its south end. It hit first one side, then the other. Damages to the car were estimated at $800. Moran was taken to Martin Memorial Hospital and was charged with careless driving.

County forces included George Grimm, assistant to the county engineer, with two men and three pieces of equipment. Saunderson said the operation removed the last big concentration of junk vehicles. Future removals will be required of property owners through enforcement of Martin County's zoning regulations.

I-95 Controversy Begins In County

Saturday, the State Road Board announced it had voted to build 42 miles of Interstate-95 through parts or all of Indian River, St. Lucie, Martin and Palm Beach Counties in a route paralelling the turnpike's present I-95 status.

The so-called missing link stretch between the north St. Lucie County line and Donald Ross Road in Palm Beach County will be removed from the turnpike and built generally east of U.S. #1.

The move by the SRB was called a "surprise recommendation" at the meeting held at Fort Walton Beach.

Charles Hopkins, Interstate liaison engineer with the SRB, said recently in letters to local protestors that the department was merely studying alternate routes, that no route was "settled" and that particularly, "the department does not want to do damage to Jonathan Dickinson State Park."

Here, it would enter the county in the Savannas west of Jensen Beach, travel in a southerly direction, crossing the St. Lucie River at the Stuart easterly city limits, cutting between the Martin County Golf and Country Club and the airport, swinging southwesterly to run the north-south length of Jonathan Dickinson State Park along Kitchen's Creek and into Palm Beach County for a seven-mile stretch, meeting with present I-95 commitments.

A storm of protest has arisen in Martin County by conservation-minded groups because of the ruination predicted for the State Park.

The State Park Board, the Izaak Walton League of Florida, State Comptroller Fred O. (Bud) Dickinson, Audubon authorities and others have protested the route through the state park.

Plans released Friday indicated Martin County's newest state park area, the 200-acre Jensen Savannas State Park, dedicated only last year to recreation and conservation, appeared to be directly on the route of I-95. As close as the route could be plotted from indefinite maps, it would take off across the St. Lucie River just west of Ralph Evinrude's home on the north shore of the river and come down on the shore at a point between Snug Harbor and St. Lucie Estates just east of the Stuart easterly city limits.

Michael O'Neill, District 4 SRB member, told the board at Fort Walton Beach he was confident authorization for the new route could be obtained.

Hopkins, departing from his previous "study only" stand said a year-long study by the road department indicated "clearly" that the I-95 route and the turnpike should be separated and that traffic remaining on the pike would still be more than adequate to retire outstanding bonds on the 35-year maturity schedule.

The turnpike bond covenant which forbids construction of paralelling freeways, has been called of no force by the courts and not binding on later road boards or turnpike officials who did not make such a guarantee.

Under the schedule as suggested Friday, large right-of-way purchases would be made on the new route this year and next, including all of the route in Indian River, St. Lucie, Martin and Palm Beach counties.

Seventeen miles of the route would be built in 1968-69, another 25 miles in 1969-70 and the balance in 1970-71, at least in this area. The entire route in Florida is expected to be completed by 1972.

BURNING BAN RETURNS

Gov. Claude Kirk has reissued the burning ban proclamation in Martin County, through Bill Gilbert of the State Forest Service. There will be no burning, even with a permit, until this area is free from fire hazard. The notification came on Tuesday night.

State President Here

Jaycees Install Johnston; Csongedi Is Jaycee Of Year

Joe Parrott, state president of the Florida Jaycees, installed Ron Johnston as president of the Stuart Jaycees last Saturday night, as the reins of leadership changed hands in the young men's organization. Honored as Jaycee Of The Year was Frank Csongedi.

Johnston set a goal of 70 or more members for his year in office, and praised the leadership of outgoing president Bill Christopher to the forty Jaycees and their wives present.

Csongedi, a member of the Jaycees for only six months, was awarded the high honor of "Jaycee Of The Year" by Christopher, who told of the seven projects headed by Csongedi in the half-year of service. The youthful Jaycee also received Jaycee of the month awards for February and April for his leadership on the safe driving and prom luau projects.

Frank Csongedi

Christopher presented awards of appreciation to Richard Rostrelli and Paul Budd, speak-up-Jaycee awards to Ron Johnston, Dr. Owen McKinney and Paul Budd, Spark Plug awards to Bill Houserman, Kermit Tucker, Rostrelli, Joe Ouelette, Bo Bevis, John Burgess and Johnston.

The key man award for assistance during Christopher's reign went to incoming president Johnston.

Spoke awards went to Frank Csongedi, Dr. McKinney and Jim Humphrey.

Two chairman of the year awards were given to Tucker and Dr. McKinney, and a three-year perfect attendance record was achieved by Ouelette.

Board of directors includes Bud Beasley, Bob Coy, Butch McKinney, Bill Christopher and Frank Csongedi.

Memorial Services Held In County

Memorial Day was observed throughout Martin County with services in many areas including Jensen Beach, Stuart, Hobe Sound and Indiantown.

Services were conducted at All Saints' Cemetery in Jensen Beach at 2 p.m. with dedication of a new flag and flag pole. The flag was raised by Cdr. John Wendel, VWWI, Barracks #854, and Robert B. Smith of American Legion Post #126.

Welcoming address and dedication was given by acting Cdr. Anthony Foley who spoke to the 150 who gathered at the entrance to the cemetery. The sixty graves had been decorated the previous night with flags and sprays of flowers.

Rev. Neil M. Gunsalus, Trinity Methodist Church, was main speaker, and a prayer was offered by Tom Beggs chaplain of Post 126.

Taking part were VWWI, Barracks 854, Jensen Beach; American Legion #126, Jensen Beach, VFW #4194, Stuart, American Legion Post of Stuart, and all Auxiliaries. Phil Kirse was speaker at the flag raising ceremony.

At Fern Hill Cemetery in Stuart, Harold Johns Post, American Legion, conducted traditional rites with Capt. Warren Corliss, USN (Ret), as main speaker. Mayor Arthur Sims and county commission chairman John F. Saunderson also took part. Mrs. Nellie Pez Oliva of the A.L. Auxiliary, cast a wreath on the waters of the St. Lucie River. Chaplain of the Post, Oscar Sievert took part in the program also.

A flag raising ceremony was held at American Legion headquarters in Indiantown, following which a wreath was tossed onto the waters of St. Lucie Canal.

Exercises were led by Cdr. Ed Whalen, VFW Post, Cdr. Francis Ball, American Legion Post, and Mrs. Rita Muraski, president of VFW Auxiliary.

At Hobe Sound 47 service flags were given to mothers of close relatives of those serving in the U.S. Armed Forces at this time.

Frank A. Wachs, county commissioner took part in the ceremonies. A plaque was unveiled on the front steps of the post office.

Rev. Patrick Murray and Rev. Francis Dickson participated in services led by Mrs. Millie Mahoney.

Anthony has been associated with First National Bank for six years.

Fog Blankets County; Fires Blamed

Two sources of thick moke were located in Mar- County Monday. Two reas of land clearing, where ere is controlled burning, are making most of the smoke cover here.

One is on Hutchinson Island, south of Jensen Beach pavilion, where huge piles of palm and palmetto roots have been smouldering since last week. The other is west of Loop Road where pasture land is being cleared.

The island fire accounted for the peculiar situation in which smoke appeared to be drifting in from the ocean, according to authorities.

Visibility on the waterways limited to less than a mile over the weekend, improved this week as the air dried.

The smoke-fog situation blanketing the county recently generally has been attributed to muck fires in the Everglades areas west of Palm Beach County.

Island Zoning Report

Howard Haid, chairman of Martin County Planning and Zoning Board, has announced that a special meeting will be held Thursday, June 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the Courthouse to discuss new proposals for Hutchinson Island zoning.

Haid said the meeting is being called so that the special committee, comprised of James Garvey, John Law, Les Combs, R. V. Johnson and E. C. Wareham, can recommend its proposal to the zoning board for discussion and study, prior to having an overall plan returned to the county commission.

In a letter received by Haid this week from the special committee, it listed its recommended changes to be brought before the board at Thursday night's meeting.

The public is invited to this open meeting.

Prior to that time he had been pastor of churches in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. He was a graduate of Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind., and of McCormick Theological Seminary. He was a Mason, member of Eastern Star and member of Stuart Rotary. At the time of his death he was Stated Clerk of Presbytery of East Florida.

He is survived by his wife, Eleanor; a daughter, Judith, and a son, James, both students at St. Andrews College, Laurinburg, S.C.

The new service, by Richard H. Baird and G. Wade Aycock, has been granted a $12,000 subsidy, $6,000 provided by the county and $3,000 by the City of Stuart.

S-Sgt. Muraski Is Back From War

A few months ago, the residents of Martin County chuckled over the story of pretty Gertraub Muraski, who jumped out of a shower to answer the telephone, to hear the voice of her husband calling from the battlefields of Viet Nam.

Today her husband, S Sgt. Walter T. Muraski, is back home in Legion Heights on forty-five day leave, his over-a-year tour of duty in the Far East at an end. Mrs. Muraski, needless to say, is very happy.

Muraski is in the midst of an "Inter-theatre transfer". He will be shipped to Schweinfurt, Germany, to serve with the Third Missile Battalion. The medical corpsman plans to take his wife with him to the European base. There he will serve out the remainder of his fifteen months of service before retiring, a twenty-year service professional.

While a ward-master in a surgical hospital in Vietnam, Muraski underwent hostilings by Viet Cong. "They bombed our airbase, but not the hospital," he said. The base was in the highlands, about 40 miles from the Cambodian border. He was awarded the national defense medal, the Vietnamese service and the Vietnamese combat medal while in that theatre of action.

Muraski, who met his wife on a tour of duty in Bavaria, refused to talk about his feelings on the Viet Nam War. "I am a soldier," he said, "and we do not talk about, nor are we allowed to talk about such matters."

BACK FROM VIET NAM--Staff Sergeant Walter T. Muraski, Spruce Ridge Road, Legion Heights, returned last week from service in Viet Nam. He and his wife will leave soon for new duty in Germany.

Beats His Former Car

Carroll Wins AACA First Place Trophy

Rick Carroll, Jensen Beach insurance agent, came home last weekend with the highest honor possible for an antique 1930 Model A Cabriolet. A foot-high trophy, with first place, awarded by the National Antique Automobile Club of America, Carroll's Cabriolet won the award at the AACA Spring meet in Ft. Lauderdale.

Winning first place, the highest award that can be won by an antique car in any class, Carroll's car defeated the classic Phaeton Model A, which Carroll restored and sold last year. The Phaeton came in second in the meet.

"I've never been so happy," Carroll said in his home. "We walked into that meet fully prepared. The Cabriolet was beautiful."

The win means that Carroll cannot enter the Cabriolet in another national meet, because it is against other first-place winners in other clubs throughout the nation. The car is now listed in the Junior Division of antique cars, considered as near perfect restoration as is possible.

The honor also gave Carroll another first. His award is the first such given in the first Florida meet held by the national organization. There were 28 Model A's entered in the competition, including one by Dr. Richard Pemick of Jensen Beach.

HIGHEST HONOR-- Rick Carroll, Jensen Beach antique auto buff, reached what he termed was the highest honor in antique autos last weekend. Carroll won a national first place award at a Ft. Lauderdale meet of the National Antique Auto Club of America for his 1930 Ford Cabriolet.

Anchorage Yacht Club News Notes

The patience of fishermen is something to be admired. John Helmken, Ed Wasserman and Ed Hastings, continue to pursue this sport in their patient manner. But lets talk about action; our gal Margery Wasserman means business when she goes out in her boat, always returning with large specimens, including the delectible snook. In the past week on a trip up the North Fork, she returned with a beautiful 28 inch snook.

In the very near future, Margery is taking her Dad, Ed Wasserman, up to Ohio where he will spend the summer with his other children, but Margery will be back in a week to continue with her duties at the office, helping John Wolf, and continue with her loved sport of fishing.

Lois Chappell and Dell Bourke left for their home in Ohio May 16 and will return about October.

We are happy to welcome home David and Teena McAbee who returned from Live Oak, Fla. May 12. "Mac" was doing some work for his company in that area.

In the past week Ed and Jessie Hastings hosted the following Park residents for hilarious card games: Harry & Martha York, John Helmken, Bertha Foster, Margery Wasserman & Ed Wasserman.

The Park was well represented by the following residents attending the Luau at poolside May 28; Ione & George Gerrie (tireless workers for the event) Mrs. Annie K. Liable, also a hard worker for all events, Bill & Pearl Flowers, Mrs. Elsa Lindholm, Margery Wasserman, Ed Wasserman, John Helmken, Bertha Foster and Harry & Rene Wiggins.

The food was delicious, most of us were in costume and a lovely time was enjoyed by all.

On Mothers' Day, Bill & Pearl Flowers entertained their three married children at their home in the Park. What a delightful clan.

Several residents celebrated birthdays this past month. George Gerrie was hosted at a dinner given by Edna Wolf May 18, prior to the date, and on his birthday he played golf with his dear friend, Jack Metcalf, of Sunshine Trailer Park. The rest of the day, George and Ione were guests of Jack and his lovely wife, Delores, at their home.

Harry Wiggins and wife celebrated his birthday May 24, hosted for dinner by Mrs. Lisa Lindholm at our Club. It was so lovely, with the cake and the "Golden Cadillac" from Edna. He was truly thrilled, being greeted by numerous friends, "Yours truly", Rene, also celebrated her ancient birthday at the Club May 12.

We're anxious to hear from Morris Trout, Pt. Pleasant, N.J., our winter neighbor in the Park, to learn how he celebrated his natal day May 22. "Hurry back, Mos and Aggie, we miss you."

On a recent Sunday afternoon, Bill and Pearl Flowers took their neighbors in the Park, Harry & Marty York, for a lovely scenic cruise on the beautiful St. Lucie.

NEW SIGN--A new sign was erected at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce office recently. The sign, covered with aluminum, calls attention to the office where Reg Walker, executive secretary, answers questions of all descriptions.

All Ninth Grade To Murray

At a special meeting last week, Martin County School Board members voted four to one to complete integration on the school system by sending all ninth grade pupils to one school, Murray Junior-Senior High School in Port Salerno.

Many persons attended the two and a half hour meeting, including board members, administrative and legal counsel.

The board's legal position was termed "precarious" by James Littman, school board attorney, in a written opinion. He said he felt the board had little possibility of fighting such illegal acts as the recent nine-day pupil boycott, as long as it was not in full conformance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Homer Wall, Indiantown, voted against the ninth grade plan.

In other action, the board:

Heard Richard Pryor, architect, call his firm's decision to dig out garbage at the site of the four-room addition to Martin County High School a "calculated risk".

Water was reached before the garbage was removed on the site, a former city dump. He said the cost would run from $3,000 to $3,300 over estimates.

Completion date was to have been Sept. 22, but the architect admitted a delay of two weeks is apparent. The board predicted the use of four portables until the addition is completed.

AWARDED contracts for projectors, electric duplicator, and two calculators to low bidders.

Last Class Of Sisters Graduates

St. Joseph College graduated its last "all-sister" class last Sunday in ceremonies marked by "a look to the future" in the new auditorium of St. Joseph College.

Sister Thomas Marie Ford, SSJ, valedictorian of the class, said that the new order of coeducation and lay students would bring a greater intellectual stimulus to the future classes of the school in her address.

With all students of the school dressed in cap and gown, St. Joseph memorialized the graduation with the invocation by Rev. Fr. John Januszewski, the benediction by Episcopal Fr. Norman B. Feaster, and an address by Rabbi Mordecai Thurman of Fort Pierce.

Thurman gave the same speech he gave when local sisters visited his synagogue during Brotherhood Week, in it he called for a rebirth of religious dedication during these times "that try men's souls".

Special awards were given during the ceremonies: Sisters Thomas Marie Ford and Ann Sedonia, magna cum laude; Sisters Dorothy Barbara and Coleman Marie, cum laude; Sisters Paul Regina, Altoona, Pa., and Mary Laetitia, Detroit, Mich., were presented with awards as outstanding all-around members of the class; Mrs. C. R. Holley, outstanding faculty member of the year; Ruth VanKirk for her courage, and Mrs. Donald McCandless, volunteer assistant in the college library and physical education department.

A letter to the graduates from President Lyndon B. Johnson was read by student government president Steven Bedell.

Following the graduation, a reception was held in the Our Lady of Fatima patio.

COURAGE--Ruth VanKirk was presented with a special award during Sunday's ceremonies at St. Joseph College auditorium. The award was presented to Miss VanKirk for her courage in pursuing her education.

"Scared?

Hanging wire up there 30 stories in the air works on a heavy wind. It takes a real big man to do that. But to be a big man is a built-in part of the telephone lineman's job.
Our training program can supply the skill and safety precautions, but only the man himself can supply the ability and speed and judgment and love of action that makes a great lineman. If your dad's one of them, you've got a right to brag.

"HELLO"

"Hello" only lasts for a minute,
It's a short, brisk, queer little word.
But, say! there's a lot of cheer in it;
It's like the chirp of a bird
In spring, when the hilltops are greening,
Right after the cold and the snow.
I think when it comes to real meaning,
There isn't a word like "Hello!".

'No Burn' Delays Savanna

Construction of the Rio-Jensen South Savanna Road has been delayed by the no burn limitation, according to county commission chairman Jack Saunderson, who said a permit would be given to permit work on the project if a fire truck is standing by.

Because of general conditions along the coast, Martin County has been in an "emergency, no burn" status along with Palm Beach and Broward Counties in addition to others along the coast.

An exception was made for Martin County, however. In cases of extreme need, special permits to burn will be issued providing standby fire apparatus is available.

"I've Been Approached"

Will Clark Replace Crook? Republicans Are Hopeful

Dale Clark, principal of Jensen Beach Elementary School and a registered Republican, seems to have the inside edge on appointment to the post of superintendent of public instruction of Martin County, according to high sources in the Republican party.

When asked Clark said, "I have been approached," but was reticent to comment on his conversations with the various committees of the party contacting him in the past few days. Tom Crook, Superintendent of Schools, resigned last week, taking appointment to a federal post handling Title III aid programs for the five-county area. He will be based in Vero Beach.

One source, in the upper echelon of party politics, said that "Clark is the man. He would do a great job, and is fully qualified." Another official said Clark was a reluctant candidate but was capable and highly respected by his fellow teachers. All contacted asked that their names not be used.

Clark was admittedly concerned with the situation to be faced by the new school superintendent. "The Murray Ninth Grade is a problem to be faced, as is the sanctions that would make it difficult for us to hire teachers without violating our code of ethics," said Clark. "Anyone who would step into the office would have big problems. I will say I am available, but am not seeking this appointment."

Clark has talked with many officials of the Republican Party. But his prime was on other things at the time. "My first concern in these past few weeks has been to get our youngsters finished and home for the summer," he said. Clark has three children, all attending public school. One is a student at Parker Elementary, one is in Junior High and the third in Martin County High School.

He received his Bachelors and Masters degrees in education at the University of Tennessee and has attended summer sessions at Florida and Florida State in pursuit of higher education. "I have studied politics all my life, but have never sought public office," he said.

The resignation of Crook takes effect on June 30. Gov. Claude Kirk is expected to name a successor in the next few weeks, possibly, according to some, in the next few days.

CONGRATULATIONS, SPINNEY- Officers and directors of Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce honored Fire Chief Randolph B. Spinney with a plaque Monday night commemorating his 20 years' service with the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department. At left is Frank Forsberg, president of the Chamber, who presented the plaque.

Judge Unretired

Judge Frank A. Smith, retired, has been assigned to the Ninth Judicial Circuit for the period of June 19 to 24 by Campbell Thornal, chief justice of the Florida Supreme Court. Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge said Thursday that Judge Smith, former chief judge of the circuit, would sit in Orlando to handle emergency needs during that week.

Move To Move It

Opposition Rising To I-95 Location

by Dick Campbell

"Everyone seems against the location of I-95 in Martin County," was the temper of comments heard around the county this week. Officials in the county courthouse seemed to think that the plan would take too much highly taxed land off the tax rolls.

County commissioner Frank Wachs spoke out against the route, which would bring the road through Jensen Savanna State Park, down through the lowest and wettest part of the savannas to the St. Lucie River, bridge the river at the eastern end of Rio with a bridge a mile long, cut through the exclusive (and highly taxed) residential areas of Bug Harbor and Port Sewall, chop off a part of the golf course at the end of Stuart's Willam Field, split Port Salerno in half, cross U.S. 1 and chop through Jonathan Dickinson State Park to Jupiter.

Wachs said that the road should be west of Stuart and U.S. 1.

County engineer Fred Bell interpreted the position of the county commission as being in favor of the comprehensive general plan for Martin County which was made by the Florida Development Commission in 1965, after several years of intensive research. In that plan, the commission suggested a belt highway around the city of Stuart from Hobe Sound on the south to the Jensen Cutoff Road on the north, passing west of Palm City, yet east of the Sunshine Parkway.

Conservation interests have strongly objected to the location of I-95 anywhere in Jonathan Dickinson State Park. They point to the damage to Kitchen Creek and the Loxahatchee River. Some of the conservation groups are plotting maps of new courses for the proposed interstate highway to follow. The State Board of Conservation has gone on record as opposed to the present route under consideration due to its prospect of damage to J-D Park.

At present, a short leg of the interstate highway ends at Palm Beach Gardens in Palm Beach County. To the north, it ends at Sebastian. The leg through Indian River, St. Lucie and Martin Counties, and through the few miles of Palm Beach County, is yet to be built.

In Jupiter, concern is being expressed about the location of the road through the town limits of Jupiter. Some rumors exist that the road is slated to follow the route of the old Dixie Highway into J-D Park. This would place it in the heart of Jupiter's business district.

Thus far, no official report of the location of the road has been released. Only an "about here" guesstimate has been made. No maps of the route have been received from the State Road Department, which announced the route and passed a resolution on it at a recent meeting.

Ten Pavilions

Chamber Expands July 4th Festivities

The ten pavilions on the Jensen Beach Causeway are being offered to civic clubs in the area to expand the Independence Day Celebration planned for July 4th, according to reports at the Jensen Chamber of Commerce directors' meeting last Monday night. The clubs can use the pavilions to offer displays, money-making projects, or games to the thousands who will be visiting the area for the all-day event.

Already committed for two pavilions are the Jensen Boy Scout Troop 401, for a scout display, and the Little League for sale of watermelon or snow cones. Civic groups can register for the pavilions at the Chamber of Commerce office on Commercial Street.

In other business, the Chamber directors heard reports on the activities of the July 4th committees. Dick Campbell, co-chairman with Herman Reitz of the amateur boat races, announced that the trophies for the race were being donated. He added that the race, now an annual event, would be self-supporting, and not a drain on Chamber funds. He added that the latest news of participants was that The Anchorage Yacht Club would have six men-crews participating in the races.

Randolph Spinney, representing the Jensen Volunteer Firemen, who are active co-sponsors of the day's celebration, said that traffic control would be handled by the Sheriff's Department, assisted by Jensen's American Legion Post. Local boy scouts will also be on hand for the day and will have a camp and display on the causeway.

Other events discussed were horse shoe pitching throughout the day, inner tube races and jousting, a watermelon eating contest and foot races.

Spinney said that the fireworks for the evening would be the best presented in the history of the Fireworks Committee.

School Board Meeting Actions

The Martin County School Board, at Friday's meeting,

ACCEPTED the resignation of Supt. of Schools Thomas L. Crook, with regrets, congratulating him on his appointment to the state-county education development council post.

HEARD Crook say U.S. Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare approved plans by the board to set up a 9th grade school at Murray High; and that Miami desegregation officials would assist in putting the plan into use if asked.

HEARD Crook say he would appoint James Navitsky as Martin County High School coach as well as principal at Murray.

APPROVED a plan where teachers' contracts will go to them before the end of the term, as usual, based on last year's salary schedule, with notes accompanying each contract stating the board must await work from the Legislature before it can proceed with any adjustment in salaries; at any rate, no reductions will be made.

APPROVED, in a 3-1 vote, with Mrs. Barbara Britton dissenting, the naming of James St.Clair summer school music instructor. The naming of LaMoyne Noll was discussed, although he plans to leave the school system at the close of this term.

The board approved the staff of Murray Ninth Grade School, as follows:

Principal James Navitsky; part-time guidance, Ernest Varvil; teachers: Charles Myer, shop; Catherine Hawell, music; Marge Petersen, business education; Joan Lorenz, English; Elmira Rawls & Dennis Midgett, physical education; Susan Shoemaker & Sandra McKinney, English; Wilma Elmore & Emma Washington, home economics.

Other teachers include: Frank Pittman and Henry Childers, science; Ann Crook, social studies; Mary Smith, library; Linda DeMauro, art; Richard Mikuska, mechanical drawing; June Bowling & Joseph Erdeky, mathematics; Lewis Rice, driver training; Milda Hernandez, Spanish.

Vacancies were reported in math, reading and band. Several of the teachers will fill part-time appointments at other schools, including DeMauro, Howell and Mikuska.

Jack Smouse, general coordinator, reported to the board that letters were being sent to parents of 8th graders going to Murray 9th grade school next fall, telling them of the board's May 24 move.

Wacha Cites Payments

Over $4 Million In Social Security County Payroll

Social security benefits add up to big dividends in Martin County, county commissioner Frank A. Wacha pointed out Thursday.

Figures gathered by U.S. Rep. Paul G. Rogers and his administrative assistant, R. B. Lochrie, Jr., were used by Wacha, who described the $4,157,392 in Social Security Administration payments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1966, as "one of the reasons for holding down ad valorem tax payments."

No local industry can match that in payrolls, he pointed out.

Monthly payments in Martin County, as of December, 1966, were $364,540, indicating an annual rate of $4,374,480. "The rate would increase as time goes on, since more people would become eligible and more retirees move into the area," Rep. Rogers said.

Winter residents in the county would swell the total if addresses were changed so checks could be sent to this area, Wacha said.

There were 4,738 people in the county receiving the $364,540 total in December, 4,415 under the Old Age & Survivors Insurance program, and another 323 under the Disability Insurance program.

During that month, their totals were $339,411 and $25,120 respectively. Of the OASI beneficiaries, 676 wives and husbands received $31,214; 321 children received $16,882; 353 widows and widowers received $24,968; 42 widowed mothers received $2,672, and two parents received $170.

"We should not drive out these people by increasing ad valorem taxes," Wacha said. "These people create no school problems."

He declined to predict a reduction in millage in the upcoming budget, but said he hoped to see no increase in levy.

The total on Social Security rolls equals about 20 per cent of the entire population.

Kiwanians Deserve Support

The Stuart Kiwanis Club has begun a campaign on safety. The club has materials and a program designed to carry on a continuous campaign through the year, a campaign deserving of the support of everyone in the county.

The tragic deaths occuring in the county over the past year make the Kiwanis campaign even more important to the people, for the thoughtlessness of drivers endangering others and themselves must be stopped.

There lies the basis for all complaint against society. It is the unthinking person who drives a car, motorbike, or cycle who endangers the lives of others... all innocent victims of thoughtlessness.

The year-round program of reminder-reminder-reminder by the Kiwanians is headed by Lloyd Chase, chairman of the public and business affairs committee of the club. He will be assisted by Dr. Ralph Athy, Heinie Frank, Charles French and Ralph Randall.

The Martin County High School Key Club will assist the committee on a local level with the teenagers, many of whom need the reminder that death rides with the automobile as well as life.

We urge the people of Martin County to take that extra moment to think, so that a life may be saved. However trite the words sound, they are true. There have been too many accidents in this small county for the number of cars driving the streets. Almost 100% of the accidents have a human problem as their cause.

The Kiwanis Club of Stuart deserves the support of all the people in this worthy project.

Did We Strike A Nerve?

Did The Mirror strike a nerve several weeks ago when it editorially called for the people of Port St. Lucie to ask for annexation into Martin County? From the reaction received, it seems we did.

The reaction of the residents of Port St. Lucie was enthusiastic. Some discussed the proposals with others. Others brought up the subject at public meetings in the city. Local residents seemed to think it was a very good idea.

"They are out kind of people," was a comment printed, and echoed following the editorial.

The St. Lucie County commissioners refused comment when asked about it. What else?

Port St. Lucie has been a stepchild of St. Lucie County since it was founded almost ten years ago. It has received the short end of many sticks from both the city of Fort Pierce and the county. The feeling of a stepchild has grown through the ownership of the Mackle Brothers and the present ownership of General Development.

The many residents of Port St. Lucie are generally retired. They have a pleasant life, and want to enjoy their years in south Florida. They do not want problems.

We know that the cooperation between the governmental agencies of Martin County and Port St. Lucie have been more than cordial. One officer of the land company mentioned, "We have much closer ties, both social and business, with the people of Martin County, and we aren't even in it."

The two years between this and the next legislature will be interesting to follow, for we feel that some move will be made to bring the people of Port St. Lucie into Martin County. The move will be made by those people themselves.

Hurricane Season Is Here

The 1967 hurricane season got off to a slow start this year. Not so 1966. Residents will remember that we had two such storms sick up just about the start of the last season.

Things must be getting back to normal for the weather has been very cooperative in the past six months. As we fear it into summer we might just be getting back to the regular kind of weather we enjoyed before the last few difficult years. Then, we had pleasant summers, only the slightest scares when hurricanes would approach Florida, and then the relief when they would silently drift north into the Atlantic, or west in the Gulf of Mexico.

The unusual weather pattern of the past two months, with the lack of rainfall and the continual balmy breezes from the ocean, has begun to deminish. We should begin to get the afternoon showers and occasional thunderstorms that summertime brings.

According to the weatherman, the tropics have been "dead" for six weeks...all over the world except in the Indian Ocean. The Miami weather bureau announced that conditions are very unfavorable for storm development in the Atlantic.

We hope that the weatherman is able to keep it that way. In the meantime, it might be good for local residents to take stock and see that they are properly prepared, and that they have a house properly protected against the elements.

Let us hope that Arlene, the first storm name on the fickle female hurricane list, will not appear by the November 30 closing of the hurricane season.

Rejecting The Welfare State

Many people have felt that it would be politically impossible to put the welfare state into reverse gear. The gradual extension of government subsidies benefits, cash payments and controls over industries, organizations and blocks of citizens has been accelerating for many years. But, it now appears that an important segment of the United States population may be rejecting the embrace of the welfare state in favor of greater opportunity and freedom of action. This could be a very significant development in the economic, political and social history of our country.

With strong backing from the nation's largest farm organization, the American Farm Bureau Federation, representing some 70 per cent of the farmers in the U.S., legislation has been introduced in Congress which would eliminate subsidy and acreage control programs for grain producers. This would simply mean that wheat and feed grain farmers would be free to plant the acreages and the crops which they felt would give them the best return, and they would get their income from sales on the free market rather than from the federal government. The legislation, generally known as the Curtis-Clark Bill) has been sponsored in the House by Representative Thomas Curtis (R.-Mo) and Representative Frank Clark (D.-Pa.).

This proposal embodies three major recommendations which would be the effect of taking away from government the power to make economic decisions involving control of supply and prices for a major share of American farmers. First, it would repeal the present government wheat and feed grains programs permitting farmers to plant and harvest those crops without acreage controls. Second, it would prevent the Commodity Credit Corporation from acquiring huge grain stocks and disposing of them in periods of strong demand in order to drive down market prices. And third, the bill would change the role of the Commodity Credit Corporation from a lender to an insurer of crop loans made from regular commercial lending institutions.

It is the latter feature of the bill which would prevent the automatic accumulation of huge government-owned grain stocks which have been available to the government for manipulation of market prices. Under present law, the Commodity Credit Corporation makes loans directly to farmers who can later turn their crops over to the government in settlement of the loan. Under the new proposal, loans would be made by commercial lending agencies and would simply be insured by the CCC. This insurance feature would guarantee the general availability of such loans which would be repaid in cash as farmers sold their crops on the open market. Agricultural authorities believe that reliance on the free market system is now essential to a more prosperous and productive agriculture able to respond to the requirements of growing world food demands. It is further pointed out, government programs to aid the needy, both in this country and in other nations of the world, could be carried on more effectively with food purchases attuned to a specific desire or need of the people or the countries to be aided without regard to the limitations which result from restricting such purchases to surplus commodities. Representative Curtis points out that federal government expenditures on food, feed and feed grain programs cost the public about $2 billion in fiscal 1966---elimination of these programs would represent a major saving to taxpayers.

There is much justification for the view that acreage allotments and price supports established to bolster farm income in the depression years of the 1930's simply do not fit into the agricultural picture of 1967. It would indeed be a milestone in our political development if the realities of the situation can actually overcome the immense self-perpetuating forward inertia of a major federal welfare program established in our governmental structure for more than 30 years. It seems to many people that the outcome of this issue will have deep significance as an indication of whether any group in our population or for that matter, the people of the United States as a whole, still retain the option of rejecting the paternalistic umbrella of the welfare state if they so desire.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

"It was interesting to note the return of a North Carolina family from Australia. Last year much publicity and ado was made over the migration of the Ray A. Price family to Australia because of the school of the house's' disapproval of certain things in this country. But time, experience and hindsight finally got through to him and he realized that things were not as bad as he had thought. So often this is true. As a school teacher, he found that government control of the schools was stronger, and left more there than in this country. And the salaries paid were not as attractive on the site as from afar; and the independent, small merchant, merchandising specialist, is not the idyllic dream some opponents of bigness prepound."

Press & Standard
Walterboro, S. C.

"Young people, exposed to all the liberal philosophies which seek to downgrade freedom and country, need a time to think of the great blessings they have while living in a country like these United States. Men have died to preserve the rights which we enjoy today. The example of parents and friends, paying tribute to the Nation which was founded on the dignity and worth of man rather than a political philosophy, will stir them to dedicate themselves to perpetuating our way of life."

- Courier, Rochester N.H.

"It is hard to pay taxes even when you are convinced that the tax law is fair and equitable. If ever the citizens are convinced that a tax law is unfair, the consequences can be extremely serious. The United States of America was founded by men in revolt against unfair taxation, among other things. Therefore, it is important when a citizen feels that a tax law is unfair, that he let his representatives in Washington or the state capital or the county court house know how he feels and why."

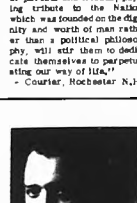
New Plan For Inlet

The model of St. Lucie Inlet at the Coastal Engineering Laboratory of the University of Florida is being drained to permit test of a plan in which the inlet channel would be widened 200 feet to the north, according to county engineer Fred L. Bell last week.

The new plan to be tried is an adaptation of the several plans developed by the U. S. Corps of Engineers to make the Inlet safer and to eliminate its beach erosion qualities.

"The study, so far, substantiates the need for some method of sand transfer. Several alternatives will be considered in the final report," Bell said.



One Emmy Forgotten

LIVE....and love it

by Dick Campbell

I just finished watching the Emmy show on television. It is the program that is held once a year in Hollywood and New York to honor people and efforts of professionals in the medium, and to allow those who want to be to try to upstage those who are.

The one big thing that all could see was the trash shine of quality. The prize will win out. The good actors, the fine actresses, the outstanding writers, directors, orchestras, all are honored.

Each and every award presented by the academy was earned by hard work and talent, by enchanting ideas, far-reaching experimentation, and quality.

I have always held a deep place in my heart for the pros, the people with talent. I have always despised poor taste and miserable talent. I guess this is one area in which I am a bigot. But then, I love the theatre and the art form called entertainment.

The great stars, the new born ones, on both ends of the microphone and camera, all with that magic thing called talent, will receive allocade enough without this newspaperman adding his meager applause to the resounding thunderclaps of the industry of entertainment and its gigantic audience.

But they forgot one Emmy. It is perhaps the most important Emmy of the lot. You see, they honor the great so that they may go on to even greater effort. They also honor the great so that others may try harder to achieve greatness. But they do not honor the miserable, the mediocre, the bad taste, time-consuming, worthless trash that fills hour after hour on television. They forgot that one Emmy.

If the academy so honored the pitiful waste of time and pseudo-talent that might encourage the producers, directors and actors, and the networks, to stop diluting what has become a great medium.

One of the Emmy winners said it, probably without knowing it. He said words to the effect that the people on his show worked so that they would have a great show each week...not just a show on every Tuesday night.

This is not to be an presumptuous as to omit new talent from the television screen. Off Broadway, they have workshop theatres, just off the Great White Way, in which the newcomers gain experience.

Why should we, as television-buying, product-buying, and time-consuming listeners, be exposed to the fifth-rate programming that is often presented alongside first-rate performances?

Why couldn't the industry relegate the pitiful offerings of lackluster stars, incompetent or inexperienced writers and directors, and low-budget producers to local-programming on off-network stations?

The Broadway plays go to Philadelphia or Boston to try out. They do not place the play in a first-run theatre to try out.

The really great motion pictures are shot and reshot to gain proper scene sequence to make the players get the most out of their talent. Only when they are ready for public view are the films get released. You and I know what happens to trash on the motion picture screen....no one goes to see it.

The television industry has grown up. It has come of ages. Now it is time to clean house, set standards and police its time on networks.

I cried with, laughed with, smiled with and died-a-thousand-deaths with the greats as they received their Emmys. But I missed the ones not presented.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

The students and I want to thank you sincerely for the copies of The Jensen Mirror supplied our Civics and General Business classes each week. I believe this paper helped acquaint and interest the students in various community affairs.

Again let me say thank you on behalf of the students and myself.

Sincerely,

To The Editor:

We are writing to you about the discontinuation of the monthly dances that were being held at the Jensen Beach Community Center every second Saturday evening.

In our opinion by discontinuing these dances you are going to have more trouble on your hands. At least there was someplace for us to go and something to do. Now with summer coming there is definitely nothing to do. You complain when we ride around in cars, get ourselves killed, as you the public say. This would not happen if we had someplace to go. Why don't you have a Teen Center. Other small towns do and have found them to be very successful. Have any of you ever gone to one of these dances and help chaperone. No, so how can you sit there and condemn them when all you know is what you hear. If you the person would like to help the rough, why don't you offer to chaperone some teen dances and form a committee to organize a Teen Center. You would be of more help to your community by helping the teen-age population than sitting home and watching TV.

Everytime something bad happens it hits the front page and is the town gossip, but if we act decent and behave ourselves nobody knows or even cares.

The trouble that is caused is not the fault of the three people who do chaperone. They must watch anywhere from 100 to 150, sometimes more, teenagers in the building. It is the parents fault for not teaching their kids the difference between right and wrong.

I hope this letter will stir the public to face reality. DON'T let these dances be discontinued because of the actions of a few people. We can have these dances again by offering your services and help chaperone. You surely can't expect three people to control the behavior inside the building where they are supposed to be, and outside on the streets.

Thank you.

(Could have gotten many more names if time was available.)

(Editor's note: We have followed the progress of the teen dances with interest. We have seen the few who ruin dances by their actions. We have seen the willingness of a few adults to help out of sight of chaperone, the boys and girls leaving the dance together, to return hours later. We have seen the cans littering the area before being picked up by harried chaperones, and we have heard the complaints. We have seen the teenagers do nothing about it until too late. They did not ask their parents to help them take television sets to chaperone, nor did they take any action to blame the wrong until too late. We saw them let our chaperones, who could not handle the crowds, take the blame while the teenagers avoided their own responsibilities. If the teenagers want a teen center, let them organize, direct and police it. Let them line up their chaperones and avoid the criticism that follows the group. Then let them appeal to those who would let them use the hall. It is possible that they may listen. Ed.)

A couple of years ago we were printing--rather often--reports of interruption in our power service here. Since then, electric power has been rarely interrupted and then for only a short time. Recently, however, an event occurred that I must report.

At 1:30 p.m. part of the lights in the vicinity of- and in- the Courier's office went out. Outside, the traffic light operated, but the street lights were out. Next door, the night light was out, but the barber shop's neon sign was burning. In the Courier everything worked except two lights, front and back, and the air conditioner. So I called the power company and reported it.

Fifteen minutes later I looked up and there was a man from the Florida Power & Light Co. He came in and asked me: "How can I help--what seems to be the trouble?" So I showed him my "out" light and casually mentioned that half of the outside lights were out and took him out to show him. Of course, they were on, beautifully.

We looked at transformers and all around. Then he suggested looking at my fuse box. I told him it couldn't be that because my lights went out with a blink at the same time the outside lights went out- and they did! He looked a minute- found a loose fuse, tightened it, and the lights came on! Now that's service!

But, how does a fuse get loose?

Question of the week: What effect does next year's integration of teaching staffs have on the current effort of the FEA (sic, teachers) to blame Governor Kirk for teaching situation problems that were standard for years before he tried to improve them? I'm beginning to suspect that this might be worth looking into--that money may be a smoke-screen.

I think Memorial Day ought to be removed from the list of 'holidays', On Tuesday, how many were dedicating any part of the day to any thought memorializing the dead, military or family? Very, very few.

Memorial Day has become a first-of-summer holiday. It has nothing whatsoever to do with the dead, judging from the activities of most people.

Memorial Day ought to be treated like election day and Veterans Day. No work stoppage beyond that necessary to perform the purposes of the occasion.

HOWEVER, I think a first-of-summer holiday is GREAT! But, it ought to be celebrated for a more suitable reason. Congressman Gurney of Orlando has an idea that I think would do the job much better. He proposes a TAX HOLIDAY.

TAX FREEDOM DAY was May 5 this year.

Until that date, every dollar you earned went for Federal, State, and local taxes. That's four months and four days you worked this year for the tax collector before you could call one dollar earned your own.

To dramatize high taxes, Rep. Edward J. Gurney (R. of Florida) introduced a joint Congressional resolution along the lines of one he sponsored last year, authorizing the President to proclaim May 5 a national holiday - officially, "Tax Freedom Day."

In introducing his resolution, Gurney told the House that in the year since he last proposed a Tax Freedom holiday, taxes have grown so out up four more days of earnings for the average American. Tax Freedom Day last year was May 1.

"We ought to hurry up and pass this bill before the date of the (tax) holiday begins to interfere with the tax-page population than sitting home and watching TV.

Everytime something bad happens it hits the front page and is the town gossip, but if we act decent and behave ourselves nobody knows or even cares.

One Of Natures Wonders

Mrs. Turtle Performs

Henry and Dorothy Beck were fortunate in being able to watch a turtle lay its eggs one night lately. Many turtles lay their eggs on these south Florida beaches but few are lucky enough to catch them at it. The Becks were at the Beach on Thursday night of May 18 and walked a long distance on the sand. They saw two or three places where a turtle had left the water and had laid her eggs, covered them and returned to the water. One 'nest' had been robbed probably by a raccoon, and the rubbery egg shells were scattered about.

The next night of May 19 was another beautiful night with a full moon, no wind, no insects and quite warm, so the Becks tried their luck again. The previous night, Dorothy had inadvertently walked into some tar washed ashore from some ship, then to make walking easier she took off her shoes and carried them. The result was she had tar smeared just about all over herself. So this night the Becks were more careful and watched the beach from the high bank south of the Jensen bathing beach. I will let Dorothy Beck tell the story.

"We got to the beach in plenty of time, actually before sun-down, and waited, keeping a watch on the beach both north and south of us. It was a lovely evening and there was a full moon so we could see quite well without the aid of a flashlight, which we were warned not to use for fear of scaring away the turtles. We waited for a long time. It was 8 o'clock and still no sign of turtles. The tide had been rising until it was just about high tide when Henry said, "There's something moving." Sure enough a turtle had just left the water and was crawling up the beach. We kept perfectly still for fear of scaring her. She reached the dry sand right at the bluff and began to dig. We crept as close as we dared and watched her dig. She would push her hind flippers down into the sand and bring them up like two scoops, then with a quick flip the sand would go to right and left. This operation was repeated time after time. Every once in a while she would reach down with one flipper as if to measure her depth. At last she quit digging and rested for about five minutes.

The turtle actually began to cry as the eggs began to fall into the hole. She cried so much that her cheeks and the sand beneath were quite wet. The eggs were white and round like golf balls and they kept dropping like she was never going to stop.

Just then a conservation officer came along and we asked him how many eggs would she lay. He told us from 100 to 300 eggs from this Loggerhead variety of turtle. This one would weigh about 400 lbs., whereas the Green Turtle will weigh 500 to 800 lbs. He said it was possible that not one of these eggs would hatch a young turtle that would succeed in growing up. When the young hatch from the eggs they have no sense of direction and they wander all over, falling prey to birds, 'coons', 'gators' and even fish, for those who succeed in reaching the water.

After about 45 minutes of egg laying the mother turtle lay perfectly still for about five minutes as if resting from her ordeal. Then of a sudden she began filling the hole with her hind flippers. Sand was flying everywhere as her flippers went into action. She not only covered her eggs but herself too. When she finished there was a small mound over the nest and intentionally or otherwise, her last flip picked up a piece of dry seaweed which landed exactly on top of the mound.

I had feared she wouldn't have sufficient strength to get back to the water, but was I ever wrong. She took off like a scared rabbit and in no time was at the edge of the water where she paused as if listening. She dipped her head in the water, hesitated for a minute then slid into the approaching wave and disappeared.

I often think how lucky we were to have such a grand night to watch all on our own, one of the wonders of nature.'

Rainfall In May

Rainfall for May occurred in light showers which scarcely laid the dust and a few hours after the ground was as dry as ever. Following is the precipitation as recorded by Arthur Johnson

May 10 .15"; May 16 .02"; May 21 .12"; May 22 .03"; May 31 .01". Total rainfall for May was .32" or half an inch. We had just a trace in April .09". The total for the past two months has been .55 of an inch compared with 11.60 inches last year.

Due to the shortage of water, grass has turned a brown and dead looking and the bushes with a limited root system look like they have had it but the well established shrubs are standing up fairly well. We have many varieties of trees in the park. Many have lost all of their leaves last month. Now in spite of the drought they have put on a fine showing and are beautiful. Our Royal poinciana tree on Fifth is loaded down with a mass of scarlet blossoms. It is an orange and why I have seen in tropical countries.

Since writing the above we had rain. Yes it actually rained three-fourths of an inch the night of June 1st and we have had several light showers since. Much of our dead looking grass is coming to life and showing green. First thing we know fewer mowers will be heard around the park.

Garns Return

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bushnell have a letter from Gen and Clarence Garn telling of their Hawaii trip which they evidently enjoyed immensely. Here it is -

Lilmore, Ohio
May 31, 1967

Dear Folks -

Guess I'd better get busy and answer your letter. Had so much to do after we got home. Our trip was fabulous. Have come back to the realization (exhausted but true) we can't say enough for the tour. We were kept busy sightseeing and were fed food for kings. We have a lot of beautiful slides and some color prints to show. The scenery was so lush that we got trigger-happy and we're so glad our camera proved such a necessary item.

We stood the heat pretty well till I picked up a flu bug and for a few days felt real rotten but didn't give up. Thought I'd paid my money and I wasn't going to miss out. Did come home tired but it was wonderful to see. Each island has it's own particular charm and really quite different. We loved Maui, but each stop was like a dream.

We are back home again now. The Ambuns were here over the week-end and after seeing our pictures Jim got all excited and enthused about a trip there unless they're in the fall.

Our lawns look so pretty, plenty of rain here but not too much hot weather. Our lake runs nearly every day till the sun gets around to help warm up.

We are invited to Fred Ausparich's 50th Wedding Anniversary at Toledo on June 10th. You know them; they come to the park every Easter for a visit.

Stan has his new boat in the water and we were invited to go along on the maiden voyage. It is a beauty. When we got back to the dock he gave Clarence a key and said, "Dad, take it out any time you feel like it." So, why own a boat when one is waiting to be used.

The National Shuffleboard Tournament is at Toledo in July. We are expecting to see several O. B. shuffleboard players there. Already several have told us they will be there."

Guatemalan Holiday

Chapter #5

After a good nights sleep in our upstair room at the Tehuantepec Hotel we awoke early and took a stroll around our balcony overlooking the amazing tropical growth below us. Many varieties of shrubs and trees were completely unfamiliar to us. Two or three stalks of bananas were ripening on the trees. We were the first ones in the dining room but the girls attended to our wants right away. As usual we had the girls put up a lunch for us to eat along the road.

While waiting to pay our bill at the desk, one man whom I was not privy to admit as being a fellow American, was trying hard to make himself understood in very bad Spanish when I knew full well the cashier could speak much better English than he could Spanish. I make it a rule to never use Spanish other than the customary Buenos Dias until I am sure the one I am speaking to cannot understand English.

It was still quite early when we left the town. Dozens of carrarts and wagons were following the tides of the road, we presumed they were either going to their fields or to the market in town. The road was paved with black-top material and would be too hard for the oxen's feet. This coastal area is quite flat and uninteresting, much of it is salt marsh land, so we wasted no time and reached the next town of Zanatepic 75 miles, in little better than an hour. Zanatepic is really only a village. It is at the foot of a mountain range which we have to cross. Being higher than the salt marshes, the soil is fertile and many colorful bougainvilleas brighten the streets, adding color to that of the gaily painted adobe houses. The streets were very clean, the people tidily dressed - quite an attractive little village. The only 'gas station' was far from modern. The man filled our tank from a barrel by means of a leaky can which left a trail of raw gasoline from the barrel to our car. I was hoping none our car, I was hoping no one would drop a match as I was not in that much of a hurry to leave town. They didn't so we left under our own power.

This is not a big mountain range but very interesting to me. I am a lover of flowers and there were many varieties of flowering trees to see and admire. We descended rather abruptly to a surprisingly modern and attractive city. Before we knew it we had left the mountain and were right in a city. Policeman in uniform was controlling traffic from the top of his little box at the intersection. He was an expert with his whistle. He seemed to have a certain refrain for every kind of signal, such as STOP, GO, SLOW DOWN, WATCH YOUR STEP, etc. I asked a boy the name of the city we were in and he replied, "Ciudad Tuxtla Gutierraz." The map we were using was no longer of much value and sometimes we were at a loss to know just where we were. Tuxtla Gutierraz was on our map but we didn't expect it to be where we found it. The elevation here is about 500 feet so flowers and trees are quite tropical and although it was still early morning the air was warm - almost hot.

Traffic Officer at Tuxtla Gutierraz.

After leaving Tuxtla Gutierraz, there is a gradual rise in elevation for the next 20 miles, then at Chiapa we begin a long sensational climb into the clouds, but today there were no clouds. After an hour or more of steady climbing the road makes a sharp turn to the right around mountain shoulder. There was parking space for a car so we stopped to stretch our legs and look around. The view from this point was magnificent. We had an unobstructed view of the country over which we had been travelling for the past two hours.

After about 20 minutes of sight-seeing we continued our upward journey. For the next hour we experienced some of the most sensational thrills as a mountain driving we are ever likely to have. The road was all black-topped but narrow. This was such rugged terrain that of necessity the road wound in and out of the most incredible places. Three after time the road disappeared to vot at a vast abyss dead ahead. On the other side of the ravine or abyss we could see the continuation of the road but no way to get to it, till we were right there. Then we found a road had been hewn out of the side of the cliff and we eventually caught up with the road we had seen. Hardly traffic was almost nil.

More next week.....

Yosts Describe May In Penna.

Coatesville, Pa. May 27 1967

Dear Tom -

Just a few lines to let you know what conditions are like in Eastern Pennsylvania Now don't think I am trying to rub it in because that is not the case, as we feel very sorry for you with the drought in progress. We certainly know what you are going through as we have had six years of drought in succession and we hope this summer will not make the seventh.

To begin, we have never seen nature as beautiful as it has been this month. The flowers, and the flowering shrubs and flowering trees have been most beautiful. The grass has never been greener, and the dogwood was out of this world. The azaleas are more beautiful than they were in Florence, S.C., when we came home and that is making a statement.

Now for the not so pleasant side. May has been a very cool month. Our temperatures are running about 10 to 12 degrees below normal. Rainfall is about normal. The vegetable gardens are about a month behind. If we could trade some of our rain for some of that beautiful warm Florida weather it certainly would even things up.

We arrived home the end of April and should have stayed till June. Will learn some day.

We certainly miss our many friends in the park, also Harry and Queens in "Mom's Go-Go", and Harry and Little Bit taking their daily stroll thru the park. Hope to be back early this fall.

Ralph Evinrude and his wife, singing star Frances Langford, will return today (Wednesday) from a recording engagement in Hollywood, Calif. The Evinrudes left Monday for the film capital. Miss Langford was due to record some radio commercials with Don Ameche on the "Bickerson's" theme.

"It seems like a long way to go for an hour's recording session, but it's worth it," said Evinrude before departing with his wife.

Two more Martin County bills became law Friday. They were a bill to permit the county to pay for ambulance services, and the bill to permit the county to acquire or lease lands for airport purposes. The latter was sparked by a desire to build up the Indiantown Troop Ranch airstrip.

Martin County was removed from the list of "no burn" counties in the state by Gov. Claude Kirk Thursday, according to county commission chairman Jack Saunderson.

"It doesn't mean those who want to burn don't have to obtain permits, because they do," he said. "But it means permits can be more readily given."

DAUNTLESS--The dredge, Dauntless, had to be moved many times Sunday and Monday as it cleaned shoals from the Okeechobee Waterway at The Crossroads, where the Intracoastal Waterway intersects. Pipelines that crossed the Intracoastal to dump spoil on Long Island, completely crossed the channel. Several boats ran aground trying to bypass the operation, including a 40-footer on route from the Bahamas to Cape Kennedy. She lay on the mud bank all day Sunday in spite of efforts to float her. The Dauntless will work its way up river, clearing near Sandaprit Park, Sunrise Inn and on the South Fork. Work is expected to be completed by the end of the week.

Navitsky Named County School Superintendent

Gov. Claude Kirk, late Friday afternoon, named James Navitsky, Martin County High School football coach and Ninth Grade School principal-designate, as superintendent of Martin County schools.

The appointment was made after several days in which Navitsky was interviewed by the governor's education aide, with approval of the Martin County Republican Committee and passed the customary Gov. Kirk character and record checkout by the Wackenhut organization.

When the OK's and checks were completed, Gov. Kirk handed Navitsky's appointment papers to William F. Murfin, Hobe Sound, chairman of the State Republican Committee, at Tallahassee who then flew to Stuart.

Just before 9 p.m. Friday, Navitsky, of Jensen Beach, and Dr. William Myers, knocked on the closed door of a room in the Instructional Center, E. Ocean Blvd., Stuart, and entered the room where the school board was meeting. Others present included Thomas L. Crook who resigned as superintendent to take a Federal post in a six-county branch, the press, two attorneys, a real estate agent, and several others.

"Friday, here's your new superintendent of schools," said Dr. Myers.

Navitsky gave a short prepared statement in which he admitted he couldn't "presume to know all of the answers or solutions to the many problems in the field of education and administration, but I shall endeavor to serve and work diligently for the benefit of the youth of our community," he said.

He called the position a challenge he "hoped to face with the cooperation of the many fine people in Martin County."

Chairman of the school board Joe Greenlees suggested that it would be a good idea if Navitsky and Crook spent several days conferring on matters to come up at Tuesday night's meeting of the school board.

Navitsky was called to the west Florida coast to be interviewed by Dr. Hugh Adams, Charlotte County educator, who has been an educational advisor to the governor.

Dr. Adams, who helped to write the campaign white papers for the governor, approved the young teacher and so informed Gov. Kirk.

Dale Clark, principal of Jensen Beach Elementary School, had been mentioned for the position. He had been quoted as saying he would take it only if the party particularly needed him to fill the spot. He is a Republican.

Also mentioned were J. C. Williams, assistant principal at Mc HS; James L. (Curt) Woodall, principal of MCHS; and Jack Smouse, who had been discussed as a "contender" for the position. He made a public announcement last week saying he had asked not to be considered because of personal plans, health and philosophy.

Navitsky, a graduate of West Chester State Teachers' College, Pennsylvania, received his master's degree at Temple University in Philadelphia. He has had almost 10 years of teaching experience, plus some administrative duties. He taught in junior and senior high schools in Philadelphia until two years ago at which time he came to Martin County as assistant principal at Stuart Junior High and its first football coach.

This past year he taught American History, physical education and driver education at MCHS, and coached the Tigers football team to its first successful season in years.

Navitsky looks even younger than his years. He was a registered Republican until coming to Florida, where he registered as a Democrat. He will switch parties and will run for reelection in May's Republican primaries.

County Actions

Martin County board of commissioners voted at its meeting Tuesday to ask for bids on a project to construct the grade for a one-mile stretch of Pratt & Whitney Road. It also voted to request a legislative population act to permit the county to spend its secondary road funds in Palm Beach County where the one-mile link will be built.

County attorney Dean Tooker was instructed to obtain a ruling by the attorney general on the use of $10,000 donated to this county several years ago by a private individual who wanted it used on the P & W road project. If possible, the money will be used towards the grade work.

Bids on this project will be returnable June 30 at a

New I-95 Route Revealed By County

Two routes of I-95 through St. Lucie and Martin Counties were revealed Thursday when the second possible route was shown at a special meeting of the county commission.

The map originated in the State Road Department and showed the existance of the two possible routes.

Officials admitted that the map came from the SRD at Tallahassee and that it arrived at the courthouse by mail Thursday.

The map added a second alternate route nearer the turnpike in both counties and placed the second choice well west of the North Fork of the St. Lucie River in Martin County.

I-95 is now the Turnpike.

Alternate 1 was flatly opposed in a unanimous vote of four county commissioners present at the meeting, and Alternate 2 was voted "acceptable, but only if it is moved about one-half mile west, particularly at Jonathan Dickinson State Park."

The Alternate 2 route in St. Lucie County would split with previously set Alternate 1 at Okeechobee Road west of the city of Ft. Pierce, but would veer southwesterly in direction, passing west of all branches of the North Fork of the St. Lucie River, passing into Martin County over C-23 canal roughly midway between the turnpike and the mouth of Bessey Creek.

It would continue southwest of Palm City, roughly paralleling the turnpike by a mile, and crossing the South Fork of the St. Lucie River just west of Cabana Point, then dropping south eventually to bisect the southwest square mile of Jonathan Dickinson State Park, but west of Kitchen's Creek.

The southern terminus of both alternates would be at MacArthur Blvd. in Palm Beach Gardens area of Palm Beach County.

The official map revealed access points in both alternate routes.

On Alternate 1, in Martin County, they would be at crossings on SR-707A, at East Ocean Blvd. (A-1-A) east of Stuart City limits, at US 1 southwest of Port Salerno, and at SR-708.

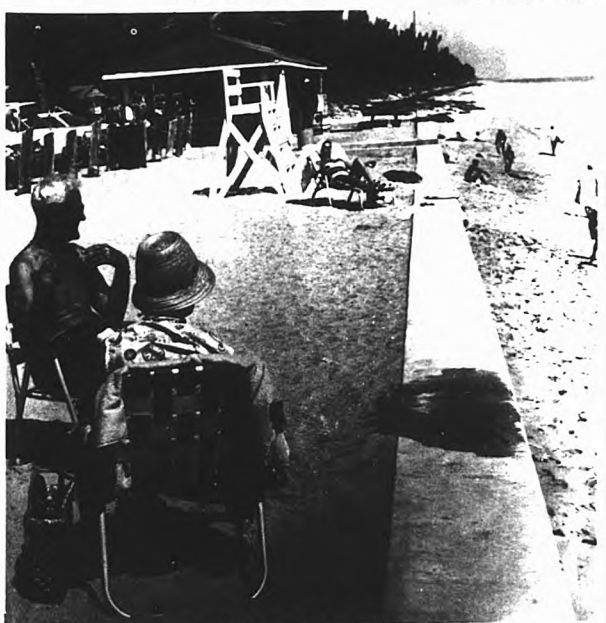
In St. Lucie County, the access points on Alternate 1 would be north of Orange Ave., at Okeechobee Road at White City, at Walton Rd. and at Port St. Lucie.

Under Alternate 2, the access points in Martin County would be on SR-714 at Palm City; at SR-76 about two miles northeast of the point where SR-76 crosses the turnpike; and at SR-708, well west of Hobe Sound.

In St. Lucie County, there would be just north of Orange Ave., and at Okeechobee Rd., as in Alternate 1, then at SR-712 at a point just west of Port St. Lucie and at Becker Road.

Alternate raised a storm of protest in Martin County from others than the county commission, including conservation groups and residential groups.

Jay Brown, chairman of the SRB, said hearings will be held in this area before any I-95 limited access roads were built.



LAZY SUMMER SEASON--It's time to bask in the sun, unhurriedly, and sorts let the world go by. Cooling breezes from the ocean, and the quiet murmur of waves washing up on the beach at Jensen's protected pavilion make an afternoon in the sun perfect for June. Comfort is the word... and these people know it.

A Few Weeks

Board Delays Jensen Purchase

The Martin County School Board put off the purchase of a site for the proposed new Jensen Beach School "for a few weeks" just before the regular board meeting Tuesday night at the county courthouse.

Joe Greenlees, board chairman, told The Mirror, "We feel that it would not be fair to our new superintendent to make a selection of the site without his seeing the available sites and making a recommendation. For this reason we are going to set up a special work session and get together with the property owners.

High on the list of "favorites" in the land deals is the property owned by Harry Hoke, mayor of Ocean Breeze Park.

The present school site is appraised at $70,000 and has slightly less than five acres in it. The school buildings were an original WPA project of the Great Depression in the 1930's. A new cafeterium was added.

Upon recommendation of both retiring school superintendent Thomas L. Crook and newly-appointed superintendent James Navitsky, Walter Peterson was appointed principal of the new Ninth Grade School, formerly Murray Junior-Senior High School.

Peterson, who formerly was principal of Port Salerno Elementary, was assistant principal at Stuart Junior High this year. He will fill the seat vacated at Sixth by Navitsky).

Other moves of the school board Tuesday night included the appointment of six teachers to elementary positions and the naming of a new high school band director to replace LaMoyne Holt. Kenneth Mauger, a native of Jacksonville, is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and Cincinnati Conservatory. He is 36 and comes from New Richmond, Ohio.

A pre-meeting personnel session had been held by the board in the office of attorney James Littman.

NEW DEPARTMENT COMMANDER--Philip A. Kirse, Stuart, was elected Department Commander of Florida at the department convention of the Veterans of World war I, June 9-11 in Clearwater. He was Department Senior Vice Commander, past Department Deputy Inspector, Past Second District Commander and Past Commander of Martin County Barracks #854, VWWI, Jensen Beach, of which he is charter. Kirse, who enlisted in the Marines in 1917, is editor and publisher of The 854 Barrage, monthly publication, and is a member of the American Legion and is Post Advocate of VFW, John R. Matthews Post #8194.

Hodapp Heads Jury

Jackie Hodapp was named foreman of the grand jury by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge after Hodapp had been selected by other members of the jury drawn Tuesday.

Vice chairman is Richard W. Hardy, Hobe Sound, and Eric Parker, Booker Park, was named clerk.

After the jury had been chosen, State Attorney Arthur L. Steed and his assistant, Spencer Gilbert, met in closed session for some time.

Judge Trowbridge emphasized in his address to the jury that it had investigative duties if it so chose.

Drawn and sworn in for the job to last through the second Tuesday of January were the following: James A. Stewart, Stuart; Buddy Brooks, Stuart; Mrs. Emily C. Chiles, Stuart; Gilmer T. Last Mile Agreed On

Counties Cooperating On Pratt-Whitney Link

In an agreement worked out Monday, Martin County will build the Pratt & Whitney Road "missing link" one mile into Palm Beach County, using both private funds and Martin County's secondary road funds; and in return, Palm Beach County will maintain the last mile when it is constructed.

The agreement was the result of a meeting of the two-county commissions at Palm Beach County Courthouse. The agreement, obtained by this county to get the last mile in Palm Beach County needed to link Pratt-Whitney Road with SR-708, was spear-headed by chairman John P. Saunderson.

The move to keep Hunt Club Colony was headed by commissioner Elmer Fowler, into whose district the south county-line subdivisions were transferred in the 1965 reapportionment of county districts.

Up to $2-1/2 millions in assessed valuation could be lost to Palm Beach County in the annexation move, it was pointed out.

Martin County was represented at the meeting by Saunderson, viewers, commissioners Frank Wachs and J. W. Hussey; county attorney Dean Tooker and county engineer Fred L. Bell. Palm Beach County was represented by commissioner L. F. VanKessel, Edward Bandlow, George V. Warren and E. D. Taylor, plus an attorney and county engineer George Frost.

Although the annexation question apparently will not be considered in this session of the legislature, Saunderson said part of the agreement was "to talk out the problem, not jump in."

The Pratt & Whitney Road project calls for a population act giving Martin County permission to spend its funds in Palm Beach County.

MIRACLES

Some skeptics say, "Oh, the miracles, I can't accept miracles." One may drop a brown seed in the black soil and up comes a green shoot. You see it grow and by and by you pull up its root and find it red. You cut the red root and find it has a white heart. Can any one tell how this comes about, how brown cast into black results in green and then in red and white? Yet you eat your radish without troubling your mind over miracles. Men are not distressed by miracles in the dining room; they reverence them all for religion.

of the 20th century seems to be the ever-increasing mobility of the American people, who have established a pattern of migration that has astounded the Bureau of Census.

State Road Department officials originally said that the road would serve more people if it were along the coastal route.

I-95 would be an important link in the growth factor of this county. It would add access routes to the county that are not now provided by the Sunshine Parkway, a toll road that does not allow stopoffs in the towns along the route through Florida.

We believe that more and more people would take the opportunity to stop off in this county with the three planned access routes that would be available to I-95 in Martin County.

The State Road Board should be commended for recognizing the problems that the alternate route through the east portion of the county would create, and for offering of hold hearings on the future and final route of I-95.

We are proud of the youth of this county. They got the job that needed to be done accomplished, and did it pretty well by themselves.

On the other hand, the Democrats of the county find themselves leaderless, apathetic and tired. Only one bright organizational light has befallen the political scene of the Democrats: that is the organization and promotion of the Democratic women.

Whether the Democrats will continue to allow the political arena to be dominated by the Republicans is not yet clear, but we are certain that if organizations await the primaries, there will be too little too late for the Democrats.

Successes of the Republican Party make it possible to attract brighter and more qualified candidates to that party. People who would have considered themselves cannon-fodder before are now giving political posts deep consideration.

Any President who pursued Cleveland's course today would unquestionably be bitterly condemned. "The expectation of parental care", which he feared, has become a fact, and the care is becoming more lavish each year, and the tax burden more oppressive. The parental psychology has even reached the point where government spokesmen lecture the people on how they are to run their businesses and spend their money, telling them to exercise restraint and discipline.

And quite logically, falling back on parental prerogatives, government feels no necessity of exercising similar restraint and discipline in its own spending policies. Some might call this "system" a travesty of self-government.

No Smoke-Filled Room?

If the announcement of Jim Navitsky as school superintendent had been made in a smoke-filled room among a group of politicians smoking very large, black cigars, it wouldn't have been surprising. The stage for the "politically practical" appointment was so set.

Not to say that the appointment wasn't a popular one; we have heard very few persons complain about the picking of Navitsky. One of the most popular teachers in the Martin County School System, Navitsky has the support of many educators. He has a big job on his hands and will probably do a very capable one.

But to have the chairman of the local party walk into a shirt-sleeve school board workshop session and make the announcement, following a late night meeting of the Republican committee, was a little too smacking of the bossism qualities of machine politics.

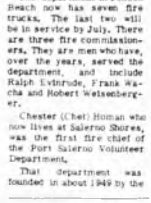
The announcement of something so important should have been made by the governor, with a small measure of pomp.

For Navitsky to tie his statement to the press, accepting the post, to the fact that he would change his registration to the Republican Party was also out of line. It smelled like a deal was cooked up, and like the committee held the post out to change a voter's registration. Navitsky is too good a man to have the stigma of a back-room politician tagged to his name.

Navitsky will make a good candidate to run for election. He is young, bright and determined to be a professional administrator in the school system. His enjoyment of coaching will, unfortunately, take a back seat to his sense of moving up in the professional status of education.

There is a right way and a wrong way to do things. The political plums of being "in" can be handled with dignity, and any post, especially one as important as that of superintendent of schools, should have had a better stage from which the political appointment could have been made.

Navitsky will need the support of all citizens in the problem-filled year ahead for our school system.



Guts, And A Bunch Of Help

Fire Departments Were Built By Men, Donations

by Dick Campbell

Last week was Volunteer Firemen's Week in Martin County, a time when the hard-working volunteers were honored by their county and the people who live in it. In a proclamation passed by the county commission, local volunteer firemen were cited for their hard work and told of the pride the county took in its corps of volunteers.

There was a day when this county had little fire protection. Back in May, of 1947, then county manager A. A. Buck Hendry formed the first department in Jensen Beach. He got an old fire department truck from the county and assigned it to Jensen District. A. J. White was appointed fire chief, and he was assisted by Al and John Hendry and (now chief) Randolph Spinney.

The truck was garaged at Pete Ward's property until a fire house was built next to Jensen Hardware, at the food of Commercial Street. The old fire house is now a warehouse for some of the department's unused equipment.

Donations were asked by the department, and enough money was raised to buy a newer truck, with the county paying 40% of the cost. The first fire truck was then given to the Rio Fire Department in 1951, when the firemen on FEC railroad trains kept starting fires with their flares. Al Walker was named chief of the Rio Department, and served in that position until last January, when Bill Ritzman became the chief. The fire hall was built in 1957, and now the department has two trucks and a jeep.

Jensen Beach continued to grow, and the department purchased a 1000 gallon truck from Civil Defense, and rebuilt it into a water carrier. Two more surplus trucks were acquired, one being made into a woods truck, the other into a utility truck to carry extra hose, pumps and other equipment.

Growing out of the old fire house, the firemen got county commissioner Seymour Gideon to purchase the site where the present fire house sits. Commissioner Frank Warha succeeded Gideon and added his help in getting the 40% participating funds from the county to add to donations collected by the firemen to build the building.

A meeting hall was added later under the same arrangement. The firemen pride themselves in raising all the money from special events, such as dinners on the causeway and in the recreation hall, to furnish the meeting hall. "Not one dime came from donations to the fire department," said Spinney proudly.

The department in Jensen Beach now has seven fire trucks. The last two will be in service by July. There are three fire commissioners. They are men who have, over the years, served the department, and include Ralph Evinrude, Frank Wacha and Robert Weissenberger.

Chester (Chet) Homan who now lives at Salerno Shores, was the first fire chief of the Port Salerno Volunteer Department.

That department was founded in about 1949 by the same group that formed the civic club in 1947, according to assistant chief Jack Saunderson.

"After the civic center was built, we decided to build a fire house. We were given a temporary four track by the county... we had a big parade and all, and we built the fire house that was torn down only four or five years ago to make room for the present one," he said, adding, "The roof and many other parts, including the doors, of the first building came from the old Witham Field barracks."

It is now more than seven years since passage of the bill making widows and orphans of WWII and the Korean Conflict eligible for pension benefits. There are many, however, who are still unaware of their eligibility.

Prior to July 1, 1960, widows and children of WWII or Korean veterans were entitled to pensions only if the deceased veteran died as a result of a service-connected disability. But on that date P.L. 86-211 provided a pension similarly granted to WWI veterans' widows and children on a non-service connected basis.

The pensions range from $27 to $64 monthly for widows and $12 is added for each child. The pension for orphans is $38 monthly. The benefit is payable to a veteran's child or children even though the widow may have remarried or her income exceeds the limitation.

Veterans' Administration will pay $250 toward the veteran's burial expenses for veterans discharged under conditions other than dishonorable, and who have been either wartime or Korean Conflict veterans.

Minute With Social Security

Whenever possible, The Mirror will print this column as a public service. Questions may be mailed to "A Minute With Social Security," 1804 Okeechobee Rd., Ft. Pierce, for a personal reply.

Q. Someone told me that the $3.00 medicare payments that I make each month is matched by the government. In other words, in reality, it costs $6.00 a month for this Part B, medical and doctor care coverage, is that why this second part of medicare is strictly on a voluntary choice basis"

A. Supplementary medical insurance is strictly voluntary because you must pay $3.00 a month to get this coverage. Before we can take the money out of your check or send you a bill, you must voluntarily sign up for this coverage three months before your 65th birthday. The government puts into the Medicare Trust Fund on a dollar for dollar matching basis. Yes, in reality, your supplementary medicare coverage costs $6.00 per month, and $3.00 of this comes from the government's general revenue fund. It does not come from social security money.

Q. I didn't sign up for this Supplementary Medical Insurance when I had the chance and now I'm told that I can't sign up. Is this true?

A. Yes, partially true. You can't sign up right now because the "season" is closed. It will open for three months on October 1 thru Dec. 31, 1967. Your coverage then won't be effective until July 1, 1968.

Grassroots Opinion

"The Postmaster General of the United States has suggested that the Post Office Department be taken out of government and converted into a private corporation. We have pushed this idea for many years, feeling that private enterprise, given the budget now allotted to the P.O., would give twice the service, and show a nice profit doing so. There would be no 'free riders' in such an operation, as parcel post now is. Either the thing would make a profit, or it would be done away with. Antiquated methods of operation, antiquated equipment, and inefficient operations would be done away with in a hurry, and with the removal of the political yoke around its neck, the results could be nothing but good."

Times- Press

"There were more murders than ever before last year. Crime was on the increase and seems to be this year....Last year only one criminal was executed in the United States. Yet in 1935 there were 199 executions... The idea seems to be spreading that capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime. But those who advocate its abolition have not yet come up with the kind of a substitute, by way of punishment, that seems to stem the tide."

Republican-Courier
Findlay, Ohio

"Every couple of years, Congress wrestles with the problem of increasing social security benefits and taxes. If it wasn't so costly the whole affair might be somewhat amusing. Each time the various committees go through the same round of hearings, listen to a parade of expert witnesses, and, at some length, draft a program of benefits and taxes for the next 25 or more years. This extended program lasts long enough for serious criticism for a few days or weeks at best. Then the clamor starts for new benefits which results in new taxes and within a few months Congress is back at it, reworking the whole program again."

Tribune
Morris, Minn.

"The medicine men of the U.S. treasury have discovered that it is...lack of 'international liquidity' which is causing the trouble, and not our own theory that there simply isn't enough gold in the world to keep our spenders happy, so we are now going to spend something else-- International paper gold."

Girls Rescued

A riptide inshore from the rocks at the Jensen Beach pavilion swept 10-year old Debbie Corrie offshore 150 yards and south from the pavilion about a quarter of a mile last Wednesday afternoon.

The frightened Jensen Beach youngster, backed up by his brother Bob, was rescued by chief life guard Jack Cammack, while two boys, Jimmie Walton and John Barnes, both 14, stood by. Debbie's companion, Kayleen Penick, 11, who was stranded on the rocks.

The Corrie girl was in water a little more than waist deep when, according to witnesses, she lost her footing and was swept over the rocks. The tide was at ebb, which is when most incidents have happened at the rocks area.

Debbie drifted south and further offshore until she was at a point off the South pavilion when Cammack reached her with a guard's buoy. Bob Cammack swam out with a second buoy further south, to guard against a possible miss by Jack as the girl drifted south.

With the child clutching the buoy, Cammack stopped on the trip back to the beach to pick up the Penick girl.

The children were among about 200 people at the beach.

STEVE G'TS MORE SNOOK- The snook were biting the morning of June 5 when Steve Stephens snagged these three beauties. He was fishing at his favorite spot in the Hand estate with live shrimp. These three were caught all in about an hour, together with a small snook which Steve threw back in.

Ceramics Shop Is Pischl's Hobby

Not too many people know that we have a privately owned ceramic shop in this park. Most any day if you happen to stroll up North Fourth St., you are likely to see Adolph Pischl working at one of his latest creations. He has his own kiln and does his own firing. He doesn't confine his hobbies to ceramics for he has some quite elaborate pieces of mosaic work for the casual caller to admire.

Adolph Pischl is Austrian by birth and for years he worked at his trade of house painting in North Jersey. Tiring of city life the Pischls bought some property on Long Beach Island called Harvey Cedars. Within a year Al as he was commonly called, had built himself a house and two rental homes. This was his first attempt at construction work of any kind.

Over the next few years the Pischl properties developed further with more homes. The Pischl family became the senior citizens and all their neighbors and tenants developed a sincere affection for this kindly, hard-working man and his wife.

In the late 1950's Al started off his property, setting up a winter residence in Florida. By a combination of good luck and timing when the 1962 storm hit the area, the 1962 storm hit the area, all that the Pischls had left was their own home in Harvey Cedars, and that was a complete loss. The Pischl house washed 600 feet across the Boulevard into the Bay where it stood intact in about four feet of water from March 6 until July 4 when it was destroyed by fire. Al often remarked that he was glad to do his part to Celebrate July 4th.

The Pischls now live in Ocean Breeze Park. They manage to get back to see their friends and one-time neighbors almost every year, and they are more than a little touched by the affection shown them when these neighbors dedicated their street in their honor with the name "Pischl" Alley."

(We are indebted to the Long Beach Island's Free Weekly of August 11, 1966 for much of the above information,—T.C.)

Ruth Phelps Writes From Massachusetts

We have a letter from Ruth Phelps which will interest her friends:

North Adams, Mass.
June 7, 1967

Spring or Summer has finally reached the Berkshires and we are having beaudrul weather, in the 80's. The poor flowers, shrubs and flowering trees are so confused that they will never be the same. Tulips are out (in June yet), lilacs are just out; horse chestnut trees are just beautiful, and the hawthorne tree tiful, and the hawthorne tree has finished blossoming. They usually blossom when everything elso has gone by.

Coming home I had a real good visit with my daughter, Shirley. Tonight they will board a jet for Germany for a three year stay.

My son and family went camping Memorial weekend. I chickened out and just went days. I enjoyed every menute of being outdoors and we walked miles. Food tastes so good cooked over a campfire that we all ate like food was going out of style.

Ellen Oak's flower garden is just beautiful. She and Harry are not gardening for anyone but themselves this year but she raises quite a bit of asparagus to sell and is it ever delicious right out of her garden. (She gives me mine.)

My garden is shaping up now. I've dug until I tire myself all out. There is plenty of guackgrass to dig out. In about two weeks it should be pretty. Say hello to Don Wells for me. I didn't see him to say goodbye.

Love from Ruth

Veterans Thank Shufflers

Some two or three weeks ago Harry Wilkie through this page asked for donations of shuffleboard cues and blocks for the Veterans' Administration to equip their two courts. The response was good he received five cues and five sets of discs. Harry just received the following letter:

June 6, 1967

Dear Mr. Wilkie,

We would like to express our deep appreciation to you and your friends at the Ocean Breeze Park for the donation of shuffleboard equipment to be used by our patients.

As you know, the patients enjoy this activity, and having the proper equipment stimulates their interest in the game.

Once again our many thanks

Very truly yours,

PINK TRUMPET TREE- Mrs. Ruth Rounds' pink trumpet tree at the corner of Centre St. and Sixth has been a thing of beauty for the past week. Every morning it would be covered with the delicate pink trumpet-shaped blossoms as in the picture. Late in the day these blossoms would drop to the ground to make room for a fresh display the following morning.

Cadwells Have Cottage Home

Mr. & Mrs. Willis Cadwell came to Ocean Breeze about 1957 and bought the Cornelius cottage at the corner of Broad and South Fifth, where they now live. The Cadwells had been wintering in Florida for the three previous years as renters.

Willis Cadwell started business early in life as office boy for the New York Life Insurance Co., at their Detroit branch. He was moved from one branch to another, finally terminating in the Head office in New York City. He retired in 1949 after working for this same company for 48 years.

His wife Thelma also was also a business woman, working for the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York City for 32 years. They built their home in 1924 and lived there continuously until they started wintering in Florida.

The Cadwells left May 27, for their northern home. On their way they will be stopping at Ormond Beach to visit Willis's sister who is at the Ormond Hote.

Guatemalan Holiday

Chapter 6

Whenever there is a possibility of some good picture taking, Nellie usually offers to drive, so it often happens that she is at the wheel on some of the most difficult roads, like those I described in chapter 5. This last piece of road was so startling that I just forgot all about my camera. Those who know my love of photography will appreciate how thrilling that drive must have been. Anyway, pictures would have to be taken on the run as there were no places to pull off the road.

We passed the height of land and had descended perhaps a thousand feet when we came to a wide place in the road, so Nellie stopped the car and we got out to look around. The road at this point skirted a steep cliff and below us - about 200 feet - was a small level valley and a Chumula Indian village. The houses were all of adobe brick and each house had it's own piece of land which was planted to various vegetables and flowers. From our position, the whole village resembled a patchwork quilt. Some boys in the village spotted our car and in no time they had scrambled up that steep bank and tried to sell us some carnations of which they had two large bunches. Of course we had no means of keeping them so we gave the dirty faced little scamps some coins and tourneyed onward.

I should explain that from this point onward we are in Mayan country. The Mayans must take a pride in this must take a pride in their ancestry for all the people in one certain tribe wear the same kind of clothing. Even the cloth they use is woven on the same looms the tribe has used for generations. These Chamulas for example, wear a sort of tunic and very short shorts with practically no legs to them. Their straight, wide brimmed, straw hat has gayly colored ribbons which dangle a foot or more below the brim. When in their 'Sunday Best' they look real smart.

We had not driven far when we caught up with one of these men who was thumbing a ride. The man was clean and tidyly dressed so in spite of our resolve to never pick up a stranger, this time we made the exception.

Anyway as Nellie remarked, "With those short pants - how can he carry a concealed weapon?" How wrong we were. We hadn't travelled very far when one of those big wasps, as big as, if not bigger than a bumble-bee, flew in the open window and started buzzing in the windshield. I reached forward to flick it out with my hand but our passenger stopped me with a quick "No, no", and almost before he could add, "Una momento" he had a huge knofe at least two feet long in his hand. Nellie was sitting between us so he reached forward in front of her and killed the wasp and neatly flicked it outside with the tip of the blade. He then replaced the knife down the back of his neck in the holster which he wears for that purpose. Our friend managed to make up understand that the sting from this wasp was very bad.

Mayan Indian With Typical Knife

We left our passenger at the San Cristobal market, then went looking for our hotel, the Hotel Espanol. When we found it, I must admit we were very disappointed. There was just a door in a high, blank wall and no signs of car parking. However once inside, we found the hotel lobby was quite nice, and the desk clerk very polite. He sent a boy to carry in our over-night suite cases and then to show us to the hotel parking lot which is protected by a fifteen feet high wall and a padlocked gate. This hotel also had the inside garden patio where one could sit on a bench beside a small fountain surrounded by shrubbery and flowers. No tropical plants here as the elevation is 8,000 feet and it gets positively chilly at night. The hotel was warm and very comfortable, the meals were good and the prices quite reasonable.

Next morning we visited the market which is a central gathering place for all the mountain villages around. Tourist literature praised this market very highly for the colorful costumes worn by the members of various tribes. However people travelling many miles over dusty roads, handline pigs, chickens, vegetables and what-have-you, are not going to wear their best Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. We'll only that, it is quite chilly at this altitude in the early morning and most people were wearing their blanket like outer garments, so we were rather disappointed. I wanted to get a picture of one of those wicked looking knives the men all seem to carry, so noticing one man by himself I approached him and managed to talk to him into drawing his knife so I could get the desired picture. He was very shy about doing so but a few pesos turned the trick.

Allan Winegard Convalescing

Allan Winegard is out of the hospital following surgery. A letter to Bun and Rose Miller best describes his condition:

R.D.2, Stockton, N.J.
June 8, 1967

Dear Bun and Rose,

I see by the papers that the Florida drought has been broken and not any too soon.

I have been out of the hospital two weeks today. I am feeling a little stronger each day but have a long way to go before I feel like I used to. Seven weeks in the hospital, bronchoscopic examination, an operation, and countless needles etc, took their toll, but I will eventually come back, I hope. I still have to take medication to eliminate my trouble.

We have been staying with my daughter but we are going to our home on the Delaware tomorrow when I think I will make better progress.

Have a good summer and a nice visit home.

Regards,
Allan

Girls Retreat Set For This Weekend

A retreat for junior and senior young ladies will be held this weekend, June 16 to 18 at the Canacle Retreat House in Lantana. On June 20-21, an overnight retreat will be held for freshmen and sophomores. Call 582-2534 for information.

Fishing Excellent

Plug casting for spotted sea trout over the weekend was good in the Indian River where the flats were loaded with all sizes. Good catches continue.

Both Forks of the St. Lucie River are well stocked with snook plus scads of jacks and numerous tarpon. Tarpon running about 40-pounds. Also plenty of spotted sea trout taken in the North Fork.

Snook fishing good at the Inlet, too... a bit hard to take, tho...can be seen just laying there on flooding tides, apparently indifferent.

Whiting in the surf, very few blues, some pompano, some snook.

Offshore boats doing well with dolphin, plenty of action from kings, and false albacore in big sizes.

Fishing along the reefs inshore has been productive of unusually large numbers of big fish, groupers, jewfish and the like.

Sailfish Entries

A nine-pound bluefish caught in the Indian River June 7 by Evelyn Nelson, 402 Oleander Ave., Stuart, was entered in the Stuart Sailfish Summer Tournament. Mrs. Nelson caught and entered a nice channel bass June 6.

Dr. A. B. Crowe of Columbus, Ohio, entered a 10-lb. 4 oz. spotted trout he caught in the Indian River May 19.

Other catches recently recorded include an 8-lb. 12-oz. mangrove snapper, caught by Harry Simpson of Orlando; a gaffopsail weighing 7-lb. 6 oz. by Tiny Hopkins, Stuart, in St. Lucie River; and a 26-lb. 12 oz. tarpon caught in the North Fork of St. Lucie River by Bruce Thompson, Stuart.

During the week the 4-H'ers will give demonstrations in agriculture, food and nutrition, vegetables and home and family projects. They will judge vegetables, poultry and dairy products and will vie for awards in public speaking and language.

New State 4-H Council officers will be elected at the congress.

4-H is the youth phase of the educational programs carried on by the Florida Agricultural Extension Service University of Florida.

Chips, Divots And Tips

by Matt Moore

The Buick Open was high-ly successful with 43 entries. There were two gross prizes and two net prizes. Four players tied for low gross with 147's, Demi Rinaldi, Lou Papaldero, Clyde Gibson and Charlie Grant.

The playoff for first and second place is Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m. Low net winner was George Wilson with a net of 130, second low net hinges on a playoff between Lou Papaldero and Clyde Gibson who had 131's. If Papaldero and Gibson finish one two in the gross playoff, the second low net goes to Jean Wilchester whose net score is 132. Sorta complicated. Will have to wait til Tuesday for the final results. (Too late for press-time, Ed.)

Blind dinners this week with a score of 118 were Jim Dragseth, John Dragseth, Curt Whitcar and Clyde Gibson.

Blind Bogey winners were George Ogg with 75 and Jack Williams with 79.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson won the twi-light mixed foursome with a net 30. Runners up were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barth with 33.

The summer Junior Golf program got off to a good start with 20 pupils for the classes. In the weekly junior tournament Thursday, Walter Eichen was first, low net with 34 for 9 holes; 2nd was Eddie Eichen with 35; tied for 3rd with 37's were Steve Martin and Rudy Johnson.

In the girls' division, Kathy Martin and Debbie DeStefano tied for first with net 42's.

Don't forget to sign up for the Indian River League team match to be played at Indian Hill, June 20. Sign up by the 18th.

Congrats to Jane Grant for her 79 last week.

LESSON

The Mechanical Side; Aiming, Hooks, Slices

The mechanical side of golf deals with the flight and direction of a golf ball.

Flight is the trajectory of the ball; direction is the push or pull, or hook or slice.

Most players think you aim a golf ball in just one position, the starting position. You really aim in all four positions, at throughout the whole swing.

There's the position you start in, the one you swing back to, the one in which you swing down, and the one you finish in.

The plane of the swing is your arming device, and the plane in the hitting position determines the height and direction of the ball. If the plane is outside and in, the ball will start left; if the plane is inside and out, it will start right. If the plane is on line with the target, the ball will start at the target.

Hooks and slices reflect the face of the club. If open at the hit, the ball will slice; if closed at the hit, the ball will hook. If square at the hit the ball will maintain the direction it starts on.

Lining up properly in the starting position is most important, because if you start good you usually finish good. A good starting position gives you a good impression to hit back to.

To establish a true line of flight, play with the ball opposite your left heel. The perpendicular line to heel to the ball line is your line of flight. Swing down on this line and you will get better results.

SCHOOL'S OUT!--These young Martin County sun worshipers stretch out on the beach, relaxing after a busy year's study. It looks like a long, sweet summer ahead with swimming, surfing and having fun....then, come September, school for some, college or jobs for others.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

Fishing can be elaborate, complex, with a trip to the sea-bait and renting bigger sea boats and equipment, or it can be the nice pole and bobber affair on the canal of a neighborhood creek. Either way, it gets us out in the fresh air and sunshine, lets our minds off the cares of the day.

Unless you are the experienced type who knows how to cast for fishes, fishing is relatively simple. Fishing is good for the soul and nerves, but it has some built-in hazards, most of them can be avoided.

The most common fishing accident is getting a hooked hook in the flesh, usually a finger or hand, but sometimes a leg or other part of the body. Lures and hooks left unprotected on a dock or on the bottom of a boat cause many of these accidents.

The wise fisherman guards against accidents by shielding the hook. One simple way to do this is to stick a small cork over the barb. Lures should be stored in the tackle box until needed, and returned promptly to the box when removed from the leader. The bank sign, your favorite fishing hat is, of course, a reasonable safe place to keep lures you intend to use later in the day.

Fly or bait casters are responsible for many hook accidents to their fellow fishermen. Particularly dangerous are the "backlasher" who cast with a side arm motion rather than overhead. Train yourself to look before each cast to make certain no one is in the way. This will save some injured noses snagging on flying and careless arm-casts.

In removing a hook from flesh, don't push it through under the skin, or cut the hook off and dig it back out. A friend caught his slipping hook and cast on both of his arms with double hooks, lodging the hook.

If, despite precautions, a hook becomes imbedded in your hand or finger, don't try to pull it out. Your physician will snip off the shank and push it through, thus causing less further damage to torn flesh. The doctor will also, if necessary, administer antibiotics and tetanus toxoid. Hook wounds often lean to infection unless treated properly.

Fishing is fun. A fish hook through the hand can spoil the day. With care it can be avoided.

Applications For River Works

U. S. Corps of Army Engineers reported applications for three permits for various works in this area early this week.

Outboard Marine Corp. asked for a permit to construct a bulkhead and to dredge and fill in the St. Lucie River adjacent to the Okeechobee Waterway northeasterly of the Florida East Coast railroad bridge in Stuart. The proposed bulkhead would be about 850 feet long and would enclose an irregular shaped area. It is proposed to dredge to a depth of 17 feet below mean low water.

Stuart city commission has already given its approval to the dredge and fill operation, as an expansion of OMC's test facility in the area.

Permission was requested by Florida Power and Light Co. to install a submarine power cable in and across the South Fork of the river north of Palm City Bridge. The cable would be buried in a trench with a minimum cover of 18 inches except under the Okeechobee Waterway channel, where the top of the cable would be 18 feet below mean low water for a distance of 75 feet each side of the center line of the waterway. The cable would be 800 feet north of the present bridge, presumably well north of the proposed new bridge, as well.

Martin County Cable Co. applied for permission to install a submarine television cable across the St. Lucie River and the Okeechobee Waterway southwesterly of Roosevelt Bridge. The cable would be buried in a trench with a minimum cover of six feet except under the Waterway channel, where it would be buried at least 30-feet below mean low water for a distance of 100 feet each side of the center line of the waterway.

Comments or objections on all three applications should be filed in time to be received at Jacksonville by June 22, according to the Corps.

Lancasters Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary

Jimmie Lancaster, Gadsden, grandson, registered the guests from a table covered with white satin and laid with gold net and chantilly lace. The table held an arrangement of gold summer flowers. On display was a wedding picture of the Lancasters made in 1917.

County Appeals Suit

A notice of appeal to circuit court decision of March 3 was filed Friday by county attorney Dean Tooker. The decision gave Mrs. Florence M. Barnes, Chicago, clear title to a stretch of beach road 16-feet wide and 330 feet long on Hutchinson Island.

The land lies south of the county's Jensen Beach oceanfront and became the subject of litigation when local attorneys for Mrs. Barnes, owner of a Chicago theatre ticket agency, sought to clear the title clouded by takings for SR-A-1-A in 1956 and 1957.

At that time a swap of land was agreed upon, but the swap was never completed. Tooker maintained that since no swap was consummated, and since the title clouded by had maintained the road, a marl, hard-surface and sand trail, it continued in county ownership.

Judge Trowbridge ruled otherwise during the state's the appeal filed Friday. The review of the Fourth District Court of Appeals was asked.

Mayaca Groves Foreclosure Suit

Mortgage foreclosure proceedings were filed against Port Mayaca Groves, Inc., Friday afternoon, by Levere Montgomery and George H. Inman in circuit court, Stuart.

Included as defendants in the suit in addition to the groves company were Liberty National Bank of St. Petersburg, Exchange National Bank of Tampa, Dixie Lime and Stone Co., no address; United States of America, because of tax liens; James K. Stebrecht, Hyman L. Rosenfeld and James R. Bryan.

Lands, groves, chattels, buildings and personal property were listed in the suit. The amount of the mortgage was not listed.

Papers were filed with the clerk's office by Royce H. Lewis, Fort Pierce attorney.

Port Mayaca Groves, Inc., purchased the property, most of which is in mature trees, lying south of SR 76 and west of US 441 at Port Mayaca, in April, 1963. At the time, Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. provided $3,150,000 mortgage money for the new firm.

Seller was Bessemer Properties, Inc., a Michael Phipps firm in Palm Beach. The selling price was believed to have been $3,500,000.

The company has been in financial difficulties on many occasions in the past four years.

Judge Questions Juvenile Ruling

Martin County's juvenile court has had its first case under the new U.S. Supreme Court ruling which held that juveniles are entitled to counsel.

Judge Mallory L. Johnson, juvenile court, named an attorney to represent a 13-year old girl, under indigency rights protected in the ruling. The child was charged by her mother with being ungovernable, staying away from home. The mother warns about $45 a week, the father is "not available at this time."

The Supreme Court interpretation requires that each juvenile be given notice of charges, adequately and before the hearing, and that he be provided counsel if he cannot afford one. It gives the offender the right to confront his accuser and to cross- examination, with hearsay ruled out.

The offender must be advised that he does not have to answer questions, if they would incriminate him, and in the end he has a right to appeal.

Judge Johnson pointed out some discrepancies in the ruling. "As juvenile judge, I can send a child to jail to thus over transgressions without right of bail. This, actually, takes away from children a constitutional right held by adults."

"Under these rules," he went on, "a youngster who has broken into a house and knows it, may be cautioned not to admit it, to incriminate himself by counsel. So we have a situation in which we are legally teaching children to lie in order to defend themselves under dictates of the U.S. Supreme Court.

"What better way to make criminals than to teach children that they may lie in court to beat the law," he said.

The amount of the treasury bill was not specified.

Frank A. Wacha, county commissioner, said $65,000 in principal, plus $8,560 in interest, $91,130 in fee charges and $121 for the tax assessor, were needed in the Inlet transaction.

It isn't a news story! And a news report isn't an editorial. Many newspaper readers confuse the two very often call a news report an editorial.

DEFINITION OF A NEWS REPORT

A news report tells you what happened, to whom, where, when and how. It contains only the facts without expression of a reporter's or editor's opinion.

DEFINITION OF AN EDITORIAL

This is an expression of opinion by the newspaper. It does not appear in the news columns, but on the editorial page a page designated as such. Remember that this editorial page is also open to expressions of opinion by our readers simply write a letter to the editor.

St. Joseph College Plans $750,000 Dormitory

St. Joseph College of Jensen Beach will build a $750,000 three-story dormitory building, with cafeteria included, according to documents revealed at the courthouse Wednesday.

Plans for the construction, on file with the county building inspector's department, show the building will be built on the west side of Sewall's Point Road, opposite the main entrance road to the college and novitiate, on a 2.7 acre tract.

As soon as a permit is issued, Frank J. Rooney Construction Co., of Miami and Fort Lauderdale, will start construction. Issuance of the permit has been delayed pending the taking of an examination by the man designated by the contractor to head the local project.

Central Florida's highest office building, a 15-foot structure at Orlando, was recently completed for the Citizens' National Bank of Orlando by the Rooney firm. The firm also build four $6 million projects at Coral Ridge.

Thomas J. Madden of Miami is the architect, according to a notice of commencement for m filed. He has done much of the work for the college so far, including the chapel.

Financing, mortgage and notes filed indicated that Rooney and Mrs. Lillian R. Rooney, both of Miami, were parties to a $750,000 loan from People's First National Bank of Miami Shores, and that a lease arrangement had been entered into for the construction period.

Mother Louis Edward Dumm, president of Sisters of St. Joseph, Inc., signed papers for the order.

Rogers Urges County To Purchase Beachfront

Martin County officials were urged Monday by U. S. Rep. Paul Rogers to acquire more beachfront property so the county's share on federal project payments could be reduced.

In a letter to county commission chairman Jack Saunderson, Rogers said:

"I would caution that one of the greatest single items when the county must overcome is the burden of public participation.

"This, of course directly affects the ratio of public participation which is the overwhelming item in that project and most probably will continue to be so unless we can overcome the principle ownership ratio."

Rogers was referring to the St. Lucie Inlet maintenance project. A re-study of the Inlet is currently being considered. He also said the county's recent resolution for beach erosion control was being forwarded to the House Public Works Committee.

"We originally wanted to tie together the beach erosion and inlet programs," Saunderson said. "We felt the inlet was one of the big causes of the erosion, but now it looks as if we won't be able to do this."

Currently the county is considering the purchase of acquisition of beachfront property.

Accepts Erosion Plan

"Proposals for coastal erosion control and restoration, recommended at the recent engineering symposium held in Stuart, have been accepted by the Florida Beach and Shore Preservation Association," said county engineer Fred L. Bell of Monday.

The Martin County engineer, who planned and conducted the symposium, was one of the invited guests at the regular board meeting last weekend in Madeira Beach.

"The board discussed ways it could follow up the recommendations and have them enacted into legislation," Bell said.

At the April meeting, it was recommended that a five-year beach restoration and preservation program be undertaken, to be financed by a one-cent tax on standard size soft drinks.

It had also been recommended that proceeds of the sale of submerged lands be earmarked for state improvement in the county where land is sold.

Rainfall Over Eight Inches

Martin County residents are now counting the days since no rain falls, after about three months of very dry weather.

In the first 19 days of June, rain was recorded on 16 of them. Total rainfall in the county at the official recording station was 8.02". This is still short of last year's rainfall for the month of June which exceeded 15".

Most of last June's rainfall was attributed to Hurricane Alma. Largest single amount to ever be recorded in a single 24-hour period in Martin County for this month was 1.92 recorded on June 2.

During the rain Monday afternoon, Martin County recorded wind gusts of 40 to 45 mph, with a total rainfall in less than an hour of 1.21".

Many Activities

Old Fashioned Holiday Is Planned For Fourth

An old-fashioned holiday to celebrate Independence Day in Martin County is being planned by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, the Jensen Volunteer Firemen and the fireworks committee. It should fill the July 4th holiday with activity for young and old.

The day will open with the firemen and auxiliary serving a barbecue dinner from 12 noon throughout the day and evening. There will be all sorts of picnic style food available in the firemen's pavilion near the Jensen Beach Causeway fishing pier.

The menu for the day will include chicken, hamburgers, hot dogs, french fries, beans, mile high and carnival drinks. Also, there is planned a Chamber soft drink stand to serve the many thirsty visitors who are expected to throng the causeway for the full day of activity.

Races for boys and girls will be held by the Jensen Beach Lions, beginning at 1 p.m., according to Lion president Ed Miller. Prizes of $2.50 will be awarded to the winners of three-legged races, the fifty-yard dash and the 100 yard dash, and a mixed boy and girl sack race.

All events will be announced from a pavilion which will be communications headquarters for the celebration. A complete sound system will be set up to bring word of each event to the people.

All day long there will be horseshoe pitching in the pits near the playground for young and old.

Following the foot races, there will be the two amateur boat races for men and women. The duration races will be one mile for men and one-half hour for women. Herman Reitz and Dick Campbell are co-chairmen.

Downtube races will follow, with youngsters racing each other in the water while encircled with an inner tube. Then there will be a new event called "jousting". In this challenge event, men will try to joust one another off a large truck innertube with padded poles. Gene Kasper is chairman of the event.

More activity for the young people will be the watermelon eating contest, handled by Don Wilkie and Gene Pfleger.

At about 9 p.m., or at dark, the fireworks will begin. Fantastic ground displays have been created by EXPERT MARKSMAN--Frank Hertel, Jr., Jensen Beach, is the new junior champion of the southeast, winning the title recently at Camp Blanding, Florida, with his .30 calibre rifle. Competing against 100 to 150 men, the 14-year old boy was only two points off from the highest point winner of the competition. He shot 575 out of a possible 600 points for the junior championship. High score in the senior division was 577. Frank has been shooting for seven years, competing during the last three, and has won numerous medals and trophies under the tutorship of his grandfather. The husky, quiet lad says he likes hamburgers and math, and is looking forward to the next meet July 1 and 2 at Camp Blanding, where he will try for his "masters" classification. He is now rated an "expert".

Amateur Races Will Add 'Powder Puff' Division

A women's division of the amateur boat races on July 4th in Jensen Beach was announced this week by the race committee, according to Ward Herman Reitz. Also Reitz announced that a set of rules to govern the amateur boat races had been adopted by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon.

A thirty-minute "Powder Puff Marathon" for ladies will follow the one-hour marathon race for amateurs, slated to start on July 4th at 1:30 p.m. at the Jensen Beach Causeway. All women boaters are invited to participate, Reitz said. They can drive the boat their husbands drove in the main event if they wish. All boats meeting the requirements of the "fun-type race" will be eligible for the women's event.

"The race will be open to any family type outboard motor boat," Reitz said. The top limit on horsepower is 110 hp.

"We want the family to come out and compete. It is to be emphasized that this is a fun-type race, and not a bunch of wild men driving boats. Anyone violating the concept of fun racing will be disqualified," he added.

The race will not be open to ski boats or any racing type boat. The boats must be family type boats, according to Reitz.

Co-chairman of the race is Mirror publisher Dick Campbell, who announced that the trophies for the races will be donated this year by Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort, and its owners, Ralph Evinrude and Frances Langford. There will be trophies for first, second and third place in the race.

Rules Listed

The rules for the race as accepted by the Chamber of Commerce limit the boats to horsepower and length. Classes and boat size requirements are as follows:

Class 1: 0-24 hp., minimum 12' boat.

Class 2: 25-45 h.p., minimum 12' boat.

Class 3: 46-69 h.p., minimum 16' boat.

Class 4: 70-89 h.p., minimum 16' boat.

Class 5: 90 and up hp., minimum 6' 6" boat.

No modifications such as removal of seats, windshields, etc., will be allowed. Engines must be stock with no modifications. Any propeller or engine height may be used.

All boats must have proper Coast Guard approved equipment on board, or they will be disqualified.

Skippers may enter their boats by contacting Herman Reitz at Stuart Marine Center, or at the race site.

Registration will cost one dollar per boat, and will close at 1 p.m. on July 4th.

Trophies for the ladies will include an award to the youngest and the oldest driver in the race.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

It's that time of year when the snook fishermen go to the top of the list. From mid-June through late July, snook action can be expected to reach its peak, and it really makes no difference whether one prefers the river or the surf, the snook are there.

A couple of contributing factors that make this time of year so productive are the annual run of dog-face mullet in the local inland waters and the yearly hatch of young turtles along the beach. Anyone taking advantage of these two natural occurrances, by fishing the local waters, is almost bound to catch his fair share of snook.

If you plan to fish the river, try using eel skins that can be purchased at local tackle stores. Most of the tackle shop operators will be glad to show you how to rig the bait and tell you how to fish it for best results. Another good item to use if the skins don't produce is the mop rig. This will take them quite often when the natural skins don't.

For the beaches, the best bet is a shallow running plug or Mirror Lure. Actually, almost anything will catch snook along the beach for they are usually in large schools and will hit anything that moves. During the past years, I have caught them on live mullet, live shrimp, popping plugs, jigs, and on one occasion the tab top from a beer can with a trebel hook attached produced a 22-pounder.

There is no mysterious secret to catching snook, but like any fish there are ways of fishing for them that are more productive than others. Some fishermen swear by the yellow jig while others acclaim the Mirror Lure, or, etc. The key to successful catches is knowing how to use the lure you have decided upon, and the best way to do this is to practice with it. Fish it at various depths and at various speeds of retrieve,... Jerk it sideways, upwards, downwards, and make sure you try many different ways. Sooner or later you'll hit the right combination that will produce strikes for you.

Remember each lure has its own character and action....Learn them and use them and you'll catch fish.

Sailfish Entries

A 16-lb. triple tail was caught June 11 by Harold Day of Orlando, Fla., casting an eel-skin in the St. Lucie River.

Clarence Karschner, of Stuart, pulled in a 12-lb., 12-oz. sea trout from the St. Lucie River on June 10.

Both catches were recorded with the Stuart Sailfish Club.

LESSON
PLANE OF SWING

In this age of dynamics, everyone is familiar with the word "plane."

In relation to golf, plane means path; the plane of a golf swing is the path the left arm and the club take.

When you talk about plane you have to think about aiming a golf ball, as the plane determines the direction and flight on the ball. Most golfers think only of aiming in the one position, the starting position. If you know the true plane, part of the aiming is done in the backswing position, and 90 per cent is done in the downswing part of the swing.

The plane, or path, is then the striking angle of the club, and the ball responds to this force. Where the ball starts out indicates the striking angle. The other influence on the ball is the face angle, which reflects the arc of the swing.

If the face is open, the ball will slice at the end of its flight. If it is closed, the ball will hook. If the plane is on line with the target, and the face angle square, the ball will go dead straight.

The average golfer swings outside and in because his right side overpowers his left. Just trying to swing down more from the inside and out will compensate for some of your error, and give you many more solid shots, with the ball directed at your target.

Florida Race Driver To Visit Here Tuesday

One of the South's top race drivers and the car in which he competes in the NASCAR circuit will make a personal appearance here June 27 under the auspices of John Jochem Chevrolet, Inc.

The driver, Bobby Johns, 33, of Miami, one of the top names on the National Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing circuit, and the 1966 Chevelle in which he competes will be featured at a special meeting at the dealership, 805 Colorado Ave., Stuart, at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Johns will display his car, explain its equipment and show movies of car racing.

A former University of Florida student and Army veteran, Johns started racing in 1960 and won the Florida State championship when he was 18, the South Carolina championship at 19 while still in the Army, and then started on the Grand National Circuit in 1965 when he finished seventh at Darlington as a rookie.

Johns won the Atlanta "500" in 1961, finishing third that year in overall national point standings. He went on to win the Bristol "500" in 1963 and was fifth in national point standings. As a rookie in the 1965 Indianapolis "500", he finished seventh and was runner-up to Mario Andretti for the "Rookie of the Year" award.

Two In Washington For 4-H Meet

Two Martin County 4-H Club members and their adult leader have joined over 200 other 4-H Clubers from across the nation at Washington for a unique program in citizenship.

Shirley Poux, Betsy Rosser and Mrs. David Rosser have joined delegates from Broward, Palm Beach, St. Lucie, Brevard, Suwannee, Gadsden, Duval and Dade Counties to form the Florida delegation which will participate with several other states in the workshop.

Study sessions and lectures will be held at the National 4-H Club Center to study in such courses as "The Meaning of Citizenship," "The Nature of Freedom," and "Confidence for Leadership." Also, "How To Understand The Presidential Election," and "The World Horizon of Citizenship."

The two girls will attend classes and take field trips around Archives, Arlington National Cemetery, the White House and famous monuments.

Prior to leaving Washington, the delegates will make plans to use their new skills and knowledge in this community. The local 4-H Council holds an annual county citizenship workshop to share this with other teenage organizations in the county.

ART WORKSHOP--More than 50 teachers and teacher-trainees attended the three-day art workshop held last week at St. Joseph College in Jensen Beach, sponsored by Binney and Smith Co. The group worked with many mediums including paints, crayons, oils and papar mache. Sister Margaret Victor was in charge of the program.

VWW1 Installs State Officers

New state officers for 1967-68 were elected and installed by the Department of Florida Veterans of World War I and Its Auxiliary at the 13th annual convention held at Clearwater June 11.

Eight couples from Jensen Beach Barracks #854 and Auxiliary attended, including Dept. Commander and Mrs. Phil Kirse; commander and Mrs. John Wendel, Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Al Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Diffendal, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dalse, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Evenstad, Mr. and Mrs. George Conover, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Larsen.

Philip Kirse, past-commander, chaplain of the local barracks, was installed as new Dept. of Florida commander.

New Dept. Auxiliary officers are; president Irene Hellman; senior vice-president Marian Deutch; junior vice-president Irene Bobinis; secretary and treasurer Grace Kimmel; chaplain Nadia Sheffert; conductress Linda Nichols and guard Dorothy Ryan.

Auxiliary #854 president May Kirse was installed as 2nd Dist. president. Grace Kimmel was elected as candidate for National Guard from Dept. of Florida.

Sister Helen Ferguson received a citation for the local auxiliary, plus a personal trophy from the department for her record of 27 new members from Oct. to May.

Sister Julia Clark, Auxiliary VAVS chairman, received honorable mention and gifts to be distributed to five members who have spent over 100 hours each serving for Buddies at Coral Gables Hospital.

Receiving awards are Julia Clark, Minnie Wendel, Hazel Heritage, Eleanor Diffendal and Alice Happich.

Sister Eleanor Diffendal received floral prize and a gift from the Dept. publicity chairman, plus an auxiliary #854 citation for outstanding publicity with 1,391 inches of newsprint, plus pictures and radio announcements. Next in line was 400 inches of news.

Last Friday's covered dish dinner, held in the Jensen Beach Community Center, was attended by 47 members and guests.

Head Start Begins

Martin County's Head Start program got off to a good start Monday when more than 150 children showed up for the opening session. The program is designed for children who will enter first grade in the fall.

Five elementary schools are being used for the program, including East Stuart, Port Salerno, Palm City, Hobe Sound and Warfield.

"Every center has more children than anticipated," said Cuddy McHardy, director.

The Martin County Community Action Committee, (CAC), which directs the program, received $43,940 from the Office of Economic Opportunity for the eight-week summer program. Extra money will probably be requested from Atlanta to open two new classes in Indiantown where about 35 extra children applied.

Scheduled are classes in preschool math, science, language, arts and physical education.

"Every child will have a complete physical and dental checkup," said Mrs. Myra Langbehn, director at East Stuart, "and while they are in the program they will be served a Class A lunch."

Softball League

Games will start at 7:15 p.m., second game at 9 p.m., or 15 minutes after first game is completed. Rainouts will be played July 25 and 27.

The following is the 1967 schedule;

June 22, Park at K&C; Indians at Hobe.

June 27, Kiwanis at Co-Ed; Hobe at Park.

Farley Named Alt. Captain

Mike Farley, Stuart, defensive tackle on the University of Tampa football team, was named an alternate captain for next season. The 240-pounder was among the top performers during spring football practice.

Salzler Wins Numeral

Hank Salzler, Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach, was among 20 freshmen who received baseball numerals at the University of Florida for the past season. Salzler is an outfielder.

The Baby Gators had an 11-11 record.

Gideons Return From Expo '67

Lawrence and Louie Gideon of Seymour's Inn, Jensen Beach, returned Sunday night from a week's tour of Expo '67, Montreal, Canada.

The brothers flew to the exhibit, which opened April 28 and will continue until Oct. 27.

The American display was tops on Louie's list of favorites, followed by Israel and Iran. The Czechoslovakian exhibit was so crowded that the Gideons gave up their attempt to view this popular display, he said.

The daily gate is running 50,000 persons over the expected crowd, Louie told The Mirror, and attendance so far is around 17,000,000 instead of the 5,000,000 which had been estimated.

There is an admittance fee to the grounds, he said, but all exhibitions are free.

Each exhibit has its own restaurant, so food of all nations can be purchased. Prices, he said, are higher than they are in the States.

Don't Keep Jensen School of sentimental attachment, and the that the school buildings at Jensen Elementary School would cost too to replace, the school board is con- ing the recommendation of advisor Jack se that the school system keep Jensen h Elementary School and use it in ad- n to the new plant, which is being con- ed.

believe that the present school is uated, hazardous, and would be a lia- to the school system, rather than an t.

rst, the school is on the busiest high- in Jensen Beach. It is located on the owest part of the road, where children ing to school are in danger of automo- . The road is only 20 feet wide, with- the rights of way needed to either wide road or provide sidewalks for the child-or over six years we have been en- aging sidewalks. Many false starts have made, even up to the point of staking the area for the sidewalks. The reason starts failed is that the property owners e built right up to the road, and there not enough room for a sidewalk that ld be acceptable to the State Road Board. 've must remember that this old road built and accepted as it is back in 5, when the county was formed. It has t of way that is only as wide as the road itself...twenty feet.

With homes and shrubs built right up to the road itself, the possibility of sidewalks is a never-never-land thought.

Traffic on the busy, two-laned road can only increase, and those who live in Jensen Beach know how congested the highway gets in the morning and afternoon of the October to May season. Last year the school and Ocean Breeze Park had to establish a "safe route", so that children walking and on bikes would be able to walk through the park to school, be able to avoid the highway and be able to be protected from the senior citizens with slow reflexes driving automobiles.

The fact that the over six-hundred families in Ocean Breeze Park use an entrance and exit right at the school makes the corner now, and even more so in the future, dangerous.

The buildings of the school are old, with defective wiring, bad heating and greatly in need of repair. The school plant was built as a Works Project Administration (WPA) job back in the days of the Great Depression.

The school on busy SR 707 should be sold, and the money used to offset the new school for children in the Jensen Beach-Rio area. If it takes a swap, we think it should be done. At any rate, the site is not a good one for a school. It is too dangerous.

We Have A College Here

One of the most underplayed institutions Martin County is St. Joseph College, a -year junior college that is a giant hope the future of our county.

. Joseph fills a vacancy in educational ograms of our community. It is a fully redited college of liberal arts, open to dents of all faiths, color or sea.

ince its opening last September, the llege has not had the kind of public re- ase that an institution of higher learn- should have from the community. It ows. The young people of the area are being taught in think of the junior col- e as the next step in their education. they should.

St. Joseph College offers academic pro- ams that do many things. Local resi- dents can increase knowledge on various topics through a limited program, and students desiring to gain a degree can complete two years toward that degree while attending school right in their own home county.

We feel that a greater emphasis upon our own junior college should be placed by secondary school teachers and advisors, and we hope that the school itself will increase local publicity and promotion so that the college becomes a living part of every family's life in Martin County.

We need St. Joseph College in this community area. The youth of our county should support the college, and the adults of the county should use the many services available in it.

Hope For Open Meetings

A bill to prohibit secret government meet- gs may soon become law. It has taken almost elve years to get it through both houses of e legislature.

Here in Martin County, the representatives the news media know the problems created closed meetings of any board. The public ght to know takes a beating with each and ery one, and the freedoms of the people re lessened with each and every "executive" session.

The new bill has even stopped the "executive sessions for purely administrative reasons". Even the oft-used "personnel discussions" excuse might be outlawed by a wise Senate-House conference committee where the bill rests with this writing.

The bill seems a good one and will give the people a chance to see how their business is conducted. Too often public officials forget who they are working for, and use their office as if it were private, rather than public.

The recent police changes of the Fort Pierce City Commission, opening their meetings has raised the commissioners in the eyes of the voters (their bosses). The public right to know must be defended wherever and whenever it is challenged.

Senator Lyman Cross, D., Gainesville, has worked to see his open meetings bill get through the legislature over the past twelve years. Legislators, fearful of the public and their right to know, have never allowed the bill to pass, until this year. Perhaps we have a more public-minded body of legislators in this session.

The members of the legislature deserve the thanks of a public that will now have the right to know protected...and the hope of the public that the bill wins final approval.

Consumers Beware

If you had ever taken a load of wheat, ground it into flour, added various ingredients for special purposes, put in a little malt, water, yeast, perhaps some vitamin concentrate, worked the resulting dough, let it rise into loaves, and then baked it in an oven to make a loaf of bread, you would quickly see the reason for the spread between farm prices and the cost of finished food products.

One senator has made the suggestion that labels on food products should state the value of farm-produced ingredients to make consumers aware of the difference between the retail price and what the farmer received for the basic raw material. The only trouble is that both farm prices and retail prices are constantly shifting according to the changing relationships between supply, demand and competition. Grocery stores would be spending practically all their time pasting new labels on their merchandise. Consumers would really be confused, farmers would not receive any more, and retail prices would go up to cover the cost of label changing.

As The Wall Street Journal observes, "Like so many consumer-oriented schemes designed to be informational, this could end up being a ploy that is accidentally fraudulent."

A Lesson For America

You are never supposed to kick a man when he is down. That is one of the cardinal rules of the world. People always look down their noses and act as if they have a God-given right to their comfort when you have the man where he is down.

All right, if you want to have a bad taste, have it, but I can't help but point to a perfect example of what should be done in war, Little Israel in the evangile, and the way the war was run is the lesson that America's leaders should learn.

If you decide you are going to war, go to war. Don't piddle around. Don't fight a limited engagement. Strike, on mass, fewer lives are lost, get in, win, and get out.

The Arabs could've didn't have time to pack the spit shafts they would gain advantage in fighting in their rulers. They didn't set up routes of supply, emergency battle plans. Instead of cowards, they didn't have time.

The Israelites whooped men, not with superior numbers with shovels.

While the diplomats got together to talk, decided to meet, put and meet again, the war was getting done. Of course, the underdog Israelis, but not at the mistakes of the world privately applauded the action of the Jews.

I've seen where the Arabs said they were going to finish the Jews, wipe them out, push them into the sea. Have a holy war of Jew extermination, the Jews said, they, now. They mean it." So, they shelled for the Golden Rule, and did it.

Is there a lesson in this for us?

I have read many comments by the leaders in Uganda and China and Viet Nam, "We will bury you." "We will fight to the last man to push the imperialists a-merrin. Blood-lusting rapists into the sea", "Viet Nam is a holy war between the Communists and the Imperialists" ... and all that jazz.

We continue to fight by the rules. They don't, they, yeah, remember? They aren't playing the game by our rules.

We stop at the demilitarized zone. They start there. We temin up to a certain point. They find out where we aren't bombing, and move their anti-aircraft guns to where we are bombing, and knock down a couple more planes.

We can't fight across the line of a country that is allowing the Commies to supply and move more troops into South Viet Nam. We can't even follow them back across the line when they hit and run for the protective cover of a so-called neutral country.

We have a lesson to learn from the little country of Israel. Get in, get it done, and get out.

Minute With Social Security

Q. I am over 65 and signed up for social security but I earn too much money to get any social security checks. One month I didn't earn any money because of illness. Can I get a social security check for that month?

A. Yes, you can. Even though your earnings are so high that you can't draw any checks for the year, you can still get a check for any month in the year that you don't make over $125.00 a month.

Q. I'm a school teacher and earn over $5,000.00 a year. I'm under social security also and don't get any checks because my earnings are too high. I'm paid on a twelve-month basis but only actually work or EARN that money during eleven months. I don't make over $125.00 in the month of August. Can I get a social security check for that month even though I get my regular teacher's salary of over $125.00 a month for twelve months a year.

A. Yes, you can. Some teachers still don't know this, but you can get a check for August even though you get a salary check because you didn't earn over $125 in August...you earned it in the other months and it was paid to you in August. It doesn't count against you for social security purposes in this case.

The Courier and Ives

Here I sit at 4 A.M. on Monday morning, nearing the end of a typical Sunday's work day. This time, however, there's a difference. Instead of cleaning my desk so I can go out and call announcements Monday and Tuesday mornings, I'm trying to get ready for jury duty at 9:15.

I view this with emotions that are considerably mixed.

I've been told I could have been excused from jury service because of the nature of my business--it's small. That is both true and tempting. I almost tried it. I didn't and won't.

Who am I to think I'm above the law or the call of society? I know I'm not apt to be a good juror, I'm sure being called--but what's different about that? It's no harder on me than on a host of businessmen and farmers who find themselves in almost identical situations, and have for centuries, and still serve. I'm going to be there to serve if selected. I know there has never been anything found yet that works better for individual freedom than the jury system.

It's a gamble in any case, and I expect I'm the 'snake-eyes' on this jury panel, but gamble or no gamble, the jury system works best. I'll not tamper with it. No matter how much I resent it, others have more. If I'm a poor prospect, others have been worse. If I can type in my sleep, as I do occasionally, perhaps I can learn asleep in the box.

Most important: If it weren't for the ancient draft system that we call 'jury service', the thing we treasure as 'individual freedom' would be something the censors erase from today's history books. I served in World War II. I was drafted. I'll serve in this draft, too, and I don't expect it like this one any better than the other.

Now, Tuesday evening, after having been most considerately, and wisely, peremptorily challenged by the assistant solicitor because of the predictable effect of tonight's work on my alertness tomorrow, it seems like a week since I wrote the above lines. By the time you read this Thursday morning, I may or may not be again in the class of those who came, saw and left, and accomplished nothing more than to provide a gambler's selection by being one of those physically present when the annual lottery was held. Or, on my third trip to the courthouse during my week's tour of duty, I may be a 'sworn' petit juror. So far, I'm a member of the panel--and that's had some effect.

In later weeks I may comment on the lawyers, jury duty and how the court operates and what I think of it. This column is strictly subjective, an examination of my own thoughts in a new situation.

These two days I've found myself remembering the preliminary draft procedures of World War II. I don't suppose I'd thought of them in years. Now for two days, with three to go, I have become a meat cattle in a herd of about 24. Utter regimentation.

Once a soldier, a man is a 'recruit', a 'veteran', 'good', 'bad', an officer or an enlisted man, but he is a person and is dealt with as such--even in the army. A group of draftees is made up entirely of identical, mirror-images of absent-faceless forms that respond to vocal commands.

The 'jury panel' is composed of about 24 of those draftees--jury selection is legalized gambling, our most ancient form of the draft. Except when a juror is under individual questioning, he is very much a faceless form that responds to vocal commands--and is too, can wait. He's not supposed to hear, either, unless he's told.

I know the court--the judge, the clerk, and the bailiffs, tried to make it otherwise. Perhaps the very routine is designed to minimize the time-interference jury duty wreaks upon jurors. But that routine has its effects on human nature. The court staff reminds me of the soldiers at the reception center who handled us draftees, telling themselves (on orders): "Remember, those guys are still voting-type civilians--they are not in the army yet."

Justice requires this: jurors must not become friendly to either side of a case, and since the court officials who must contact the jurors are themselves representatives of the State, they must take care that they keep businesslike in those contacts. This provides a great shield for the officious, the boorish, and the autocrat, and this juror has had some practice in knowing which is 'businesslike' and which is something other. It makes a difference--anywhere, anytime.

Here, at 'mid-term' of my week, I'd say that I'm glad I took this refresher course in applied morals. I recommend it for all who can afford it.

To a small business, jury service is only a little less disruptive than an Israeli War, and jury service lasts longer. It provides deep evaluation of the importance of the mechanics of our liberty, and it's worth serving.

And I must add this word, too: Coming as it did the week the Courier started its 'summer' operations, my staff has been even more considerate and orderly than it always is. It's enough to make a man want to thank it, and I do.

Notes On The Veterans

by John W. Keller

Veterans discharged from service who desire to return to a job held prior to induction must apply for reinstatement to the job within 90 days after separation from active service. This benefit is available to veterans of wartime and peacetime service.

In matters of private employment, the Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights, U.S. Department of Labor, will investigate complaints submitted to them.

In attempting to prove a service-connected disability, veterans are cautioned to remember that a disability due to service is said to be "Service Connected" when one of the following reasons apply: 1, shown to have existed during the service; 2, shown to result from disability existing in service; 3, a chronic disability shown to have existed within one year after discharge from service or within the presumptive period allowed for certain disabilities.

The County Veterans' Office is located in the courthouse annex and is open the same hours as the courthouse. Call 287-4013 for information.

Public Safety Meet Was Held At SLCC

The Associated Public-Safety Communications Officers, Florida Chapter, held its summer conference at St. Lucie Country Club last weekend.

APCO is a national organization whose purpose is to foster the development and progress of public-safety communications, according to Ted Leatherland, Fort Pierce, chairman who conducted the meetings.

Florida chapter is made up of members from Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, comprised of communications officers, administrators, engineers and technicians from public-safety agencies. Membership totals about 150.

The group was greeted at the opening session by Sgt. James Cox, Florida Highway Patrol; Chief of Police Jesse J. Taylor, Stuart; and Sheriff John Norvall, St. Lucie County, who gave brief talks.

President of the Florida chapter is D.D. Dull, Florida Highway Patrol, Tallahassee, also of FHP, president; Howard P. Black, Mobile, Ala. police department.

The 1967 National APCO conference will be held in Toronto August 8-11.

Norris Heads Water Board

Jack Norris, Indiantown, was reelected chairman of Martin County Water Management Board last week. Elected vice-chairman was George Oliver, Tropical Farms; Levi M. Johnson, county agent, was reelected secretary.

The board, which met at the courthouse, discussed procedures in connection with drainage projects and heard county engineer Fred L. Bell report on the status of a move to obtain plans for drainage into the Northwest Fork of the Loxahatchee River from Gulfstream Citrus Inc.

John G. Hoyt, Jr., of the corporation, was notified by Bell that county zoning laws required submission of plans and engineer's approval before excavations are started.

The grove firm started a ditch before submitting plans, according to Bell, who said he had received a letter from Hoyt stating the firm's engineer would get in touch with Bell. Ben Herr of Palm Beach is the engineer, he said.

The board heard Bell tell of plans to set up schematics of all ditches and canals in the county in a move to guide water flow away from the problems created in last year's wet season when some mid-county land owners were dumping water around in circles, only to get it back on their own land.

The board planned a meeting for July 10 at which a water supply expert from the Water Resources Division of the Department of Conservation, Frank Mohler, will be invited to discuss supplies in this area.

The public will be invited. Richard Hupfel, who has been an advocate of piping water from St. Lucie Canal to coastal users, attended the meeting and suggested a study of his ideas.

Official members of the board, in addition to Norris, Oliver and Johnson, are Johnny Crawford, Charles Kindred, Ed Mapp and Clark Mattson. Bell and county attorney Dean Tooker are ex-officio members.

New Deputy Is Named

Edward Himmelsbach, 34, Jensen Beach, has been named as deputy sheriff to serve principally in South County line areas, Sheriff Roy C. Baker announced recently.

Jim Rogers, no longer with the department, previously served in the area.

Orientation Underway For IRJC Students

Orientation for Indian River Junior College students enrolling for the first time for the fall semester began June 20, according to Dean of Student Personnel Charles Sample.

This orientation period will last through August 15, and students are being advised by mail when to report to the college for a full day of orientation including scheduling of classes, testing and general orientation to the college.

Students will be enrolled in classes on a first-come, first-served basis, Sample said.

Island Zoning Lies In Limbo

Hutchinson Island zoning wasn't even mentioned at the Thursday night meeting of Martin County Planning and Zoning Board, with four members present. Zoning director Fred L. Ball and county attorney Dean Tooker did not attend.
It was announced that a board of adjustment hearing would be held July 5 on a Jensen Beach zoning change tabled by the county commission last Tuesday. Purpose of the hearing is to determine if a change to setback can eliminate the need of a zoning change near the intersection of SR 707 and Sewall's Point Road.
Public hearings on two changes of zoning were set by the board. One was asked on a 40-acre tract bordering US 1 south of Port Salerno, where a change from interim to T-T, a mobile home subdivision category was requested. The other was for a change from R-2 to R-3 on McCord from First to 12th Sts., Palm City.
Hearings on both will be held July 20.
A change from R-2 to R-3, sought for over a year by Mrs. Marjorie Homlar, Salerno Shores, was shelved again on recommendation by chairman Howard Heid, who said he felt the county commission should ask, if it wanted the change.

Heads BPW

Miss Betty Jane Stott, secretary to the Martin County School Board, has been elected president of the Florida Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. She is the first Martin County woman to hold this office.
Miss Stott, president of Stuart BPW, was installed Saturday during the annual BPW convention in Jacksonville. About 500 attended.
Miss Stott previously has served as first and second vice-president of the state organization as well as recording secretary. She is a former District 8 director.
The Florida Federation has 5,000 members; nationally, the organization has almost 200,000 members.

Miss Dodge is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dodge, Boca Raton. Zarrella is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Zarrella of Stuart.
The wedding will take place July 8 at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church, Boca Raton.

The county attorney's ruling was sought on the possible change of zoning at the George Apostolopoulos skating rink in Golden Gate where it was revealed a fabricator of stainless steel may seek a plant.

Road Building Runs Ahead Of Schedule

Martin County's road building program remains ahead of schedule despite recent heavy rains, according to county engineer Fred L. Bell on Monday. He reported that during the long dry spell, county road-building crews were able to construct enough roads on the program to carry a comfortable margin.

During the drought, Bell said, efforts were concentrated on the mix-and-place asphalt roads. Now that the weather is damp, it is not possible to apply this mixture so crews are constructing lime rock roads.

As long as the rains do not continue all summer, the road building program is in no danger of falling behind schedule, Bell said. He credited advance planning by the county road superintendent as the main reason the crews are ahead of schedule.

TWO AWARDS--More honors were heaped upon the award winning Jensen Beach Mirror, last weekend as Walter B. Potter, right, president of the National Newspaper Association, presented Mirror editor Dick Campbell with a second place in feature writing and an honorable mention in writing his weekly column "Live and Love It" in the national competition. The awards were presented at the Richmond convention of the association. The Mirror won two out of the nine awards won by Florida newspapers in the contest, which attracted over 2,700 entries from throughout the United States.

Florida Newspapers Win Nine

Mirror Wins Two National Awards

The Jensen Beach Mirror won two of nine awards presented to Florida newspapers at the 82nd annual convention of the National Newspaper Association in Richmond, Va., last Saturday. The climax of the convention was the NNA Better Newspaper Contest, at which the awards were presented.

The Mirror repeated the performance of last year, only with higher honors, as writer-editor Dick Campbell received a second place award for "Best Feature Story" and an honorable mention award for "Best Column on a Single Topic".

The Mirror was the smallest newspaper winning an award from Florida, and was in a class with three large daily newspapers and a twice-weekly newspaper. Also winning awards from Florida was 44,000 circulation Cocoa TODAY, a daily; the 139,000 circulation St. Petersburg TIMES, a daily; the 17,000 circulation St. Petersburg INDEPENDENT, a daily and the twice-weekly, 6,000 circulation Coral Gables TIMES.

The contest attracted over 2,100 entries from throughout the United States in the 45 categories of newspaper production.

The Mirror awards were for a feature written on glue-sniffing by Campbell, and for column-writing excellence in Campbell's weekly editorial column, "Live and Love It". In the Florida newspaper contest, held last November, Campbell's column was ranked second in the state and the same feature was awarded first place for best feature story.

Of the five newspapers winning awards in Florida this year, only the St. Petersburg Independent won more than The Mirror, three.

Mirror publisher Dick Campbell represented the newspaper in Richmond last weekend to receive the awards.

Navitsky Discusses School Problems

Martin County's new superintendent of schools Jim Navitsky, recently discussed the problems facing him in his new role, and also the school board.

Topping the list of problems is the purchase of land for the new Jensen Beach Elementary School. Navitsky is studying the several proposed sites offered the board and expects to make a recommendation at the Friday, June 30 meeting of the school board.

Navitsky may be ready to recommend a football coach to replace himself, at the Friday meeting.

James C. Woodall, principal of Mt. Hs. has been interviewing applicants, Navitsky said, and if the Woodall recommendation is ready, Navitsky would follow up with his recommendation to the school board.

At any rate, we'll have a coach ready for August 15 summer practice, he promised.

Other problems facing the board are the new budget for the coming fiscal year, the hiring of non-instructional personnel, and the situation existing at Dunbar School in Hobe Sound.

The board must decide whether to close out the school or reduce the number of grades taught at the school. Only 92 students have selected Dunbar for next year, according to school coordinator Jack Smouse, who pointed out this is not enough students to sustain a separate school.

Smouse has recommended three courses of action on the Dunbar School situation and the subject will be decided at the 9:30 a.m. meeting on June 30, Navitsky said.

July 4th Festivities

Causeway Celebration Set

Fireworks, food, races, games, water sports, cotton candy and music will all have a part in the exciting upcoming Independence Day celebration being planned by this community.

Fourth of July headquarters will be set up in the large south pavilion, across from the Fire Department pavilion. A P.A. system will be installed there to bring word of each event to the people. The Jensen Beach Samaritan ambulance and a first-aid station, with a doctor, Dr. Richard G. Penick, in attendance, will be located here.

The day will start at 12 p.m.

A 30-minute "Powder Puff Marathon" for ladies will follow the one-hour marathon race for amateur boatsmen slated to start at 1:30 p.m. as one of the highlights of the 4th of July celebration on the Jensen Beach Causeway, sponsored by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department and the fireworks committee.

All women boaters are invited to participate, said Herman Reitz of Stuart Marine Center. Co-chairman of the events is Dick Campbell, Mirror publisher. "The race will be open to any family-type outboard motor boat with a 110 hp. or less," Reitz said. All boats meeting the requirements of the "fun-type" race will be eligible.

Trophies for the races have been donated by Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort, and its owners, Ralph Evinrude and Frances Langford. Campbell has announced. There will be trophies for first, second and third places in the race.

Foot Races

From 1 to 1:30 p.m. foot races and games will be held for children by the Jensen Beach Lions Club with prizes of $1.50 each awarded to winners of three-legged races, 50 and 100-yard dashes, and a mixed boy and girl sack race, according to Edwin Miller, president.

Following the foot races, there will be the two amateur boat races for men and women from 1:30 to 2.

Innertube Races

Innertube races will be held from 3:30 to 4:00 p.m. with youngsters racing each other while encircled with an innertube. Gene Kasper is in charge of this activity. From 5 to 5:30 p.m. he will also handle the "jousting", a challenging event in which men will try to joust each other off a large truck innertube, using a padded pole.

Watermelon

Watermelons have already been ordered and will be well chilled for the watermelon-eating contest slated for 4:15 to 4:45 p.m. Don Wilkie, chairman, and Gene Pfleger, are looking for many participants in this popular event.

All day long there will be horse-shoe pitching in the pits near the playground for young and old. Chairman is John Hughes.

Booths

Various local groups will be established on the 10 small pavilions on the south side of the Causeway with many interesting displays, amusements and entertainment. They will include two booths set up by the Fireworks Committee selling two-color cotton candy, with Tommy Woods as chairman, and peanuts, popcorn and green fireworks bumper stickers, with Aileen Pauly as chairman.

Another pavilion has been assigned to the Martin County Junior Baseball League. Here Little Leaguers will throw wet sponges at their coaches, who will "stick their necks out" for entertain the public. The coaches have volunteered 30-minute shifts.

A booth on "Americanism" will be displayed by Jensen Beach American Legion #126, in keeping with Independence Day, and the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce will sell soft-drinks and "Jensen Beach" car plates. It is also considering a dart game for amusement.

The center pavilion will be turned over to several local teenage bands which will take turns playing music during the 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. dinner hour, and they will continue until dark when the fireworks start.

Fireworks

Around 9 p.m., the piece de resistance will be presented to the thousands of patient residents and visitors who look forward to the annual fabulous display of fireworks in Jensen Beach. Members of the fireworks committee pool their efforts and talents to surpass themselves each year with bigger and better displays.

Bill Yurtilo, chairman of the committee, promises an even better exhibition this year than ever before. Fantastic ground sets have been created, Yurtilo said. One is a house 'on fire', with the blaze being extinguished by firemen. All labor on the fireworks is completed, according to Chief Randolph Spinney, who says they are ready to go....

Barbeque

Gene Oliver, member of the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Dept. is overall chairman of the food. He will be assisted by Gene Pous in charge of barbecuing the chicken; Al Willets hamburgers and hot dogs; and Jack Hall, coffee.

"The chicken this year is being cooked on specially made racks, with 200 servings being turned at one time," said Mrs. Frank Wacha, president of the Auxiliary. She promises that the chicken will be well done and delicious.

Mrs. Gene Oliver will be assisted by 18 auxiliary workers. She has appointed Mrs. Marie Yurtilo chairman of serving the chicken; Mrs. Kitty Robertson, hamburgers and hot dogs; Genevieve Krajnik, coffee and milk; and Mrs. Annette Lariano, condiments and miscellaneous.

There will be two serving lines this year, Mrs. Wacha said. They will run east to west, one for chicken dinners, the other for hamburgers and hot dogs.

Three of the seven Jensen Beach fire trucks will be on display on the Causeway during the day, Spinney said.

Boat Races

The rules for the boat races, as accepted by the Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting last week, limit the boats to horsepower and length. Classes and boat size requirements are as follows:

Class 1: 0-24 hp, minimum 12' boat.

Class 2: 25-45 hp, minimum 13' boat.

Class 3: 46-69 hp, minimum 15' boat.

Class 4: 70-89 hp, minimum 15' boat.

Class 5: 90 and up hp, minimum 16' 6" boat.

There will be no horsepower or length of boat requirements in the women's race.

No modifications such as removal of seats, windshields, etc., will be allowed. Engines must be stock with no modifications. Any propeller or engine height may be used.

All boats must have proper Coast Guard approved equipment on board, or they will be disqualified.

Skippers may enter their boats by contacting Herman Reitz at Stuart Marine Center, or at the race site.

Early registration will be one dollar per boat. Registration on July 4 will be two dollars. All registrations will close at 1 p.m. on July 4.

Trophies for the ladies will include an award to the youngest and oldest driver in the race.

The Frank A. Wacha Bridge will be closed during the fireworks show, to be opened after traffic moves out to leave the Causeway.

A final meeting of the Independence Day committee will be held July 3 at 4:30 p.m. at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce office.

FIRST NATIONAL PRESENTS--$25,000 in electronic equipment has been presented to the University of Palm Beach by the First National Bank of Stuart. The presentation of two Burroughs Sensitronic accounting machines, automation equipment used extensively in banking and accounting, was made by David H. Irons, left, executive vice-president of the Bank, to Morton B. Levinson, right, president of the University.

Under $2 Million

Commissioners Strive To Hold Budget Down

Martin County commissioners are attacking department requests for money with sharp pencils in an attempt to hold the budget below the $2 million mark, according to commission chairman Jack Saunderson. A workshop session will be held soon, he said.

"I believe in paying as we go, and we are going to have to live with what we've got," said James H. Brouser, vice-chairman of the commission. He maintains the 6.35 millage for county funds this year can be maintained.

This year's budget of $1.8 million was about $100,000 more than in 1965-66. However, the county budget plus those of the Flood Control District and Florida Inland Navigation District pushed the total budget to $1.9 million. Total millage was 6.795.

Some department request include:

Roads & bridges, $396,718; sheriff's, $282,748; clerk's office, $69,190; mosquito control, $47,769; civil defense, $25,97.80; juvenile court, $14,336; county judge, $36,787.

Agriculture, $30,398; circuit court, $8,100; animal rescue, $4,080; supervisor of elections, $8,000; county attorney office, $23,070; parks, $25,800.

The general fund budget this year topped the $700,000 mark, and the capital outlay and reserve fund this year was approximately $142,000.

Boil Saunderson and Brouser said they expect the loss of some state money--money going into the state general fund instead of to counties--but both commissioners said they hoped to hold the line on taxes.

POOLSIDE PARTY--A poolside birthday party was held for Mrs. Walter Dryer last Friday afternoon. The party was given by co-hostesses Mrs. T. Pendleton and Mrs. O. Chisasz at the home of Mrs. Michael Mann, Sago Drive, Jensen Beach. Guests also included Mesdames Lillian Tower, Vincent Scammelhorn, Leah Wood, Ethel Mitchell, Gay Cammack, Martan Robinson, Ruth Blasdell, Minnie Schaefer and Jo Doring.

Jack Sameck Employed By Soil Conservation Service

In cooperation with the President's youth opportunity program, the Stuart office of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service employed Jack N. Sameck of Stuart, to assist Lee Cason, Jr., with soil and water conservation projects in Martin County. Sameck, recently graduated from Martin County High School and plans to attend college this fall. Rayford V. Pitts, regular assistant to Cason is on temporary leave of absence and is expected to return to duty in mid-July.

The Stuart office of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and Martin Soil & Water Conservation District, located in the old Post Office Arcade, will be closed the week of June 26 to permit employees to take a vacation.

For the past two weeks, Supervisors of the Martin Soil & Water Conservation District have made technical help available to District cooperators Bill Goolsby, Westbury Farms, Tyson Flower Farm, Wink's Flower Farm, and Gifford's Flower Farm. Soil Conservation Service technicians are helping flower growers shape land, install tile, and apply water-control practices through the use of ditches with structures. At Westbury Farms ditches are being organized in one pasture to provide both drainage and irrigation. Structures are installed to regulate the water in the ditches; drainage will be reduced since much of the water will be kept in the ditches to maintain favorable water table.

Trail planting of Aeschynomene or joint-vetch are being made by Westbury Farms, J. Stuart Mathews, T. F. Clements, and Willie Parks, the seeds were furnished by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service Plant Materials Center, Arcadia, Flower. The vetch makes an excellent cover-crop; deer and game-fowl relish the leaves and seeds, and cattle will eat this water-loving summer legume "into the ground" if grazing is not controlled. SCS hopes to obtain more grazing information and encourage seed production with the vetch.

New Palm City Bridge Plans Nearly Completed

Final design drawings on the Palm City Bridge are expected to be sent to Tallahassee for State Road Department approval in 30 days, according to Post, Buckley, Mooney and Schuh of Miami last week.

If the plans are approved, the $1.2 million bridge would then be let for bid.

The date for construction to start is unknown, said Road Department engineer Tom Jennings, but the bridge is scheduled for construction sometime this year.

"The time depends on the project and whether or not the money is available" he said.

The project was a campaign promise by former Gov. Haydon Burns. The bridge is at the top of the county's primary road priority list, and the money for the project is already laid aside.

The bridge links Stuart with Palm City across the St. Lucie River. The present low-level wooden structure is the only route from Stuart to the Sunshine State Parkway.

"I think it is moving as fast as we can expect it to now," said county commissioner Bill Hussey. "We were real lucky on the bridge. They made all the changes we wanted."

Still to be purchased are the rights-of-way for the bridge. These rights-of-way will be acquired after the county knows exactly the location of the bridge.

NEWLYWEDS--Mr. and Mrs. Harley Rankin, Jr., were married June 17 at a garden wedding held at the home of the bride's great-aunt, Miss Julia Fillmore Harris, in Stuart. The bride, the former Lucy Hynes Wallace, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Wallace of Lake Minnetonka, Minn. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Rankin of Haverford, Penna. Rev. Thorner Sparkman, Hilton Head, S.C., officiated. The new Mr. and Mrs. Rankin will make their home in New York City where he will be employed by Pan American Airways.

Jail Repairs Made Following Inspection

Needed repairs to Martin County jail are being made, according to county commissioner James H. Bruner, last week. Repairs were made following an inspection by the Florida Division of Corrections personnel.

"Windows and screens are being replaced," Bruner said, "and the other work is either completed or being done."

Prisoners break windows and rip out the screens, he pointed out, making it necessary to replace them every so often.

A painter will work on new bunks just received at the jail, Bruner said.

This week an inspection of the jail will be made by members of the League of Women Voters as part of its continued study of Martin County government, according to Mrs. James Hutchinson, second vice-president.

Plans for a new jail are in the discussion stage, and next year's budget may have funds budgeted for a new structure, Bruner said. He is opposed to any new taxes for construction of new jail, he said, but would attempt to "set aside money over a period of years."

Hydrofoil Launching Set For Nov. 10

November 10 is the date set for the launching of the hydrofoil gunboat, the PG-(H)-1, now being built at Grumman's Stuart plant.

Construction of the boat, being built for use by the U.S. Navy, is about half-way completed, according to Grumman officials.

Grumman is competing with Boeing on the project. Boeing's Seattle plant is building the PG (H)-2. Follow-on production is possible for the company coming up with the better product.

IRJC Gets Grant

Indian River Junior College has been given a Federal Planning Grant in the amount of $8,500.00. This is financed under Title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Dean Robert H. Garin, Jr., Dean of Academic Affairs, who will be supervising this planning program stated that "these funds will be utilized in planning for initiation and supplementation of Closed Circuit Educational Television for the 1968-69 academic year. This is another effort of the college to provide its students the very best in instructional innovation."

"Florida Atlantic University, a national leader in ETV instruction, will provide seven subject area consultants to work with the faculty of Indian River Junior College. Dr. Garvey Meyer, Director of Learning Resources and Assistant Dean of Academic Affairs at Florida Atlantic University, will coordinate the consultive assistance and serve as consultant to the college."

Rio Paving

Work is under way on the paving of three streets in Rio. Barnard, Spencer and Waverly are being resurfaced and repaired, Fred Bell, Martin County engineer said last week.

Next on the road priority list is Iris Ave. in Golden Gate, he said, where crews and equipment will be working.

Growers To Request Use Of IR Label

Within the near future, it is expected that most of the Martin County citrus growers will request permission to use the coveted "Indian River" citrus label. The requests will be made under the recent ruling of Circuit Court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge in the suit filed by William E. Owens against the Florida Citrus Commission.

Most of the growers in the western Martin County area will be included in the Indiantown Groves suit, according to Snow Martin, Sr., Lakeland attorney who filed the Owens suit, and the Indiantown Groves suit.

The Florida Citrus Commission had 60 days from the 19th of May in which to file an appeal to the ruling by Trowbridge, Martin said, speaking about the suit filed by Owens. He said the commission has voted to appeal.

Lee and Myrtle Miller write to say Hazel Wilson is home now after spending a month with her daughter. She said also, the Cussons have rented a small apartment and are not with their daughter any more. They seem to be real happy to be by themselves.

Myrtle says, "We went to South Bend a week ago to do some shopping then north 18 miles to see our daughter and family just across the line in Michigan. We have had tornado warning just about every day for a week but none have developed."

As ever,

Both like that district and both will teach there. Lynn may teach math in Summer School but they said they would know better when they returned. Weather is getting hot now - 88 to 90 degrees.

June 19, 1967

"- You didn't mention the weather. Believe me, it can't be any worse than here. Ever since I came it has been in the 90's.

I went to my granddaughter Mary's graduation Thursday night and there were 400 graduates from High School. I also attended my grandson Mikes graduation from college and they had 1,537 grandmixes.

Sunday, Marry's new baby will be christened and then birthdays coming up - I am so glad I brought an extra check book. I really started something didn't I? I should have been a Nun.

Today is Mike's graduation party. 150 relatives and friends will be there. I will at least see all my brothers and sisters. It will save me a lot of visiting. Next week Gini is taking me to Brigantine for a week.

We have a letter from Mrs. John Wall. She writes:-
Elkhorn, Wisc. June 19, 67
Dear Nellie & Tom,

-- We sure have been having crazy weather. It was cold all through May and most of this month. In fact we had snow when we got home. The last few days have been lovely and warm but oh so much rain.

John's garden was flooded for three days and when the water left all the seeds from the Maples had sprouted as it were growing. I told him he should let them grow and raise Maple trees and sell them. Ah, Ha.

John gets a kick out of the shuffleboard news and the bridge and pinochle winners. I don't see how the shuffleboard gets along without him for that's where he spent all of his time. Hope we can make it down again.

Sincerely
Mary

We miss you John and the other familiar 'shufflers.' We still manage to keep two and sometimes three courts going in the evenings. T.C.

ONE OF THE TWINS- Mr. and Mrs. Armadillo are the proud parents of two cute little youngsters who were born under Charlie Lord's trailr and are now able to get around on their own. Mary Adrean and Ralph Sawyer were enjoying the cool of the evening air as the light began to fade, when they noticed the two young armadillos venture forth.

CABLES- This is getting to be a common sight this summer as more telephones are installed in the Park. Clarence Rydell and Frank Reynods are burying telephone cables.

Guatemalan Holiday

Chapter 8

Quesaltenango is an interesting looking city and we would liked to look it over but we didn't want to miss this opportunity of seeing a coffee finca so we decided to accept Mr. & Mrs. Whitehead's invitation and follow them. He had to pick up half dozen bags of cement, then was ready to go. He followed the main road to Guatemala City for about 20 or 25 miles, then abruptly left the road to follow a narrow bulldozed trail through the heavy jungle. I am afraid we would never have noticed it if he hadn't led the way. The jungle growth was very lush and heavy. Being almost at the foot of the 18,000 ft. high Santa Anna volcano, I imagine this spot receives copious rainfalls. Growth must be very rapid here for the vegetation was already crowding into the trail and was brushing our car on both sides. After a time we came to a clearing where the underbrush had all been cleared away and the big trees left. All the ground was covered by plants which grew in clumps like palmettos but the leaves or fronds were more like staghorn fern leaves. There were 960 acres of these which Whitehead told us was cardamom. I was told this plant belongs to the ginger family and the seed is used in medicine and confectionary. The yield of seed is low but it is worth $500.00 a bushel.

We soon arrived at the Whitehead residence which together with other buildings was built on a bench on the north side of the volcano. We entered the house and after a cold drink and proper introductions, during which Mr. Whitehead proudly showed us a gold medal he had been awarded for the excellence of his coffee, he showed us his vegetable garden. I noticed rows of unfamiliar young trees. He told us some of his coffee trees would occasionally die and they had to be replaced by these young trees. Next we saw his coffee processing plant. This plant is operated by electricity generated by water tapped from a spring higher up the volcano slope so it costs him nothing for power.

Mr. Whitehead with coffee tree.

His coffee trees were planted in rows on the volcano slope which was so steep we had difficulty walking. The coffee picking season was past but coffee trees are somewhat like orange trees in that one can often find some blossoms, some green berries and some ripe berries, almost any time of year. So we had a chance to examine the berries closely. The blossoms are white, not unlike orange blossoms, and the berries about the size of cherries are in all stages of development from the green color to the deep red. It is important that only the ripe berries be picked to get good coffee. During the season the ripe berries are dumped into a large vat and left to ferment till the fleshy part is quite soft. This is then washed away and the coffee beans are then spread on a large cement slab to dry in the open. When completely dry the beans are sacked and shipped away. I made the remark that I always had understood that coffee had to be grown in the shade and he had no other trees than coffee trees, Whitehead said, "That's the way it is all the time." The only time we see the sun is just as it rises; then the clouds begin to roll up the volcano side and we have a cloud cover all day. As we were saying goodbye we noticed another bench below the one we were on. On this were a half dozen tents and scattered huts and garden patches. These were the workers cabins we were told.

We returned by the same one and only trail through the jungle. Many of the trees we saw were familiar to us in Florida but there they grow so big and so thick as to be almost solid at times. The lantern trees with their yellow inch wide white, trumpet shaped flowers almost overhung the trail.

Returning to the highway, we continued our journey to Guatamala City by way of the coastal route which avoids the mountains. It is a fast road and we arrived at the city early in the afternoon and registered at the colonial Hotel. This is a Spanish hotel. It is centrally located, the meals are fair and the charges are quite reasonable, only $11.00 a day. This was quite a consideration as we found Guatamala considder ably more expensive than Mexico.

(More next week.)

Gene Hokes Return From Summer Vacation.

Gene and Ruth Hoke returned from their summer vacation Sunday, June 18. Their first stop was at Atlanta, Ga. Most of us consider Atlanta as just another city but Ruth says, there is much of interest to see and she considers Atlanta is a beautiful city.

They then drove to Palmer, Mass., and visited Ruth's dad who is staying with her sister. Then they visited Gloucester and Cape Cod and the White Mountains. Mrs. Hoke said they spent time in this beautifully scenic neighborhood especially at Lake Winnepesaukee, N.H. Dave Sturrock has a home there but they didn't have time to look the Sturrocks up. When in the Sturrocks up. When in Springfield, Mass., however they did call on the Jaycox's. They have a very nice restaurant and Ruth said they ate there two or three times.

On their way south they stopped at Washington, D.C., on the spur of the moment. They were both glad they did, for they were fortunate in securing a guide with an air-conditioned limousine. This man took them places they wouldn't have thought of going, such as the Smithsonian Institution, the Mint, the House of Representatives and the Senate. This was the highlight of the whole trip for Gene as a summit meeting was in session.

While Mrs. Hoke and I were talking, George and Lynn Cavanaugh walked in. Lynn is Ruth's daughter and she and George were spending the week-end with the Hokes. All this time the Cavanaughs' adopted baby, Kelly Eugene, was sleeping peacefully in his crib in the Hokes' comfortably air-conditioned trailer facing the Indian River. By the way he is a lovely looking baby boy, about ten months old and they tell me he can walk.

In conclusion, Ruth says this has been a wonderfully interesting and relaxing holiday.

Erblingers Leave For Pa.

Mr. & Mrs. Earl Erblinger, commonly called Mike and Jay left here saturday for the north. Jay says she hates to leave their nice new trailer in the park but she is going, but they have arranged to meet spike's brother and his wife from Phoenix Ariz. The Erblingers have a hunting camp in the mountains near Kane, Pa. but they will be spending quite a bit of time at Pagmatuning Lake near Jamestown, Pa.

They have a pontoon boat on the lake and anticipate having a lot of fun with it and the Dahling.

'Fishing Is Rotten'?

J.A. Bailey was sitting in the shade of a patio awning talking to Frank Zischeff today as I rode past on my bike. It is so unusual to ever see J.A. in the daytime as he is usually out fishing, so when I asked him how was the fishing, he replied, "Fishing is rotten".

"Well not" I said, "Other people tell me they are getting quite a number of shoots".

To which he replied, "I don't fish for snook, I fish for trout now Bailey said on his way that for some reason he hasn't had any trout and he gets a special kick out of trout fishing this time of year. He said that about three weeks ago he caught 11 trout and five snook one evening, then ran out of bait.

In the winter time he goes after pompano. He said he enjoys surf fishing. One time last winter he caught 90 pounds of pompano in one day. His total catch of pompano for that week was 240 pounds.

As I mounted my bike thinking of Bailey's records I said, "I don't think fishing is so rotten".

Otto says, of course they caught other fish but the Tarpon is the main thriller.

factor of a golf swing is the head, whether it pertains to the mental, physical or mechanical side of golf.

Physically, it balances the upper part of the body. Ninety per cent of golf is mental, so concentration is an important factor. Mechanically the head is the axis of a golf swing. Turn the head and you turn the whole swing in the wrong direction.

The mental and mechanical sides are very closely related. You can't look up before the ball is hit, so you have to sense the flight and direction of the hit.

The first and most important thing is to hit the ball solid, then high, far and straight. Straight is the last thing you learn, and you have to be balanced properly to have the club in the right plane for a straight shot. If you hit it solid, you won't knock it out of play and you will sense the direction and flight on the ball.

If you know something about the physical characteristics of the club face, and the sound made as the club head strikes the ball, you won't tend to follow the ball too soon. If you mis-hit the ball, it goes off at a tangent to the angle at which you strike it. Hit it solid and there are three basic sensings, left, straight and right.

The heel of the club puts the ball left; the center of the face puts it straight, and the toe puts it right. The toe of the club is the weak part and doesn't sound solid. The club tends to turn in your hands and the ball is off to the right. The center and heel are both solid and give a sharp click. The sensing is the same. Look straight for the ball first. If you don't find it, look left and the ball will be there.

Keep your head down longer and learn to sense the direction of the hit, and you will find success and consistency in better golf.

Program Planned For 'Safe Boating Week'

Stuart's Flotilla 59, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, has organized an active local program in observance of the annual "National Safe Boating Week" July 2 to 8, according to an announcement by John L. McCulley, PRO, Chairman of the event is Vincent D. Brennen.

"National Safe Boating Week" is a special program proclaimed each year during the July 4th holiday by the President of the United States, as requested by Congress in 1958, said Flotilla Commander Cyrus P. Trowbridge.

This year Flotilla 59 has obtained a quantity of special decals for posting near the helm that give a brief description of rules, whistle signals, buoys and storm warnings. They will be given to boat-owners who request a courtesy safety examination (CE) of their craft. Call 287-4025, 287-0562, or 287-2453 for an appointment.

"Boating activity in this country has more than doubled in the past decade," said Brennen. "Boatmen who set a good example by practicing courtesy afloat, boating organizations which conduct widespread educational programs and federal and state boating agencies which enforce our boating laws, all deserve a share of the credit for the sport's remarkable safety record," he said.

Normal Growth Seen In County Tax Rolls

No big jump in Martin County's tax rolls are expected this year, according to county tax assessor A. C. Courson, who said, "I don't see anything but a normal growth for Martin County this year."

Courson said a normal growth is about $3 to $5 million in the total tax roll. This would put Martin County tax roll at $230 million.

This is the second year that the county's assessments are based on 100% of true value.

Last year's operating roll was $186,522,530; with a normal growth it would still be below $190 million.

Last year the total assessed value of the county was just over $225,768,000.

The Board of Equilization will meet at 9:30 on July 3, and Courson says he hopes to have the county tax rolls completed before that meeting. After the rolls have been approved by the board, the millage for the county will be set.

Courson invited property owners to visit his office prior to July 3 meeting for their assessment for the coming year.

Girls Thanked For Bundles

Seven members of the Future Homemakers of America (FHA) have received a letter of thanks for the 26 packages of clothing they packed and shipped to Da Nang Orphanage, Viet Nam.

Sally MacArthur, Andrea Mills, Carol Reed, Patricia Campbell, Linda Penick, Susette Grien and Pamela Rollison, students at Stuart Junior High School, answered the plea of T. Sgt. Robert Randall, who requested donations of clothing for the children.

"We just received a letter from Sgt. Randall telling us how happy the Vietnamese children were with the clothing," said Mrs. Pauline MacArthur, home economics teacher at the school. He also enclosed photographs of the children.

The letter was written on Monday and received here in Martin County Thursday.

Voter's Views Asked On P-W Road Plans

Martin County voters are being asked by Martin-Palm Beach delegates in Tallahassee to express their feelings on legislation which would enable the county commission to complete a one-mile stretch of the Pratt-Whitney Road.

State Rep. Bill James said the delegation would like to hear the views of the M.C. voters by the middle of next week. He said the time remaining does not allow for a public hearing on the matter.

Cost of construction of the road will come from the capital outlay fund of the county, which now contains $10,000 for the project, plus funds from the secondary road fund of Martin County.

The Palm Beach County commissioners who gave permission to build the last one-mile stretch of the Pratt-Whitney Road at a recent meeting, have agreed to maintain the road once Martin County completes construction.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

Planning a camping trip? If so...do it quietly and don't ask for opinions, for when it comes to camping there are probably more ways and ideas on what, when, where and how it is best than could be written in a two year diary. Everyone it seems is an expert when it comes to camping know-how, as I found out one day recently when I made the statement I was going camping.

First came the suggestions of where to go...and some of the suggestions.. WoW? You should try that place up north... no it's better on the west coast... absolutely the only place is in the central part...heck no! use your back yard.

Well, let me tell you...a tent is the only way to camp...Like the devil it is, these new campers are just the ticket for the camp life.....If you really want something different, there is a cute little place that has fully equipped cabins and maid service.

Don't forget to take plenty of ice....No need to do that with the new portable ice maker and generator available...only cost two hundred and fifty.

Well, personally I prefer charcoal for cooking...new! that takes too long....get one of those new butane stoves....actually the old colemans are cheaper to operate...not me buddy! I prefer a good old fashion camp fire..

Sleep right on the ground like the good old days. Sleeping bags are the only thing.. Sure cots are ok if you have foam mattresses....There is nothing like a firm mock... the gentle rock and sway... it's wonderful! Don't get those air mattresses....they sure are rough when the air leaks out..

Kerosene lanterns stink too much....you get more light with a gasoline lantern. The new electric lanterns can't be beat....no fuss...no muss. Get next to nature....try the tiki torches.

Planning a camping trip? Save your sanity...and do so quietly.....

$8600 Budget Planned For Sailfish Regatta

An $8600 budget has been prepared by the Ways and Means Committee of the Sailfish Regatta to be presented for approval to the Stuart Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors at the July meeting.

Members of the new committee, appointed Monday by Chamber president Allyn Weigel, are James L. Overton, Jack N. Sailer and Herman Reits.

The two-day racing event is planned for Jan. 20-21.

"With good weather we should realize a profit with which to begin plans for next year's race," Weigel said. "Volunteers are welcome and the ladies can help with advance mailings and other assistance."

A number of first prize trophies are available to sponsors, James P. Barilett, chairman of trophies and prizes, announced.

GOP 'Come Across' Campaign Set For July

The local GOP "Come Across" campaign will be launched July 8, according to Dr. William G. Myers, chairman of the Martin County Republican Executive Committee.

The official kickoff of the "come across" re-registration drive will be a party to be held at 8 p.m. at the Stuart Woman's Club, hosted by the Young Republicans.

Myers said he looks for 500 to 1,000 persons to re-register in Martin County during this drive, with most activity around September after vacations.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the 4-1 ratio now enjoyed by registered Democrats will one day be erased," he said. "The two-party system is moving ahead, and I think we will see a 55-45 ratio in favor of the Republicans in the near future," he added.

County Actions

Changes by the legislature in the distribution of the seventh cent of the state gasoline tax to the counties will mean a drop of $12,000 in county income, according to a report made to the county commission Tuesday morning by commissioner Frank A. Wacha.

He quoted a letter from the State Road Department which said the seventh cent of tax amounted to approximately $167,900 in the 1966-67 fiscal year.

Of this, $130,400, or 80 per cent of the total, went towards maintenance of the county's secondary roads as administered by the SRD, and $33,000, or 20 per cent, went to the county for its own road use.

"Based on the new formula adopted by the Legislature, the estimate will drop the total to $104,600, of which approximately $83,700 will go to the SRD for its use here, and $21,000 will accrue to the county," Wacha said.

The difference to the county's road and bridge budget, he said, amounts to a drop of about $12,000.

When county attorney Dean Tooker commented on the loss of race track funds, Wacha pointed out that the new formula had not yet been determined. Tentatively, the administration is showing a plan to distribute $42,000 less to the counties than last year.

In Martin County, half of the total goes to the school department, half to the commission for use in the road and bridge fund budget.

Last fiscal year, this meant $145,000 to each. Under the tentative formula as adopted by the House, the cut would drop each department by $21,000.

In other action, the board;

SET a date for July 25 to hear a petition submitted by Thomas Thurlow, Jr., regarding the abandonment of an alley in Cleveland Subdivision;

NOTED that although tax assessor A. C. Courson had set July 3 for an equalization hearing, other hearings should be held through early August;

AUTHORIZED travel by the zoning board to coastal counties from here to Brevard to give them an opportunity to study zoning problems; to County Engineer Fred L. Bell and Wacha to either Gainesville or Jacksonville for an engineering design conference on St. Lucie Inlet with University of Florida and U.S. Corps of Engineers officials;

NOTED that the courthouse would be closed July 4th, Independence Day;

VOTED to ask the Legislature to pass a purse seining bill which would permit fish unloading control. Gov. Claude Kirk vetoed an early bill passed by both houses;

HEARD report from commissioner J. H. Bruner that all repairs asked by state jail inspector had been made to county jail;

COMMENDED Dr. W. Ira Williams, through proclamation, for his 10 years of service as trustee to Martin County Public Library;

AUTHORIZED commissioner Timer Powers, chairman Jack Saunders and, in company with Bell, to discuss with St. Lucie Co. commission, request by SRD that Glades Cut-off Road, and Allapattah Road, be placed in secondary maintenance status. So far the construction on the project was accomplished with primary funds.

City Actions

At the Monday night meeting of Stuart City Commission, commissioners agreed to close two railroad grade crossings in favor of a single re-aligned crossing to meet First St., linking Dixie and Flagler for a straight approach to U.S. #1.

Previously stalled because the Florida East Coast railway wanted the city to bear costs estimated at $4,600, the project won approval when the railroad agreed to bear the cost. The city will move a power pole and pave to the crossing planks to be installed by the railroad.

The railroad also will move signals, be close one guarded crossing and close one unguarded crossing, the latter at Akron and Albany Streets. The new crossing will be at First Street.

The crossing will be at right angles to the rails, but will match the entrance to First Street, according to city manager Joe N. Crowder.

In other business, the board;

NAMED Jack Hodapp to fill a vacancy on the Contractors' Board, as recommended by other board members;

SET work sessions for discussions on extending sewer trunk mains beyond present limits, salvage rights at the city dump, paving unpaved cemetery roads.

AWARDED contract to redo roof of City Hall, to low bidder, Stuart Roofing, at $1,618, including all materials needed.

HEARD appeal from Harold Whalen, East Parkway, who sought road repairs already scheduled by the city on that street; and a new appeal from members of Moose Lodge for a club license, Board members and Crowder told the latter the Beverage Commission makes a license available before one can be issued, but agreed to discuss it with a commission representative.

61 Adults Earn Diplomas

High school diplomas have been issued to 61 adults in the past school year, the highest number to date for any single year in Martin County, according to a report by E. B. Horton, director of adult education in the Martin County school system.

"The county is graduating one adult out of every four receiving diplomas each year; the state average is one adult out of every ten graduating," Horton said.

The 53 instructors in the school year taught almost 7,000 hours as adult students attended 104,403 hours of classes, said Horton.

Adults enrolled in General Adult Education classes totaled 727; 143 attended Adult Basic Education classes supported by the Minimum Foundation program; 167 adults attended Adult Basic Education Federally supported classes, and 302 individuals have taken Adult Civil Defense courses, making a total of 1,339 enrolled in the 1966-67 adult program.

Receiving GED diplomas were 42 adults, the result of General Education Development tests; 19 received teenage student credits to gain diplomas in adult courses.

There are six distinct divisions in the adult program, according to Horton. They include special interest courses covering such topics as art and real estate; the GED high school review for state tests; adult high school, with credit courses for teenage dropouts; adult basic education, for undereducated from eight grade down; adult distributive education, short courses in personal survival and other phases of emergency work.

Many Enrolled In School

A survey of the schools' summer program has shown that 255 pupils were enrolled in remedial reading courses and 291 in remedial math classes, both in grades one through six, according to a report Monday by Supt. of Schools James Navitsky.

Participating in the summer sports program are 194 enrollees. The swimming program has a total of 347 youngsters, possibly some of them duplications of students.

The two libraries open are serving an average of 150 pupils per day; 81 are enrolled in the music program and 15 pupils take a shop course each day.

The academic program in grades seven through 12 has 129 enrollees.

Skeeters Are Here

There were no mosquitoes at the North County line by June 9, according to a report by county engineer Fred L. Bell, but by June 19 the county was up to 120 a mile north of the line in St. Lucie County.

The flight pattern was checked and a report issued which said; "Checked swamps near county line and all places were bad; Arnold's Island and the Northern end of Hutchinson Island were high, too high to count."

The report, prepared for Bell by Mosquito Control director Mark Witham, then continued with a detailed account of how much fogging was being done, and where.

20 Acres From Harry Hoke

Board To Purchase Jensen School Site

Action was taken by the Martin County school board Friday to purchase 20 acres of land for the new Jensen Beach school. The agreement was for $2,000 an acre, to be paid to Harry Hoke, but only after access from the new state road, without recourse to a bridge or culvert, is established.

The deal did not include sale of the Jensen Beach School which Navitsky urged retaining until the results of a school building study and the Peabody College study are in.

The prospective budget for non-instructional personnel in Martin County schools was increased Friday, when the school board approved recommendations made by Supt. of Schools James Navitsky for a $317,980 payroll in the coming fiscal year. This is an increase of $26,578 over last year's $291,409 figure.

However, in at least one department there was complete re-organization to provide for what Navitsky said he believed would be savings in excess of the increase in payroll, with better maintenance in the system.

Under the new plan, the maintenance department will do more than custodial duties, it was pointed out.

J. K. Rowell was named supervisor of maintenance, a position created for the re-organization. Salary was set at $6,500 annually. Rowell replaces Bill Meggett who retired.

Other changes were made in non-instructional employee lists. Donald Armstrong, who has been on a retainer as school architect as well as on commission, resigned the retainer job.

The three-hour meeting covered 23 items on its agenda.

Gilbert Miller, newly named to a post in charge of Federal projects, reported nearly $70,000 in prospect.

Herbert Rosmarin reported the unexpected foundation of the new four-room addition at Martin County High School had delayed the project 14 days and had cost $2,823.75.

The Port Salerno school addition will be ready for roofing as soon as it is dry enough; Hobe Sound addition in the same categor), and Warfield addition is ready for pouring roof deck, according to the architects' report.

It was decided, in a policy move, to keep Dunbar School open as an elementary school with added enrollment over the present 92 enrolees.

Mrs. Jean Murfin asked early consideration of an offer by the Community Chest in the Jupiter area, which , if permitted, would pay the salary of a kindergarten teacher and aide, in its pre-school child care program.

Numerous contracts were awarded to successful bidders in many categories, including Halsey & Griffith, mimeo machine at $476.25; Smiley Bros., half-pint milk at six and a half cents; paper supplies, Dandee & Southern; paint supplies to Medallion Paints, and others.

Pending approval of his bond, Navitsky was scheduled for pay at the rate of $12,000 a year as assistant superintendent, in order that he could be paid. The bond was due last week but was delayed by administrative difficulties, it was said.

The board agreed to delay acceptance of a new set of policies pending further amendments, corrections and updates.

Jack Smoake was appointed assistant superintendent and his former position, that of general coordinator, was abolished.

The board agreed to a request for rids of vehicle insurance for $5,000, $10,000 and $25,000 in coverage, possibly replacing the current $5,000 now carried.

SRD Promises Parks Preservation In I-95

Congressman Paul Rogers has been advised that the Florida State Road Department is making efforts to "stay clear" of the Jonathan Dickinson State Park in routing I-95 through Martin County.

In a letter received by Rogers from Jay W. Brown, chairman of the State Road Department, Brown said, "We have made some tentative location studies on the route of I-95 between Fort Pierce and Palm Beach Gardens, covering several alternative routes."

"If and when approval is given by the Turnpike authority and the Bureau of Public Roads, to a free parallel facility, the Department will continue alternate location studies, and I assure you we will do all we can to stay clear of Jonathan Dickinson State Park," Brown wrote.

Rogers said he was pleased to learn that the SRD was considering alternate proposals which would eliminate local objections and still preserve the Park area.

Rogers also noted that prior to adopting any proposed location, a public hearing would be held so that local people could express their views, according to Brown.

Golf Course Planned

Change in the zoning code on Hutchinson Island to permit construction of a nine-hole golf course, has been asked of the Martin County Zoning and Planning Board.

It was learned early this week.

At the request of L. Gordon Brewer, of Hutchinson Island and Palm, county zoning director Fred L. Bell has asked the board to "think about it" on the field trip to be taken this Friday by the board. The trip will cover the coastline zoning as far north as Tibusvilla.

Brewer has plans to build a nine-hole course on a 65-70 acre plot that borders the north county line west of A-1-A, according to Bell. It would include facilities, on 10,000 square-foot lots surrounding the course, Bell said.

As it stands, Hutchinson Island zoning, written in the late 1950's, came up for amendments recently. A special committee recommended to the zoning board that only minor changes be made.

As it stands, the code neither approves of prohibits golf courses, said Bell.

Brewer, who has land on both the ocean side and west of A-1-A, has the property known as Kensington Beach Club north of the Jensen Beach pavilion. The golf course would be on land abutting A-1-A for about 1200 feet, according to Bell.

'100' Seeks County C of C Participation

The Martin County Committee of 100 has undertaken a plan to extend its influence and appeal through a greater participation of civic groups throughout the county. At a meeting of the committee last Thursday, members of the Indiantown, Jensen Beach and Stuart Chambers of Commerce and the Hobe Sound Civic League, met with Committee of 100 officers to reorganize the steering committee of the group.

E. C. Wareheim, a member of the Committee, spoke briefly on the purpose of the Committee of 100, citing the county-wide nature of the group, and emphasizing that the committee needed the support of the entire county to be able to function properly.

"I believe that the committee needs a substantial budget to be effective," Wareheim said. "We need a director who will work and travel, seeking industry. All communities in the county benefit from the results of the committee's work, and all should support the work of the committee," he added.

Walter Crowell, chairman of the budget committee, said, "Bringing in the proper type of industry is important. We need ideas and backing to promote industry and other advantageous projects that will benefit the county. That is why we have asked you to come here. We need your ideas, your support, and the support of your civic groups."

Representing Hobe Sound was Homer Greathouse, Realtor and president of the combined civic groups there. From Indiantown was George H. Trace, manager of Indiantown Telephone Company, and representing the Indiantown Chamber of Commerce. Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce was represented by Mirror editor Dick Campbell and J. Fred Silvers, owner of Jensen Trailer Sales. Stuart Chamber of Commerce was represented by Bill Burson, manager of Southern Bell Telephone, and Allyn Weigel, manager of Stuart Chrysler-Plymouth. The Port Salerno Chamber was represented by Henry Grein.

During the three hour meeting, Crowell asked for opinions and discussion of the Committee of 100, and enlisted the support of the delegates from all over the county to serve on the Steering Committee of the organization. All present offered to help in any way possible.

The committee set Thursday for the next meeting, and Crowell promised that meetings would be held in the near future "to get the program under way. We need support and active participation."

Crowell gave each member attending the meeting a condensed copy of the Premack Report, an analysis of Martin County's industrial potential, prepared in March, 1966, by the St. Petersburg research organization.

PROBLEMS--Giving serious thought to comments made at the Committee of 100 dinner last Thursday night were, left to right, Mrs. Doris Rehnberg, committee secretary; county engineer Fred L. Bell, and Florida Power & Light manager, John Law, Jr.

DEEP THOUGHT- Leaders of a reorganization of the Committee of 100, Walter Crowell, left, and E. C. Wareheim, listen to invited delegates of area Chambers of Commerce at the Thursday night meeting which began a new county-wide scope of the organization. The Chambers will be represented on the steering committee of the Committee of 100.

WLBW, Channel 10, Miami

WEAT, Channel 12, West Palm Beach

PENNY'S CORNER

Cooking out is a way of life in Florida. So, why not take advantage of our extra daylight hours in the cool of evening? Have a patio party. Tell the children around the TV to watch Let's Go To The Races. You can have a Derby Day get together in your own backyard. Make it a contest by preparing ahead. If you're serving charcoaled hamburgers, flavor the ground beef with a dash of Worcestershire sauce, garlic powder, fresh parsley and relish in it. Not until ready to put on the grill.

For a really delicious baked potato, scrub the potatoes, then cut almost through, horizontally as you would slice a loaf of bread. Spread with butter, add a dash of butter, salt and pepper, parsley flakes and paprika between each slice. Wrap in foil and bake in 350° oven for about sixty-five minutes to an hour in a 350° oven.

For a side dish, glaze a ham loaf, chicken or ham in its shrink bag with pineapple rings in your cream. Season with salt and serve with meat.

Funseekers Fill Causeway For July 4th Celebration

DON'T LOOK NOW---But here is a man discovering water. For 25,000

Independence Day is a day to celebrate the birthday of our Nation, a day for the young at heart, and a day for a deep feeling of patriotism. The photos on this page typify the mood of Independence Day, a day for children and patriotism.

The American Legion booth on the Jensen Beach Causeway was an outstanding display of Americanism. It brought to the minds of the thousands who visited the causeway for the festivities why they were there.

And, the children were there, too. They had their day, and what a day it was.

Next week, The Mirror will print more of the hundreds of pictures taken during the July 4th celebration. There were just too many good ones to print just these. Scenes of the firemen at work preparing the fireworks display; scenes of boat racing and of many of the other exciting activities.

GREEK STATUES?---No, swinging cats, way out, doing the (?) something.

THEY MEAN IT--This fine American Legion booth at the Causeway speaks for itself... a lesson in Americanism.

County Fallout Shelters Updated

L.E. (Lee) Peyton, a Fort Lauderdale urban planner, now State Community Shelter Planning Officer with the Civil Defense organization, said here Thursday, a year-long campaign to update, improve and enlarge fallout shelter facilities in Martin County would get under way at once.

Peyton said a house-to-house survey in the Jensen Beach - Rio - Sewall's Point area would start next week as the search to find shelter facilities for some 25,000 county resident begins. A U.S. Corps of Engineers survey initially turned up safe facilities for only 1,189 people under criteria existing about a year ago.

Later revaluations expanded useable places to 14 for the public with room for 1,445. Plans to throw up temporary, and somewhat basic additions to these places would provide shelter for Gamma and Beta rays in fallout for 4,288 people, a long way from the 25,000 sought.

Civil Defense Director Al Keaton said J. George Smith, shelter control director and his assistant, Art Clement, plus Keaton and W.L. Matters, an aide, would head the search and study for new places, which may even include cellars of two story homes in the Sewall's Point area.

The team has found nine homes of the type that could be used for small neighborhood shelters, Keaton said.

In outlining the need, Peyton said;

"A 16-foot outboard run-about with a canvas top anchored in over five feet of water over 200 feet from a shore line gives protection roughly equivalent to the best public shelters."

He said the statement was based on known absorption of fallout dust and rays by dirt, sand, concrete, and water.

"Digging a hole in the sand, driving a car over the hole and packing sand around the bottom of the car, is almost as good as a boat shelter," he said.

"However, large numbers of people cannot be cared for in this manner," he added, pointing out that from two hours to two weeks might be the term of stay in a shelter, depending radioactivity measured, proximity of nuclear attack and other factors.

He urged the public's cooperation in the survey and in project which enhance knowledge of the nuclear fallout threat.

Both Peyton and Keaton pointed to new laws requiring shelter capabilities in public buildings, and consultant services to builders of new large buildings.

"It would cost the average home owner a minimum of $1,500 to add fallout shelter space to the average CBS home," said Peyton.

"Criteria are based on a protective factor of 40; inside dosage of one-fortieth that which would be received outside," said Peyton.

"The average home on the 40 scale has only a factor of two," he added, to point out the need, and added, "That's why Florida is difficult on one hand, lucky on another, in that it has so many boats."

Surveys such as that which will be made here are being set for Duval, Orange-Seminole, Broward, Hillsboro-Pinellas, St. Johns, Charlotte, Highlands and Martin Counties, it was pointed out.

The project is the No. 1 on the United States City priority list, Keaton said.

P&W Road Contract Tabled

A motion to let a contract for grading the one-mile addition of the Pratt & Whitney Road was tabled by the county commission Friday because the Legislature's permissive bill had not been passed.

Bids had been made to open bids Friday, in hopes that the bill which will permit Martin to build a mile of linking road in Palm Beach County, would be law. However, the act was still in the Senate Rules Committee according to county attorney Dean Tooker. The act has been adopted by the House.

By vote of the board, the bid will be taken from the table July 11.

Final action was taken by the board on closing the beach ends of Seminarra and Celestine Blds. on Jupiter Island, ending the series of hearings that culminated in the swap of land at bridge road in return for the two 25-foot street ends. The vote to close was unanimous.

In other business, a contract was awarded to Erickerson, Inc., at $1824.12 to put an asphalt overlay on Sandbox Ave., Jensen Beach.

Tooker reported that the Legislature had passed the county's bill to permit 50-50 per cent cost participation by the county and the railroads on grade crossing warning signal costs, and asked county engineer Fred L. Bell to submit the crossings deemed most in need of such installations.

Surprise! P-W Mile Is High

Bids of over $50,000 for construction of one-mile of unsurfaced highway from the county line south into Palm Beach County shocked Martin County commissioners at their meeting Tuesday morning.

Low bidder on the project which had required legislative permission was Dickerson, Inc., of Stuart, with a bid of $51,661.75. The only other bidder was Gorham Construction Co. of Fort Pierce, with $53,026.

Commissioners indicated they expected the bids to be in the area of $10,000 available, and registered surprise at the bids.

Specifications for the project called for grading to a point at which a surface could be applied, and were according to the same State Road Department specifications used on the initial portion of the road, which now runs from SR 708 to dead-end at the south county line.

Ted Tyson, engineer for Dickerson, Inc., pointed out the price included clearing a 200-foot wide right-of-way, also.

County engineer Fred Bell indicated no surprise and said the price would have been less during the dry season, but would probably increase as more rain fell.

He also pointed out the county was not equipped to do the job.

The bids were tabled temporarily to permit commissioners to study the budget.

Funds are also being sought in the budget to hire an Indiantown B-25 spray plane to douse mosquitos.

Bell said the price of one spray trip, with lasting effects of one week, would buy a new pickup truck and new fogging machine, but chairman Saunderson pointed out, "You can't get the truck into the swamps short.

It to dump free of charge. Private individuals driving cars to the dump site, will make no payment, but commercial truckers and utility haulers will be charged 25 cents a cubic yard. Septic tank loads will be accepted at $5 a load, and junk cars will rate a $4 dumping fee.

Under the Cole offer, the county must construct a hard surface road on the temporary making up the 50-foot right-of-way, Saunderson said.

Bell said the price of one spray trip, with lasting effects of one week, would buy a new pickup truck and new fogging machine, but chairman Saunderson pointed out, "You can't get the truck into the swamps short.

you can reach by plane."

Commissioner J. W. Hussey had asked for plane spraying of the eastern part of the county. Commissioner Powers objected to omission of Indiantown areas.

Road And Bridge Study Criticizes County Actions

A special study report, made of the Martin County Road and Bridge Department, was presented to the county commission Tuesday morning.

The report, made by a firm of nationally-known certified public accountants under the financial sponsorship of the Martin County Taxpayers Association, was extremely critical of the department, particularly of failure to keep proper records, lack of inventory control, unusual methods in setting up the annual budget, and a score of other points.

The study was made by the CPA firm of King, Mahony & Arner, which has offices in Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Jacksonville, Orlando and West Palm Beach.

Heading the unit which made the study was James W. Kindelan, one of the senior partners and a leading CPA expert in county finance. He has made several other studies in Martin County in the past.

The study was made with "excellent cooperation from the county engineer, county clerk and employees working under their jurisdiction," the report stated. The commission agreed readily to the offer by the Taxpayers' Association when the study was suggested.

The commissioners and the directors of the association will study the report at the same time, and the board was told that further suggestions will be made by the association.

Initially, the study was to include a detailed look at record-keeping procedures and controls employed by the county, either at the clerk's office or at the department itself.

"As a result of and in conjunction with the study, we were to provide statistics and computations showing unit costs or road construction, if the records were maintained in such a manner that these statistics and computation were readily available," the report showed.

But lack of records made it apparent that no such study could be made, therefore the study was limited to a review of such records as were available, procedures in the department, with observations on these, the report continued.

The report was critical of lack of specifics in what employees do with their time; incomplete or inadequate payroll records, lack of any attempt to reach maintenance costs.

Of one special report involved, the CPA firm wrote: "This report is merely an indication that apparently some work was done on that particular road in that city during the reporting period."

The report criticized lack of gasoline storage and dissemination control, lack of detailed inventory records, the entire requisition system, which in effect was handled by one man who had full control of some purchases from start to finish with a minimum of record-keeping and little or no supervisory control.

"It is obvious that the current records and reports do not provide the basis to establish costs of maintenance of new construction. We believe it is essential to the efficient business-like operation of the department with a budget in excess of $450,000 that cost records be maintained to determine costs of the work by functions and total costs of new construction by projects," suggested the report.

Grien Gains Dump

Henry Grien, owner of a site offered to the commissioners for a county dump, has been informed that he will be able to provide the necessary right-of-way to the dump from the main highway, Grien had been awarded the contract to operate the dump but found he could provide only a 15-foot right-of-way.

Tuesday the sub-committee was informed that Henry L. Cole, West Palm Beach, trustee for owners of land adjoining the Grien 200-acre plot west of the turnpike and north of Martin Grade, would provide 40-feet for right-of-way, making it a 80-foot right-of-way, according to county commissioner Chairman Dark Saunderson.

Under the new agreement, Grien will permit the county

Committee Changes Name, Re-Organizes

Martin County Resources Development Board was born of the old Martin County Committee of 100 last week at a re-organization breakfast session.

Five members were named to a steering committee: William R. Burson, and Richard Campbell, both of Jensen Beach; Homer Greathouse, Hobe Sound, Henry Grien, Port Salerno and George Trace, Indiantown.

They will serve until the membership meeting in November, according to steering committee chairman Evans Crary, Sr.

These five new members will join other steering committee members including James Garvey, Roland Lowder, Walter Crowell, Robert Green, Joseph Greenlees, Ernest Lyons, Arthur Meinrose, E. C. Wareheim, Edward Hailey, Dale Hudson, Fred L. Bell, John Law and H. V. Johnson.

One of the projects faced by the expanded steering committee is that of employing a new executive director to run an office and seek new industry for Martin County.

R. H. Philbrick, who was executive director, resigned early in the summer to take an executive position in a camper-trailer condominium on Hutchinson Island.

Burson, Bell and Law were named as a sub-committee to find an "action plan" to be presented to the steering committee.

The organization was originally formed in 1959 and has offices at 73 Colorado Ave., Stuart.

Skeeter Chaser Is Hired

At a special committee meeting held by the county commission Tuesday afternoon Bert Clements of Indiantown agreed to fly Wednesday and Thursday evenings for $1,200, covering the eastern part of Martin County and populated areas as far west as Indiantown.

Clements will use his converted B-25 two-engine spray plane.

Tom Cook Leaves For England Friday

Dear Readers and Ocean Breeze friends,

On July 14, I board a B.O.A.C. plane at the Miami airport, bound for London, England. My only surviving brother and sister are in failing health and I consider it is more or less my duty to pay them a visit before it is too late. I will be away three weeks and during this period, my wife Nellie, will take over these columns. I appreciate very much the letters and cards you have sent me in the past few weeks and I will appreciate it that much more if you will keep it up during my absence, as Nellie will need your full co-operation if she is going to be able to fill the Ocean Breeze page each week. Any interesting trip or happening that you'd like to tell your friends about, is what we are after, and don't omit the details.

I have received a lot of compliments for our page. Alot of the credit is due to you people who go to the trouble of supplying me with the news. Many thanks.

Gary Wins Soap Box Derby

Mr. & Mrs. Arthur Johnson have received word that their grandson, Gary Johnson, aged 12, has won the Soap Box Derby at Hingham, Mass. Garty, due to his age, entered the Junior Division which he won. After this he raced and beat the winner of the Senior Division. He will be representing Hingham at the Akron Soap Box Derby on August 12.

Record Snook?

On June 28, Otto Chihasr's party fishing in the North Fork had a wonderful catch. In addition to three tarpon they also caught a 32 pound snook and a monster 39 pound snook. The latter beauty was weighed and latched and it is thought it may be a record for this sport fish.

Teachers Enjoy Vacation

An all too short vacation was ended July 6 when Miss Linda Black and her two school teacher friends, Mrs. Gloria Snyder and Mrs. Wilma Gray of Columbus, Ohio, left Ocean Breeze Park for home. They had planned to visit the Keys - but changed plans and spent four days at Sanibel Island, Shells there facinated them. They thought to go swimming in the Gulf of Mexico but after seeing several medium sized Manta Rays, did their swimming elsewhere.

Being Northerners they enjoyed the sea food at Sanibel and the shopping at the Edison Mall at Fort Myers also. It's air-conditioned comfort for these summer days. While crossing the state, these visitors found the ranch lands and irrigated groves sights to make their trip well worth while.

Jensen's beach had offered these fold, sun, sand and some shells, and long walks along the ocean's edge. Definately their evening spent on the causeway July 4th, was one they will long remember with the grand display of fireworks there.

BEACH-TIME--The Jensen Beach public beach was well patronized July 4th. Lifeguard, Bob Cammack, keeps a sharp watch on the juvenile bathers.

Charles Frenches Visit Venezuela

Mr. & Mrs. Charles French of Melaleuca Drive had an interesting ship tour of the Caribbean recently. They left on the 20,000 ton ship, Feerito, from Port Everglades on June 24. Their ship stopped at many of the Caribbean islands, some of which were Puerto Rico, St. Thomas, Martinique, and ended their trip at the port of Laguaire in Venezuela.

The feature that particularly interested the Frenches at Puerto Rico was the old Spanish fort at San Juan called the Morro Castle. They thought that St. Thomas was an outstandingly interesting city with it's narrow streets and picturesque stores. The view from the top of the mountains is very beautiful.

After docking at Laguaire they went to Caracas, the capital of Venezuela. They found Caracas to be a very interesting and beautiful city also. It is situated in a valley of about 3,000 feet elevation, completely surrounded by mountains. They rode the cable car to the top of the mountain from where, at 7,000 feet, they had a marvelous view partly obscured by distant haze. Venezuela is the most wealthy country in South America. The Frenches viewed the source of this wealth at Maracaibo where evidences of their vast oil deposits are all around. The Venezuela government is seeing that their wealth is well guarded for soldiers are to be seen everywhere.

Our travellers returned to the United States by plane. Charles said, "It took six days to get to Venezuela but it only took 2 1/2 hours but it only took 2 1/2 hours to return."

Mobile Home Living In New Hampshire

Mrs. Susan Hotsington Writes from Keene, N.H.

June 25, 1967

As you must know by now, I sold my house and bought a Holiday Cottage trailer and moved into my grandson Warren's trailer park. It is a beautiful park set in a grove of large trees. I have a large lot and parking space for two cars. The Pine trees have been so pretty with their candles which have now turned into new growth. A hemlock branch with its new growth and some cones on it hangs over one of my living room windows and a pine branch hangs over the window on the other side. When I take time to sit down I enjoy watching the birds, bugs and the bees working on them.

Our front window overlooks a little park, circled by a road. The children come to play in this park. The boys have lots of fun playing with a land roller using it for a tank. Big battles are fought there but there has never been any casualties as of now. Yesterday there was a big road job being done around the tree.

The cold spring left us with a hang right into 80 and 90 degrees weather for a week with high humidity and rain. It has cooled some now.

I am busy now going over my souvenirs. It is surprising the amount of junk one can accumulate. Though I have a 60 x 12 cottage there is not room for it all so the junkman is going to get a big load -- haul away. Going through my pictures, I had some good laughs over some of the fashions from 1896 down.

Like you, our drought has ended. Ours was for four years. Now the mosquitoes, who have started all that time are really making up for lost time. They seem to think I'm a good subject to feed on.

So long for now,

Susan Hotsington

Rogers Reports On Postmaster

Congressman Paul Rogers reported to The Mirror last Friday that the status of the Jensen Beach postmaster's appointment was still in the civil service commission for examination. He enclosed a letter he received from the commission explaining the status of the appointment.

Honorable Paul G. Rogers
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

This is in response to a telephone inquiry from your office concerning an examination for the position of postmaster at Jensen Beach, Florida, an office of the second class.

An examination for postmaster at an office the size of Jensen Beach consists of two parts: (1) a written test, and (2) an evaluation of experience and fitness.

Applicants who pass the written test are then tested on a scale of 100 on experience and fitness, and they must attain a rating of at least 70 in this part of the examination, excluding credit for veteran preference.

The evaluation of an applicant's experience background is made from statements by the completed, and nine applicants passed the test. However, the evaluation of experience and fitness of the competitors who passed the written test has not yet been completed.

Under our schedule for processing postmaster examinations, the average time between announcing an examination and the date a certificate of eligibles is issued to the Post Office Department is approximately six months. However, there are unavoidable delays in some cases which make it impossible to complete the rating within the time schedule.

We are running behind schedule in the rating of the Jensen Beach postmaster examination. We hope to complete the rating of the examination within the next 90 days. However, if it is necessary to conduct a field investigation to obtain additional information regarding the qualifications of the competitors, the rating of the case will be delayed.

We will complete the processing of the examination as expeditiously as possible. When the rating is completed, a register of eligibles will be established. At that time, each competitor will be notified of the results of his examination and, if eligible, his standing on the register. A certificate of the top three eligibles on the register will then be issued to the Post Office Department for its consideration in making a selection for appointment.

Our records are stated to inform you when a register of eligibles is established for the postmaster position at Jensen Beach, and to give you the names of the eligibles certified to the Post Office Department as soon as the information is available.

Sincerely yours,
Henry C. Hoberson, Chief
Postal Examining Division

Little Effect In Martin County

Seaboard And Atlantic Merge

The merger of the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Airline railroads, effective July 1, is expected to have little effect in Martin County.

The two roads became the eighth largest railroad in the country in a merger that has been in the works for nine years. Much of the time has been spent in bitter court fighting initiated by Ed Ball's Florida East Coast railway.

The new road will be known as the "SeaboardCoastline". Seaboard Airline, as a railroad, crosses western Martin County on a straight single line, entering the county beside SR-710 at the northwest corner, and leaving it southeast of Indiantown after a northwest-southeast straight route.

Today the only station stop is Indiantown, where both freight and passengers are serviced on notice.

Seaboard, in the tax roll, is being levied at $1,207,501 on its track and facilities in Martin County. Atlantic is levied nothing. Florida East Coast, by comparison, is on the new rolls for $2,389,688.

Seaboard Coastline hasn't yet hit the tax rolls, according to A. Clyde Courson, county tax assessor, who said last week that the Railroad Assessment Board's listings credited SAL with all local ownership on the now-merged line.

Jacksonville will be the operating headquarters but corporate headquarters of Seaboard Coastline will be in Richmond, Va.

The two big roads used single trackage on the route in Martin County. The big diesels pull the cars through the county at speeds of 80 to 100 miles an hour. The new line has four-fifths of all the rail mileage in Florida, overshadowing the freight road, the Florida East Coast.

ROYALTY--The Prince of Tonga became King Tupou IV this week in coronation festivities which lighted Nuku'Alofa, Tonga, with flaming torches in a ceremony known as Tupakapakanava. Here he is pictured with Mrs. Ralph Evinrude when he visited The Outrigger and the Evinrude home in Jensen Beach three years ago. Tonga, an island monarchy of 72,000 people who live under the British flag, is south of the equator in the Pacific in the general vicinity of Fiji and Samoa.

City Awards Two Drainage Contracts

Stuart city commission voted unanimously to accept the bid of Dickerson, Inc., of Martin County, to do two city drainage projects. The contract was for $25,035.

The two-part project includes the laying of about 2,200 lineal feet of concrete pipe, including 1,450 feet of 24-inch mains; 620 feet of 18-inch mains and 95 feet of 12-inch mains.

Pine Manor drainage, thru Manor Drive to connect with Bessey Addition mains, is part of the job. The other is drainage of the Memorial Park area of E. Ocean Blvd.

Completion is to be within 60 days of the date of the work order.

In a meeting which will eliminate the regular Monday night session, the commission voted to advertise a public hearing at which R-3 zoning on Flagler between City Hall and Stuart Youth Center would be changed to B-1, a business zone. This was recommended by the zoning and planning advisory board. The hearing date was not set.

The temporary financing of the over-all water and sewer main projects appeared to be progressing well and may be ready by the end of this week, according to Joe N. Crowder, manager.

Sole project on the improvement list not let out bid is the First St. sewer lift station. Specifications have been prepared and bids will be sought soon, Crowder said.

A hairpin turn we nearly didn't make.

In spite of the heat we sat in the car with the windows all closed waiting for the dust to settle. It finally did and we proceeded. Luckily that was the only vehicle we met till we got through the dust region. As the road started to climb, the trail had some gravel on it and the dust seemed to have blown away.

Lake Atitlan is a deep hole in a solid rock. I don't know how deep the water is but the rim is 3,000 feet above the water. Our road, if you can call it a road, followed the eastern rim. Several mountain ridges ran across our trail which had to be crossed. To make it even more interesting, the road had of necessity been built with a minimum of money, so it followed every zig and zag. Hairpin turns, one after the other, and so steep at times, our front wheels were spinning. Nellie suggested putting rocks in the car trunk to give the inertia a better grip after one particularly harrowing slippage when I envisioned our car and ourselves sliding back over a cliff.

There was no turning back. We had to go forward, so on we went. It is the custom to sound your horn at every turn, as a vehicle going uphill has the right of way. I was getting tired of so much horn blowing, but it paid off for on rounding another sharp trun, there in front of us was one of those mountain busses. He was jammed up tight to the solid rock wall and I was so glad his bus on the cliff side.

FUNDAMENTALS OF GOLF
The Timing and Tone of A Golf Swing

Timing and tone, like tempo and rhythm, are terms used in relation to a golf swing, but they are often misunderstood.

Timing and tone reflect in the wrist action, and are a result, not a cause. Timing, as defined, would be to have the body, arms and hands in the right relationship at the hit. Tone, as defined, is the amount of wrist action in relation to the body and arms.

Let's take timing first and talk about the hands as they reflect in the body and the arms. If you swing back naturally and full, the wrists pronate and the club face opens. Coming down to square the face at the hit, you have to supernate, which means turn your wrists to the left. A slicer would be one who turned too late. A hooker would be one who turned too soon. Halfway between slice and hook is straight, and here lies the timing of your swing for all practical purposes.

The tone of a swing reflects in a person's wrist action. Stiff wrists reflect on tone. Live wrists give another tone. Wrist action is a result, not a cause, and shows up in body action and the balance of a golf swing. If you have good wrist action, you know that your body action is good, and, as a result, your timing and tone will be good.

The wrists play a big part in the timing of your swing and show results in the tone of your swing. The wrists bend backwards throughout the entire backswing and reverse themselves throughout the entire downswing to the finish. Live wrists give good timing and good tone.

Life In The Keys(tah)
Part I

It's a different world and a different way of life. It's life in the Keys(tah), better known to folks as the Florida Keys.

Whether one prefers the comforts of the modern motels or the more haphazard camping areas, he will find the Keys offer a wide variety from which to select. Beginning with the uppermost portion of Key Largo to the extreme lower area of Key West, visitors can select a spot to fit their individual likes.

Personally, I prefer camping as a way of life in the Keys, and my favorite spot is located a little better than half way down the islands. The location is known as Bahia Honda State Park situated at the east end of the bridge with the same name. The park is ideally located between Marathon and Key West, providing easily accessible shopping areas for any needs around the ramp.

The park camping areas is available on both sides of the highway, with the south side fronting on the Atlantic and the north side on the Gulf, with both offering a magnificent view of the multi-colored tropical waters. Vast areas of white sandy beaches are available along the park area, and anyone with children can turn them loose to frolic in the water, needing only to keep an eye on them occasionally. A well-supplied snack stand with such staples as bread, milk and ice, extra-clean modern restrooms, vending machines, plenty of picnic tables and good city water all help to make Bahia Honda a camper's dreamsite. The waters surrounding the park lend themselves well to almost any type of aquatic sports. I scuttled fishing, boating, skin-diving, swimming, shell-collecting, lobstering, water-skiing or what-have-you can be carried on with relative safety and unusually good results.

In Part 2 of Life In The Keys(tah), I'll tell you a little more about some of these fine water activities.

Boats Cruise Bahamas

Martin County was well represented on the annual Spencer Boat cruise of the Bahamas. The cruise started June 27 and ended July 7.

Twenty-six boats made up the fleet, including six from Martin County.

Local boats making the crossing were "The Cyclo, III," "The Sea Dot," "Tena-Boo," "Magic I," and "The Shadroe" and "The Goodies, Too."

This season's trip included stops at West End, Great Sale Cay, Powell's Cay, Treasurer Cay, Green Turtle Cay, Hopetown, Man O' War Cay, and Allan's Cay, before returning to Palm Beach.

PREPARATION- Coach Walter Peterson of Fort Salerno aids catcher with his gear as game time draws near.

Summer Fishing Now At Its Best

Monster-size snook and tarpon are feasting on mullet in the vicinity of Bay Tree Lodge area, after their diet of dog-faced eels. Snook also in the North Fork; tarpon in the South Fork; and both in the Indian River and surf, and many south of the Causeways.

Plenty of spotted sea trout in the Indian River, too; and surf anglers are picking up an occasional blue fish, and many whiting.

Surfers, trollers and bottom fishermen being surprised with catches of blues at this time of year.

Sailfish twelfth offshore, as are dolphin. Kings, dolphin and sails in as close as two miles along the Jensen Beach area. Some albacore all over the ocean, and some Spanish mackerel.

Visitors of its summer best just now.

There Was Something For Everyone July 4th On The Jensen Beach Causeway

SMALL FRY--One more item of interest at the Independence Day celebration on Jensen Beach Causeway could have been a Baby Parade, according to all the cute, healthy young ones who spent the day picnicking with their parents.

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT!--Local bands set up "shop" on one of the pavilions on Jensen Beach Causeway last Tuesday to the joy of the younger set- and quite a few oldsters, too. Here, "The Knights of Sound" carry their sound-boxes with them, combining an amplifying system. The boys assembled the system for a fraction of the cost of a "store-bought" type. The band was resplendent in light yellow shirts and black vests and provided dance music during the afternoon and evening for happy teenagers.

SPEAKERS--Handling the master of ceremonies job throughout the day at Jensen July 4th, Independence Day celebration was Frank Wacha, right, and Al Walker, both of whom switched off on the announcing chores as the day progressed. The sound system on the causeway was the most satisfactory of any show put on there in past years.

BUSY VOLUNTEERS- The Auxiliary of the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department worked hard and long to keep the lines moving along the dining pavilion. The group was well organized under the direction of the Gene Olivers, with able and willing help. Here Mrs. Lee Pranowski checks her change before the rush begins.

BOAT RACE COURSE--The Indian River waters on the south side of the Jensen Beach Causeway proved to be perfect for the Independence Day amateur boat races. Here some of the boats start together for the hour-long run around the closed course. One of the races and the Women's Powder Puff Race were cancelled because of a downpour.

CHICKEN- Gene Foux, right, handled the charcoal heater as his fellow chef, Ed Sprague, stood by to assist. The firemen cooked hundreds of barbeque chicken dinners as part of the Independence Day celebration in Jensen Beach. Proceeds from the dinner will go in part to the fireworks fund for next year.

CUT FOOT- The only injury of the day was a cut foot but the Independence Day celebration committee was prepared for anything, with the medically equipped camping trailer of Dr. Richard G. Penick and the Ambulette Ambulance standing by).

CHOW DOWN--The menu offered by Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen and Auxiliary on the Fourth of July at the Jensen Beach Causeway tempted all comers. Barbecued chicken, homemade beans, cole slaw, French fried potatoes, hamburgers, hot dogs, rolls, coffee and milk were prepared and served to thousands of hungry visitors who thronged the causeway to watch and join in the games and activities of the day and evening.

AWARDS- Trophies were presented to winners of the amateur boat races held on the south side of Jensen Beach Causeway in the Indian River on Independence Day. Left, county commissioner Frank A. Wacha, and right, Al Walker, co-emcees for the day, award the trophies which were donated by the Ralph Evinrudes. Chairman of the event was Herman Raitz, assisted by co-chairman Dick Campbell. Raitz was second, behind winner Sid Blake of Jupiter, who won the hour-long run around a closed course. Campbell took second in the 70 to 80 hp. class.

HERE 'TIS- Commissioner Frank Wacha points out the location of the new beachfront right-of-way purchase being made by the county. The buy will add 400 feet of beachfront to the public domain.

400 Foot Strip

County Buys Ocean-River Property For Right-Way

$252,800 Price

by Dick Campbell

The Martin County Commission took the first step, though a back-road method, to gain beachfront for the public use by buying a 400-foot long piece of land, ocean to river, on Hutchinson Island at the special meeting of the board Tuesday morning.

Commission Chairman Jack Saunderson, in asking that the land be purchased, said, "There has been a hue and cry from the people for the county to buy beachfront ...well, this is the kind of deal we can be proud of for the people."

The subject was broached by Commissioner Frank Wacha, who played down the beachfront, though he mentioned it, and said that the property would be needed in future years to move the road down the island to the west, away from the dune line of the ocean. He added that the price was right, $35,000.00.

All commissioners had nothing but praise for C. B. Arbogast, Jr., local Realtor, who negotiated the land deal for the owner, trustees of the estate of Josef Oswald of Fort Lauderdale, who have been liquidating the property of the estate. Arbogast had offered the land to the county for $35,000 in January.

It was interesting to note that the land was appraised at $68,000 on July 5, and, in a time of 100% valuation, it was listed on the tax rolls for only $36,500. The estate of Oswald will receive a little more than half the appraised value of the property. Saunderson said, "We must move right now on this, for, at this price, the land will go fast if we don't pick it up. Reporters at the meeting began offering Arbogast $35,500 in jest.

The ocean to river purchase adds 400 feet of beach to the county park system.

It comes at a time when the county was being criticized for inaction on promises of gifts of land for beachfront. (See Live and Love It, page 4).

The indication of interest in the land was not actually a purchase. The county has in its first pass a supplemental budget to apply money received, but not budgeted in the past year.

The board will advertise a supplemental budget which will also include money to pay for bringing the last mile of the Pratt-Whitney Road, in Palm Beach County, up to grade and ready for paving. The board will gather the $85,000 from the following sources: $16,000 from surplus gas tax, $2,900 from surplus road tax income, $4,000 from unspent race track receipts, $2,000 from interest on savings, $10,000 from a private donation by Onslem, Inc. toward the Pratt & Whitney Road, and $51,000 from excess cash carryover from last year's budget.

The budget motions were made by Commissioner Frank A. Wacha and were seconded by Commissioner Elmer Powers, who inserted an amendment which would permit the county to ask the State Road Department to use the county's secondary road funds to surface the P & W Rd. stretch after the county has supplied the fund for throwing up the grade.

The board will accept the low bid of Dickerson, Inc., $51,681.75 for the project. An estimate of $20,000 to $25,000 additional from the secondary road fund will be requested of the SRD to surface the project.

The 400-foot stretch of island property will continue the county's ownership of the narrow strip from north of the House of Refuge to well south of it, a strip based on ledge not susceptible to erosion.

Another few hundred feet south of the new county stretch, the City of Stuart owns a 50-foot piece from ocean to river.

NEW OWNERS- Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Norkin stood in front of The Anchorage Yacht Club Tuesday, surveying their new property. The Norkins purchased The Anchorage marina, boatel, motel, restaurant, mobile home park and commercial properties from Mr. and Mrs. John Wolf on Monday.

Norkins Purchase The Anchorage

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Norkin, Jensen Beach residents

FIRST CONTESTANT--Miss Betty Lee Jarrett, 18, was the first contestant to register in the Stuart Jaycee Labor Day Beauty Pageant. She posed, above, with Tony Romano, singing star, who will emcee the show.

for the past three and one-half years, purchased The Anchorage Marina, motel, boatel, mobile home park, commercial property and the Anchorage Yacht Club facility on the north shore of the St. Lucie River, according to papers filed at the courthouse.

Total purchase price for the property was $252,800, indicated by state transfer stamps, with a pick-up of mortgages of $217,787.75 included in the sale.

The sellers were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Wolf, who have been owners and operators for over 10 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Norkin live at 165 Arch street in Jensen Beach. Norkin plans to manage the property with his wife. "We plan on major changes in the operation or personnel in the immediate future," Norkin said, adding, "Don Johnson will remain as manager of the marina, and the present staff of 22 will continue in their jobs."

Norkin said that Mrs. Wolf, resident manager of The Anchorage Yacht Club facility until the sale, will remain at the property for "several months" to assist him in the many facets of operating the various businesses.

The property included in the sale is 555 feet on the St. Lucie River, 250 feet on Highway 707, and is 1250 feet deep. It includes 20 rental units, 19 mobile home sites and a large commercial building, 58 boat slips in the marina and a Pier 66 marina franchise. Also, the clubhouse-restaurant of The Anchorage Yacht Club, ranked as one of the top three restaurants in Martin County, a private club. There is also .65 acres of submerged land in the package deal.

The Norkins came originally from Bayside, L. I., New York. Ralph Norkin retired with 29-1/2 years of service, 16 years as administrator of the department of trans. of New York City. He was the first administrator of the department when it was created.

"I'm moved here," Norkin said, "because I like the suburban type of living we have here. I have always been around the water, and am an avid boatsman, and that is what this area offers."

Mrs. Norkin owned a beauty parlor in Flushing, selling out when they moved here.

"As far as change goes, we plan none right now, we just want to get to know what we are doing. We will study the areas where growth is needed and indicated," Norkin said.

Outrigger Restaurant Wins Kudo

The readers of Florida Trend magazine voted a local restaurant, Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant, "one of the outstanding restaurants in Florida", according to information received here from the publisher of the Florida business magazine.

Harris A. Muller, publisher of Florida Trend, announced that a survey of the readers of the magazine found The Outrigger one of the winners in 78 cities of Florida, and reported that details on the survey would be available in the August issue.

School Approved JB Site Purchase

Martin County School Board last week approved an agreement, and authorized James Navitsky, superintendent of schools, to sign a contract for purchase of the Jensen Beach property offered for the new school by Ocean Breeze Park, Inc.

The contract is contingent upon the seller supplying a survey showing that there is a 75-foot-or more entrance to the property from the new street, through which an culvert of Bridge would be necessary) and the approval of the State Board of Education of the site. Under the contract papers would be prepared on or before January 15, 1968, at a price of $40,000 for the site.

In other business, the board:

AGREED to ask bids on four aluminum-type portable classrooms for use at the MCHS.

NAMED the following Beachfront managers: Mesdames Lorene Grant, Doris Comstock, Emma McCue, Antoinette Schnurbusch, Joy Lowe, Florence Clements, Mattie Kincaid and Alfreda Wiley. Two other such managerial positions were left APPROVED appointments of Mrs. Eleanor Harris to MCHS library clerk; James Herndon and Mrs. Jeannette F. Johns, as teachers, and Duane Gardener as maintenance worker.

Public To Own 4000'

Martin County's planned purchase of a 400-foot strip of land across Hutchinson Island on Tuesday, brought to 4,433 feet the county's oceanfront holdings.

Since the meandering line adds another 40 feet to the beach property frontage, the last gain for Martin County in beach dealings this year has been 488 feet, 440 of it in the $35,000 planned purchase and 48 in a swap of 75 feet in two street ends in return for 123' of frontage at the Bridge Road beach on Jupiter Island.

The new total breaks down as: Jensen Beach, 1,448; Stuart beach, 1,150 feet; House of Refuge, 760 feet plus the planned 440; nine street ends totaling 255 feet north of Bridge Road on Jupiter Island, 250-1 2 feet at Bridge Road, to which the public ownership through holdings of the City of Stuart, a 50-foot strip with 60 feet of frontage recorded, brings the tally to 4,433.

Frances Langford Recording Has Jensen Beach Dateline, Pictures

The latest recording of Frances Langford, entitled "Frances Langford Sings in Viet Nam", has a Jensen Beach dateline.

Fran Wacha, county commissioner, mentioned the recording as a boost for this area, "publicity we cannot buy", at the county commission's special meeting Tuesday morning.

Two-sided, the album features Miss Langford in 13 of her best songs, with Tony Romano, featured entertainer at The Outrigger, in two of them, Lu, Night and Day and My Baby Just Cares For Me.

On the cover, there is a history of Frances Langford's singing activities dating from WWII, through Korea to Viet Nam, with references to her type of singing, plus help from Romano, Johnny Curzins and Patti Thomas.

Also included on the cover is a color photo of The Outrigger and the Marina, with the yacht Chanticleer, plus references to her husband, Ralph Evinrude and their residence "in Jensen Beach, Florida."

Ruth Penning, Evinrude's secretary, noted that he should particularly enjoy the recording, since in one selection, "Up The Lazy River," Fran plugs a well-known outboard motor.

Over One-Half Million

School Board Reveals Budget

A budget of over a half-million dollars for capital outlay was revealed at a Martin County school board work session last Thursday night.

F. M. (Marty) Boatright, school finance officer, told members of the board the total 1967-68 capital outlay budget for new construction, improvements and some types of equipment, totaled $557,528.95.

Because of a cash carry-over of $218,126 from last year's budget, plus an estimated $87,354 in state funds for capital outlay, funds raised by local ad valorem taxation should be about $290,000, or only $988 more than was raised in the 1966-67 budget, said Boatright.

Last year's comparable budget totaled about $450,000 with only $257,856.99 spent, Boatright said.

Of the $557,528, Boatright listed $72,000 for site improvement or purchase; $336,840.00 for new buildings; $34,000 for remodeling; $117,100.40 for new equipment; $4,000 for replacement of equipment; $6,200 for library books and $6,387.26 for audio-visual materials.

The total is $299,671.70 over that which was spent last year, $257,856.99.

The $336,840 for new buildings would include $131,968 for work now under contract, including four classrooms at Martin County High School, two at Port Salerno, two at Hobe Sound and four at Warfield.

Estimated costs of new construction and the projects included $60,000 for two classrooms and a library-administration suite at Port Salerno; $76,000 for four additional classrooms at Murray; $26,368.97 for four portables to be used in the fall at MCHS; $28,000 for an addition to the transportation garage; and $12,500 for a portable band building at Stuart Junior High.

Site improvement, totaling $72,000 would include $42,000 allowed for the new Jensen Beach site and $30,000 for miscellaneous county-wide site improvements, to include parking areas at MCHS, SJHS; $3,000 for football field needs; $2,000 for covered walks at East Stuart Elementary and MCHS; $5,000 for concrete work at several sites; $4,000 for fencing; $2,000 for signs; $5,000 for SJHS paving.

Remodeling would take $80,000 for the Instructional Center; $8,000 for rest rooms in various schools.

The present school office in the courthouse would be moved to the front wing of the junior high, where $6,000 would be spent to convert three classrooms into offices.

A $12,500 portable band building would replace the old log cabin at SJHS. The cabin would be used for an all-purpose play area.

An item called "principals' request" was included at a total of $14,835. Superintendent of Schools James Navitsky said initial requests totaled $31,838.28 for chairs, tables, shop equipment, science equipment, athletic equipment, typewriters and other machines.

Four new buses were budgeted at $26,000; shop, arts and crafts equipment was $8,500; lockers at MCHS, $2,000; an electronics analyzer for the bus garage, $2,000; trucks, $3,000; heaters, $1,600 (for 20 classrooms uses); furnishings for 22 new classrooms, $24,000.

Navitsky called that portion of the budget "tentative, but as far as we can project without figures from the state."

State figures are due in the county by June 15, by law, but not even estimates had arrived as of July 13, according to Boatright.

The budget will be given approval for advertising on July 19, and a hearing will be held July 31, the only meeting available for public protest.

HAPPY 96th!- Mrs. Sophia Rach celebrated her 96th birthday July 6th at her home in White City. Attending the birthday party were her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rachoj; her daughter, Mrs. Esther Frank; granddaughter, Mrs. Allen Schommer, Jensen Beach, and Mrs. Fred Radebach, Jr. Another daughter, Mrs. Fred O. Radebach, was unable to attend as she and her husband were vacationing in Michigan.

Scout Leaders Are Oriented

An informal orientation meeting of all Martin Neighborhood Girl Scout committee members and leaders was held July 12 in Fellowship Hall of Jensen Beach Community Church.

Arrangements were made to have a representative from the Palm Glades Girl Scout Council in West Palm Beach, set up a series of training courses needed for scout leadership. Plans were also made to have a district worker from the Council visit the neighborhood regularly to assist in all phases of scout organization.

Localites attending the meeting were Mesdames Mary Parrella, Martin Neighborhood chairman; Jo-Anne Martz, assistant to Jensen Troop 231 this year; Mary Lou Keyes, Stuart Troop 54 leader; Marge Sylvester, Stuart assistant; Delores Nethers, Stuart Troop 35 leader; Jackie Hall, Jensen Cadet Troop 231 leader; and LaVaughn Tilton, Jensen Junior Troop 231 leader.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Hall, Cadet Troop 231 of Jensen is holding regular meetings Monday evenings at Jensen Beach Community church. Twelve girls attended a swim party Monday, July 10, at The Anchorage.

This group also goes to Skateland every Friday from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Chamber Honors Rosaleen Murray

Mrs. Rosaleen Murray was presented a silver bowl in which was inscribed "in appreciation of 15 years of unselfish dedication to the Stuart Chamber of Commerce". In surprise ceremonies at the Thursday meeting.

Mrs. Murray was engaged by the old Martin County Chamber of Commerce for three weeks temporary duty to replace a girl who was "out having ulcers," not necessarily a hazard to the trade, she said.

Hired to "stand by and answer the phone," at the old frame building headquarters on West First St., she soon found herself a full time staffee in the most successful of the Stuart-Martin County advertising campaigns of the fifties.

She remained on the staff and in 1953, was named manager of the Stuart Chamber, new at the time.

Zenger Home From Marines

Todd Zenger, son of Mrs. Emma Zenger, South St., Jensen Beach, is a civilian again after serving four years with the U.S. Marines.

Zenger and his wife are visiting his mother for about two weeks prior to settling in Glen Falls, N.Y., where he will be employed by a power company.

Eight months of his service duty were spent in Viet Nam, Zenger told The Mirror, followed by assignment to Quantico, Va.

Zenger is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Gay and the nephew of Mrs. Charles Gay of Jensen.

GOLF LESSON
Review Of The Fundamentals

To review is to repeat, but so many times one picks up a golf article to read and gets an impression of only one part of a golf swing.

The swing as a whole is worth more than any of its parts, and a full swing back and to the finish is the whole thing.

A short backswing is an abbreviated swing. Something has been left out, so you have a built-in error, which you are always trying to catch up. This reflects in a hurried, off-balance swing which usually results in making one look up too soon.

I've talked about the parts, the positions, the movements and the balances. A golf swing has a sequence of an order, like ABC.

The next lesson will be about the order of movement, which reflects the whole swing.

The fundamentals, as I have set them out in previous lessons, are:

1. Footwork and head position.

2. Two parts of a swing, back swing and down swing.

3. Four positions, starting, back swing, hitting and finish.

4. The balance, posture and side to side.

5. The part the head and feet play.

6. The part the hips, shoulders, arms and hands play, and the order in which they come.

You can see that the fundamentals are few, and the errors are many. Apply our fundamentals and you eliminate many errors.

The swing as a whole is a full swing. We break it down into parts to teach and learn it. Review the lessons as I have written them and you will get the sequence. Practice swing daily for five minutes, swinging back full and through full, and you will develop a good swing.

Fishing Excellent

Snook continue to be hot in both forks of the St. Lucie River, downstream, and in the Inlet and beach areas. Chasing bunker and mullet.

Tarpon in same areas as snook, best bets appear to be white feathers or artificial eels.

Many sails sighted offshore, and takers and releases are running a high average per boat. Plenty of false albacore, small dolphin plentiful. *Cuda hot on reef areas and at Hobe Sound wreck buoy.

Amazing reports of pompano in surf, plus many taken in Indian River. Blues and whiting in the surf, as well.

Fishing excellent in all areas, including bridge and bottom.

South Florida Cyclists Race At Palm City

Cyclists from all over South Florida raced at the home track of the Sailfish City Cycle Club in Palm City, Sunday finishing the last race minutes before a series of thunderstorms hit.

Feature event, the open, for big cycles, was won by Walt Sanderson, Miami, over Leonard Robbins, Okeechobee, in a photo-finish.

Mario Rastrelli, who had been leader in the open class, lost out when he blew a motor and failed to make a second one run. The track runs through part of his land.

Fifteen members of the Martin County Ladies' Golf Association entertained 38 members of the North Palm Beach Golf Club Tuesday.

The group played for low net. Local winners were: Class A, Vera Jackson; B, Margie Bergen; C, Flora Stafford.

In other races, results are as follows:

100-cc; Dean Dyess, Belle Glade, 1st; John Lee, Miami, 2nd; Bud Cresse, Fort Lauderdale, 3rd.

175-cc; Joe Winston, Miami; Gabe Manfredi, Fort Pierce; Don Chason, Stuart.

250-cc; Ron Byrd, Palm Beach; Carl Mueller, Miami.

Winston and Byrd also lead in points in their classes.

Cove Road Right-Way Forthcoming

Col. H. W. Gee has been asked to get his client, St. Lucie-Jupiter Co., of Chicago, to give the last 1,972 feet of right-of-way needed to complete the route of Cove Road from U.S. 1 to the Intracoastal Waterway, according to County Commission Chairman Jack Saunderson.

The road, about one and a-half miles from U.S. 1 to the Great Pocket shore, in a straight line, may someday provide access to northern Jupiter Island.

Pencilled in on State Road Department right-of-way projects maps, is a bridge across the waterway 1,800 feet wide at that point.

"The county has been able to acquire the rest of the right-of-way, but we have been delayed with the St. Lucie-Jupiter portion," said Saunderson.

The company owns most of the Jupiter Island lands to which the bridge would go, the same land which the state is seeking for use as a state park, and the same lands which the county commission, on July 5 acting as the County Equalization Board, jumped in assessed value from $125,000 to $750,000.

The St. Lucie-Jupiter Co. stretch needed is that which borders the road at the old citrus grove and packing plant near its U.S. 1 intersection.

A short distance of Cove Road is paved, although it must be widened about ten feet to meet state specifications, Saunderson pointed out.

The right-of-way being acquired is 120-feet wide.

Demo Women Hold Seminar

The Martin County Democratic Women's Club, Port St. Lucie Club and St. Lucie County Democratic Women's Club held a "Dutch Treat" luncheon Friday, July 14, at St. Lucie Country Club.

Those attending from the area included Mesdames Frank Wacha, Frank DeStefano, Bryan Featherstone, Otto Kubin, E. J. Otto Kubin, E. J. Moran, H. W. Newsome, Ed Dassori, Guy Cromwell, and president of Martin County Club Mrs. C. R. Vanderveer; Fort St. Lucie president Mrs. Herman Peterson; and Mrs. Philip Nourse, head of the Democratic Women's Club of St. Lucie County.

Inlet Meeting

A meeting had been arranged at Gainesville for 10 A.M., said County Commissioner Frank A. Wacha. A conference will be held, Thursday, by county and Federal people to discuss the St. Lucie Inlet study made at the Coastal Engineering Department of the University of Florida.

Expected to attend the meeting are Dr. R.G. Dean, Chairman of the department.

Expected to attend the meeting are Dr. R.G. Dean, chairman of the department; Co van de Kreek, project head; A.J. Salem, coastal engineering specialist with the U.S. Corps of Engineers, and Wacha.

"There will also be a representative of the Corps of Engineers, and Wacha.

"There will also be a representative of the Corps charged with the responsibility of re-evaluating the St. Lucie Inlet study," said Wacha.

Rescued From Craft

An Orlando couple was brought into Sandspirit Park, Fort Salerno, late Saturday after its boat was plucked from atop the St. Lucie Inlet jetty, where it had been deposited by a large wave.

The boat, a 17-foot seabreeze named Gypsy II, was operated by Richard Berry and his wife, Marion, according to Deputy Sheriff Slater Grose.

The anchor line parted while the couple was fishing south of the jetty, and the boat drifted when Berry failed to start the outboard engine, piling up on the jetty.

Grose credited Ronnie Nelson, in an outboard, and Pete Cecilio, in a single-screw inboard, with rescuing the stricken couple.

The Gypsy II overturned during rescue operations but was righted before being towed in by the Sheriff's department boat. There were no injuries.

Visit Kin

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Diffendal, 210 South St., Jensen Beach, returned from a week in Miami where they were three-day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowes of Wilmette, Ill., at Key Biscayne Hotel. Mrs. Bowes is a niece of Mrs. Diffendal.

Diffendal said he enjoyed two days of charter boat fishing during the trip.

There are a lot of good cars you can get for $3400. This is two of them.

If you don't happen to need two cars, there's only one thing that you need less. One car that costs as much as two cars.

Unless you want to pay a lot of money for a lot of horsepower that you'll never use. There's only one state in the country where you can go faster than a Volkswagen —Nevada. (No speed limit—they're big gamblers out there.)

The only extra horsepower you really need is for all those power gadgets. Which you need to drive a car that size. Which has to be that size to hold all those horses.

All of which also makes the average car cost almost as much to run as two Volkswagens. Considering a VW gets about 27 miles to a gallon of gas and about 40,000 miles to a set of tires.

But if you're still not sold on the idea of two bugs for the price of one beast, why not take advantage of this special introductory offer: one Volkswagen for half the price of two.

Inlet Plan Is Produced

A safe inlet plan for St. Lucie Inlet has been developed by the Coastal Engineering Department of the University of Florida. It will use many features available on the site, including use of some of the rocks in the present jetty and a reef as the foundation for a proposed new jetty.

County Commissioner Frank A. Wacha, who with County Engineer Fred L. Ball met with Dr. W. E. Dean, director of the department; Co Van derKreek and Joseph Koski, who represented the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Jacksonville District, at Gainesville Friday, said the county-sponsored study at the department model had produced one plan that seemed to do everything asked.

U.S. Corps of Engineers model study experts from several parts of the United States will view the model and the new plan Thursday, Wacha said.

The three objectives of a new plan appeared to have been met, he said. They were: to provide proper navigation channel from the Okeechobee and Inland Waterways through the inlet; to provide a safe inlet for water traffic, and to provide for beach erosion control south of the inlet.

The new suggestions, according to Wacha, appeared to be a less expensive combination of previously tested U.S. Corps and University plans.

Chief features, he said, included a 500-foot long heavily constructed jetty which would run approximately north-south along the reef from a point just inside the present jetty.

Several ideas of south jetty were eliminated.

Wacha said that the model demonstrated that the 1,200-foot and 2,400-foot south side jetties proved to be more damaging tha. good, as did the moles suggested in some studies.

An impoundment basin would be dug inside the north-south jetty, south of the present jetty. No permanent transfer plant would be built. Annual maintenance dredging would be done in October when the drift makes a change to the south, thus providing sand for erosion control along Jupiter Island.

By eliminating the south jetty plan, at least $1,010,000 was cut from the estimated top cost of the project, Wacha said, however the university had made no cost estimates for its project suggestion, he added.

The inlet channel, 10-feet deep, would be widened to 200 feet, twice its width inside, and double to 400 feet in the outer reaches.

Some of the granite from the westerly end of the present jetty would be moved to new positions in the new jetty, under the plan. The University suggested that the rock blasted out of the impoundment basin area could be used in the core of the new jetty.

"On the face of it," Wacha said last weekend, "the suggestions by the Coastal Engineering lab men could result in a cost about half of the earlier estimates."

PRINCESS--Kayleen Penick, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Q. Penick, Jensen Beach, was awarded the two top honors at the recent Sunshine State Majorette Contest held in Tavares, Fla. Kayleen was crowned "Sunshine State Princess of 1967" and was named Junior Grand Champion of 1967.

Coin Toss Was Worth $300,000

The First National Bank of Stuart won the right to provide the City of Stuart with $300,000 for 120 days at four per cent, on the flip of a dime supplied and tossed into the air by a newspaperman at the City Commission meeting Monday night.

The Bank of Stuart, and First National, both on sealed bids, offered the money on an anticipation note to provide the city with ready cash in funding its share of the upcoming $365,000 sewer and water main projects.

In other business, the city's 1967-68 assessment roll was accepted unchanged from its initial figure of $32,589,820 gross, or $28,194,350 net for operations.

SET public hearing for Aug. 19 on change in zoning in area on riverside of Flagler Ave., from the city hall property to the Stuart Youth Center. The move was recommended by the zoning board.

APPOINTED, subject to his acceptance, Toley Engebretsen, Jr., Stuart, to the city advisory planning board. Accepted, subject to the planning board's decision, the appointment of a representative of that board to the Board of Appeals as provided by statute.

Two Year Fight

Salerno Shores Zoning Changed

More than an hour of the two and a half hour meeting of the Martin County Commission on Tuesday was devoted to overturning a long-standing policy decision of the County Zoning and Planning Board.

Unanimously adopted by the commission was a zoning change in Salerno Shores, bordering the water in Manatee Pocket, which will permit construction of hotels, motels, multiple-dwellings and other types of construction which will permit a swing from the present residential zoning which has almost as many non-conforming uses as permitted uses in the area.

Mrs. Marjorie Homiar, whose applications for a change have been heard several times over a period of nearly two years, was represented by William Crary, attorney.

Opponents included Albert Weber, Andrew Padovs and William Vohden. Proponents included Buck Hendry, Toley Engebretsen, Jr., Eugene Black, and others.

County Commissioner Tiner Powers, at one time, suggested a compromise to permit the construction of duplex houses in part of the area, but this was dropped in the fight to obtain the change for the entire area.

No further action will be taken, presumable, unless it is through the courts.

In other moves, the board permitted the closing of all alleys in Block 9, Cleveland 2nd addition, Palm City, when attorney Thomas Thurlow, Jr., pointed out that one person owned the entire block and that there were no other public reservations.

A small area near the intersection of SR 707, Sewall's Point Road and Bailey Road, Jensen Beach, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Fifield, was changed, as recommended by the zoning board several months ago, from C-1 business to R-3-A residential zoning to permit construction of efficiency apartments. A $25 deposit fee for an appeal before the Board of Adjustment was refunded; the board refused to hear the case in the absence of the Fifields, in California.

A strip of land about 14 by 20 feet on Hutchinson Island, held in title by the county in error under a move that was to have made it a right-of-way, was voted on request by attorney Evans Crary, Jr., appearing for Mr. and Mrs. James Brock.

Crary said the right-of-way would continue as needed, but that the 1964 document error correction would remove a cloud on the title.

In other board action, six zoning changes adopted by the zoning board at last Thursday's meeting, will be advertised for public hearings Aug. 22.

Also advertised for Aug. 22 action will be annual bids on road department materials.

Bids will also be opened Aug. 22 for another fogging machine, after County Engineer Fred Bell asked for and got permission to advertise for one.

SRD Agrees To P.C. Fish Walks

The State Road Department has agreed to a petition presented by the county commission which asked for fish walks and lights on the Palm City Bridge, still on the drawing boards.

John F. Saunderson, County Commission Chairman, was notified of the approval by Clarence E. Davidson, district engineer at District 4, Fort Lauderdale.

"The SRD will include the requested lighting, providing Martin County will assume the maintenance and the operation of the lighting system, which would include payment of the electric service," Davidson wrote.

Agreement to include the fishing walks had been reached earlier.

Davidson said a contract would be prepared if the county agreed to pay for maintenance of the lighting.

Tooker Talks With FEC Reps

County attorney Dean Tooker conferred with a representative of the Florida East Coast Railway on Tuesday on possible locations of grade crossing guards in Martin County.

The county won the right in a legislative bill to designate where such guards should be placed, and the right to force the railroad to pay half the cost.

Tooker said the road had indicated a willingness to finance such installations at no interest charge.

Wiedow Is Head

VFW Post 10066 Installs Thursday

Russell K. Wiedow will be installed as commander of a new post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars this Thursday night at Branford's Bar on Commercial Street, Jensen Beach. The VFW Post 10066 will come interesting when the charter is presented to the 27 charter members by state and district officers.

The initial membership since the post began functioning a month ago has grown to 45 members, according to Wiedow, He said that many more members will be added following the organization, and added that the post's regular meetings will be held at Branford's for "the time being".

Officers of the post will include Wiedow; Stanley Fulford, senior vice-commander; Roderique Lewis, junior vice-commander; Joseph Srec, quartermaster; Sam Schreckengost, Jr., judge advocate; Clifton Bowends, chaplain; Charles Zarnits, surgeon. Trustees are Frederick Fulford, three years; Robert Tallett, two years, and Charles Cashlopp, one year.

The post will be in a district that reaches from Boca Raton to Vero Beach, and west to Clewiston. Here representing the district will be Ed Hallam, district commander; Dick Mulligan, past district commander; Carl Jacobson, district senior vice-commander, and Pat O'Grady, district chaplain.

'Williams Scholarship' Is Established Here

Announcement of the establishment of the "Dr. W. Ira Williams Library Scholarship Fund" to encourage students in library science, was made at the June 27 luncheon in honor of Dr. Williams.

Funds contributed so far have been turned over to the Martin County Library Association for administration and safekeeping.

Contributions to the Library Association are tax deductible and will be acknowledged. Checks may be made payable to the Scholarship Fund and mailed to the Martin County Public Library, Stuart.

Four Portables

Busy Body Buys-Bids

Martin County School Board moved into high gear Tuesday buying and bidding on a wide variety of vital materials.

Four 24 x 32-foot portable classrooms were purchased from low bidders for Martin County High School. Low bid of $24,587 was submitted by Aluminum Construction Co. of Orlando. Also purchased were two ovens for Stuart Junior High and two water heaters for J. D. Parker Elementary.

A 1965 Ford Falcon was purchased from Naylor Motors for $1,096.91, for use by the maintenance department, thereby releasing a truck for other work.

Bids were asked for fencing at Murray, Port Salerno, the newly-designated Ninth Grade School. Supt. of Schools James Navitsky will notify potential suppliers of pupil insurance that purchases would be made in the fall.

Jack Smouse, assistant Supt. of Schools, was authorized to negotiate remodeling of the snack bar at the high school, with an allowance of up to $2,000 for work to be done by both outside bidding and the maintenance department. Attempt will be made to increase storage space and improve flow of traffic.

Recommendations were made by Smouse to improve the mower situation. He suggested remodeling three tractors and the purchase of mowing equipment to provide one machine for Indiantown, one for MCHS and one for the eastern part of the county.

The board reiterated its stand taken on the Jensen Beach School. It is not to be sold at this time in order to determine ways and means of financing a new Jensen Beach School before selling the old one.

Arsenal Stolen

The theft of a 21-gun arsenal, including 4,000 rounds of ammunition, knives and bayonetes, was uncovered at the new home of Robert H. Coy, 1002 Pinewood Ave., Stuart.

The theft occurred sometime during recent weeks, according to city police.

Coy, business manager of Daggeller Brothers Shows, which winter here, has been on a mid-west tour with the show, and the house has been closed since he left.

An inventory was taken when Coy flew in from St. Louis, Mo., Thursday. Included were calibres from .22 to .45's, rifles, pistols, shotguns, military and others. Some were museum pieces, Coy said, but most were useable.

Yachtsmen Honored John And Edna Wolf

Mr. and Mrs. John Wolf were guests of honor at The Anchorage Yacht Club last Saturday night in an "Honor Night", recognizing the twelve years that the Wolfs owned and operated the yacht club facility and marina. They sold the property to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Norkin last week.

In ceremonies planned by Yacht Club members, the Wolfs were presented with an autograph book signed by the members of the club, and a silver bowl, inscribed with the sentiments of the club.

The book was presented by Commodore Bobbie Robinson. The silver bowl was presented on behalf of the club by new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Norkin.

Mrs. Wolf was visibly moved to tears by the display of affection of the club members, and said, "These many years have meant so much to me, you can't know how I feel, leaving now." Robinson said, "We have a lot of happy memories, and we want you (the Wolfs) to know that our hearts are with you."

Ralph Norkin mentioned that Mrs. Wolf would be staying on for several months to assist in the transfer of details in the club operation, adding, "I hope that we can do as well as they have for you, the members of the club."

John Wolf asked that all members show the Norkins "the same support you have given us."

Mirror publisher Dick Campbell was master of ceremonies for the presentation, and pointed to the many years of growth of the club, culminating in a new restaurant and lounge, more beautiful grounds and "the finest facility we have ever had for our club." He added that he was sure that the Norkins would continue in the "fine tradition of service that was epitomized in John and Edna Wolf."

CG Flotilla 59 Celebrates 25th

Stuart's Flotilla 59, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, observed its 25th anniversary at a special meeting last week. The Flotilla was founded in April, 1942, to assist coastal defense and patrol operations early in WW II.

Seventeen-year veteran Andrew Padova was awarded permanent member status. He is a former Flotilla commander.

The presentation of a 20-year membership certificate to Vincent Brennan was delayed as he was out of town.

Jack Cottrell, secretary and assistant training officer, reported that he and Bruce Teal, Miguel Francis and Carl Sorenson took about 25 scouts on a cruise to Peck's Lake for a day of boating instruction, swimming, exploring and lunch.

School Board OK's Attorney's Contract

James Littman, attorney for the school board, whose contract was delayed at the last meeting of the Martin County Board, submitted detailed figures for his services in a contract approved by a 3-1 vote Thursday.

Mrs. Barbara Britton opposed it.

Under terms of the new contract, Littman agreed to a retainer of $150 a month, for which he would attend one regular and either one work session or one special meeting a month, reviewing contracts as asked.

He will charge $35 for each additional special meeting and all out-of-town meetings will be $100 per day. If overnight trips are made, food and lodging must be added.

Rates for appearing in court will be $150 for half a day, $200 for a full one, and if the case goes to an appeals court, $500 must be added. Another $250 must be added if the case goes to the State Supreme Court.

Littman's fees on sales of real estate will produce one-half of one per cent on the first $100,000, and one-quarter of one per cent above $100,000.

Fees not specified were listed in the copy of the recommended schedule of fees of the Martin County Bar Association, including $25 per hour in consultations.

School board members receive $1,800 annually, plus certain travel allowances.

Jupiter Landholders Will Fight Valuation Increase

Interests on North Jupiter Island will fight the increased valuation put on their lands by the County Commission, acting as the Board of Equilization, it was learned Friday. Attorney William R. Scott so answered Ben Herr Palm Beach County engineer, and an unidentified law firm in West Palm Beach.

St. Lucie-Jupiter Co., of Chicago, owner of the major portion of the area increased, has been notified legally that its assessment on three parcels valued at $45,000, $22,000 and $58,400 respectively for plots of 90, 44 and 146 acres totaling $125,400, and 280 acres, have been increased to $750,000 by the Equilization Board.

At the same time, Charles H. Bradshaw, trustee, Fort Lauderdale, with land listed at $31,300 and $25,200 respectively, and in lots of 52.6 acres and 46.6 acres, totaling $56,500 and 109.4 acres, was notified the new assessment would be $393,035.56.

Also, William H. Melvin, Palm Beach, with plots of 137 acres and 20 acres on the new rolls for $46,000 and $6,000 for the 157 acres, and a total of $52,100 was increased to $420,535.49.

The three properties, totaling 746.4 initially assessed at $234,400 have been increased to a new directed value of $1,463,270.

The increases were voted by the Equalization Board at its first meeting following completion of the 1967-68 tax rolls by Tax Assessor A. Clyde Courson on July 3.

Frank A. Wacha, county commissioner, said he felt that any land for which the owners were seeking some $1,300,000 in return from the State of Florida, should be assessed at closer to its bargaining value if full value assessing is a fact of life. The State is seeking, through the Outdoor Recreation Advisory Council, to obtain the land, either through swap or purchase, for a state park.

Courson, who said at that time he doubted the legality of the move, said Friday he had checked his position with the state attorney general's office and obtained an affirmative opinion that he should not enter into the fight if one develops.

An unconfirmed report by a St. Lucie-Jupiter Co. spokesman indicated the company and the state had been nearing a bargain.

The addition of $1,229,170 to the tax rolls would increase the value of an operating mill from $195,204 to $196,433, and have a substantial effect on the levy in mills by both the school board and county commission.

Scott's office said he was out of town but would return in ample time to represent his clients at the August session of the equilization board.

All three owners have been notified of the meeting set for 9:30 a.m. at the county commission meeting room on August 7, where they may appear to comment. This meeting will also be a public hearing at which any taxpayer may appear to protest assessments.

Second Escapee Caught By Prison Camp Chief

As he walked in the deep brush on the east bank of the South Fork of the St. Lucie River, Capt. J. L. Albritton, chief of the Fort Pierce Prison Camp, swung a machette. The blade almost hit Sheriff Ronald Pringle, 21, of Newport, N.C., as he hid under some brush.

Pringle, who had been working with a road gang along the sides of SR-76 south of Cabana Point, jumped into the bushes at 10:40 a.m. when no one was looking.

Within minutes he was reported as the second escapee from a road gang working in Martin County in recent days.

On Wednesday, five hours of tracking found Vesker Royal, 25, Vero Beach, who had tried to escape.

Sheriff Roy C. Baker, Deputies James Holt, Tom Wyatt, Morgan Sprott and Slater Grove joined Capt. Albritton in the latest search. Holt and Grove, after taking part in the foot search, patrolled the river in the sheriff's boat and were within a few yards of the escapee when Albritton's machette flushed him.

Authorities said Pringle, who gave no reason for trying to escape, was serving a term for entering without breaking, committing a felony. He was on his way to Martin County jail at 3:05 p.m.

Thief Ransacks Car On Island

John C. Franklin, Lakeland, lost $50, two watches and eight credit cards to a thief who broke a wing window in his station wagon on Hutchinson Island over the weekend.

Franklin reported loss of a Waltham man's watch, valued at $50; a woman's Benrus watch, $90; $22 in cash and credit cards for American Express, Carte Blanc, Sunoco, Pure Oil, Enco and Texaco, all in his name, plus extra cards in the name of his employer.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Heisley is investigating.

Stuart PO Expands Delivery

Starting last Monday, parcel post deliveries in Stuart were expanded from five to six days a week, according to Postmaster Robert West.

Parcel post, curtailed last week, has been resumed.

This is in line with a recent directive from Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien following the signing of the Post Office Department appropriation bill by President L. B. Johnson. The appropriation contained an $8.5 million item for restoration of the six-day week delivery system which had been cut back in a May, 1964, economy measure.

Postal customers served by "motorized" carriers have been receiving six-day service, West said. Customers living on routes served by foot carriers received truck delivery service five days a week.

We Get Letters. .

Mrs. Peterkin received a letter from Mrs. Harriet Miller a long time resident of Ocean Breeze, who has been living with her daughter and son-in-law in Port Washington, N.Y., since leaving here. Harriet writes she has just returned from Elmira, N.Y., where she visited her cousin Mrs. Fanny Stage, also a former Ocean Breezer. Both Harriet and Fanny are well, and says they had no spring this year, but the summer is beautiful with abundant rain, making the grass and flowers unusually nice.

A letter from the Don Houchins dated the 11th of July reads in part as follows:- Dear Nellie and Tom, - We are so glad to have the Mirror each week. It keeps us in touch with the Park activities, and we enjoy reading the letters from others.

Enjoyed Clyde's story of "Nite - Life in Ocean Breeze," Sure hope Harry's aquisition of the school will come to pass, and we will have time for at least one season's Art Class to show what can be done in a real classroom.

Glad to hear Pingo can be resumed as so many enjoyed it.

Dick Samppell is to be congratulated on his awards to the Mirror and I'm sure your own efforts and fine pictures contributed to the result.

Kind regards to all the Fars and looking forward to another happy season in the Fall.

Sincerely,

Agnes and Don Houchin.

Nellie Cook Tells Of Tom's Takeoff

Well Mrs. Mary Adrean and I finally got your reporter Tom away Friday, July 14 but not without quite a struggle. He was due to fly out of Miami at 4:45 P.M., and all passengers were asked to board at 4:15 but they were only aboard a very few minutes when they all were asked to vacate the plane while some necessary repairs were done. Many and I were on the observation platform patiently waiting to see the take off, but not where we could see the passengers disembark, so we stood and wondered, and perspired (it was a hot afternoon) and finally Mary could not stand the suspence any longer and went to the desk to enquire what the trouble was, well she was told, "whatever it was is corrected now and they will be taking off in five minutes." so we waited and waited, and finally saw some we knew had boarded earlier were re-entering the airport. There was a sign "Only Passengers Beyond This Point," but our curiosity got the better of us, and we met Tom returning, who told us that when the steps had been hauled away from the rear door of the plane it had caught on the wing tip and broke a piece out and a welding crew had been called to repair the damage, after they were finished would take one and a half hours, Mary and I were started after all our efforts getting that big plane air borne, so the three of us went into the restaurant thinking we had plenty of time, but had just really started to eat when the call came for them to reboard, so with a quick kiss for each of us Tom took off as only Tom Cook can when he has to hurry, Mary and I finished dinner, and just came out in time to see the plane leave the ground, then went and did it disappear into the clouds at 7:30 P.M. by then we were too tired to return to Ocean Breeze and decided to get a room for the night, and maybe do a bit of shopping next day.

Next morning after breakfast we drove to the Lauderdale Mall and thoroughly enjoyed looking till we realized it was raining, but we had no idea what a terrific storm it really was till we saw all kinds of utensils being used to store windows to catch the drips which were turning into drizzles.

The rain kept up for two and three quarters, just like a tropical storm. Then with a siren howling a fire truck arrived and we realized the storm sewers were not able to take such torrents of water away, and it was flooding the main floor of the arcade. Soon we saw a group of colored boys trying to sweep the water into an open sewer, but until the fireman got the pumps going the boys were working for nothing. Finally the storm let up and we started for home, but as we stopped to take our ticket on the Sunshine Park Way the attendent told us there was a terrible storm to the south, and we were able to tell him first hand just how bad it was, when we reached the Palm City Exit one of the men we know well was at the gate, and he also told us about the storm, saying they had been alerted from all the stations along the Parkway south of West Palm Beach, so they could advise south bound traffic whether to continue or not.

I told Mary things always happen when Tom Travels, so now we are wondering what will happen when we try and get him down to earth again.

Guatemalan Holiday

Chapter 12

After our rather meagre supper we went for a walk. The market place was a short distance from our hotel and stalls were being erected for the market which at Chichi is always held on a Sunday. A young man approached us and speaking fairly good English he asked if we would like to engage him for a guide. We readily took him on. He was quite friendly and on being introduced us to his parents, Mom was cooking tortillas on the stove which also held a large cast iron kettle in which what looked like soup or stew was bubbling merrily. Dad was working in his blacksmith shop nearby. He warned us that some of the 'gentry' might get too much tequilla and get a bit noisy later, but not to be scared for their policeman would soon look them up.

The warmth of the bedroom fire soon took effect and we went off to sleep. In the middle of the night we heard a commotion on the street outside, some shouting, then dead silence, we presumed our 'cop' had gone into action for we heard no more and in next to no time it was morning. We hurriedly dressed, ate breakfast and went outside, for the market would be over by noon.

Filepe, our guide was waiting and took us to the market, which although early, was already in progress. The whole large square was full of stalls, each with a canvas roof to keep off the rain or sun. One can buy almost anything here from pigs and chickens to incense and coffins. Customers were already crowding the stalls bargaining with the sellers. Indians travel vast distances to attend this market. Filipe pointed out and named members of the various tribes he represented which was possible by knowing the costumes and fabrics used by the different tribes. A number of very young mothers with their baby strapped to their backs were among the crowd, Filipe made the remark that he didn't believe in marrying too young. We were surprised, as he had introduced us to his five year old son the night before and Filipe certainly wasn't old, quick as a flash my wife asked, "How old were you when you were married, Filipe?" we just had to laugh when he said "sixteen."

The most interesting feature as far as tourists are concerned is the dual religion practiced here, I still can't understand what it is all about so please don't blame me if I give the wrong interpretation. This is as I saw it. On one corner of the square stands a quite imposing Catholic Church. On the opposite corner is a pagan church as Filipe called it. A young couple were kneeling and a man was, according to Filipe, saying prayers for them. This man is paid according to the length of time he prays. We didn't thing much of this so we crossed to the Catholic church. A long flight of concrete steps led to the entrance and on these steps were several men dressed in a sort of black and red uniform. These, Filipe called witch doctors. They were swinging incense burners around filling the air with smoke. Worshipers on entering or leaving the church dropped coins in their safe-keeping.

Cathedral steps at Chichicastanango

The only conclusion I could come to which made sense was that these so called witch doctors were supposedly preventing evil spirits from entering the church with the worshipers, but that is just my guess.

As we entered the church, in spite of what we saw, we had a feeling of reverence. A long row of lighted candles occupied the centre of the bare floor in front of which many people were devoutly kneeling. There were no seats and the interior of the building was exceptionally bare of ornamentation. We climbed the winding narrow stairway to the belfry, from which vantage point we had a good view of the market and the steps below us.

We descended and our guide took us to the building immediately next to the church, quite a lot of very poor looking men, women and children were there and the priest was handing out medicines.

Leaving the market for a time we walked to the headmaster's place, a sort of manse was put on by his whole family in ingenious shapes for the fiesta, for this was Filipe pointed out certain trees and shrubs which he named. One rather decorative four foot high plant was the Chichicastia or nettle after which the town was named. Nango, of course, is Guatemalan for town.

'Save The Porpoises' Is South County Cry

South Martin County and Jupiter residents, alarmed at the disappearance of porpoises in the Loxahatchee River's three forks, filed a request for protection with Randolph Hodges, director of the State Department of Conservation Monday in Tallahassee.

The "message" was delivered by Philip (Bill) Lund, in Tallahassee for a meeting of the Governor's Conservation Advisory Council, to both the council and Hodges.

Residents of the area say the river once sported many porpoises above the Florida East Coast Railroad bridge, but the population has been falling steadily, particularly since the Seaquarium, the craft used by the Miami Seaquarium to seek out and obtain marine life for sale and display, visited the area last winter.

The Seaquarium remained anchored east of the railroad bridge but crews in small boats, similar to those used in the St. Lucie River "hunt", moved up river, according to residents.

The result was the loss of all but one of the river porpoises, Lund indicated. Prior to the Seaquarium's visit the river population was at least four or five.

Local children have named the lone porpoise "George-Anne". She will play by the hour in shallow water with the youngsters, although she is inclined to be shy when boats are near.

If Hodges agrees, Lund said, protection would cover speed-in-the-river hunts by anyone, including the Seaquarium.

Lund pointed out that manatees are protected. The Seaquarium also hunted them in the South Fork of the Loxahatchee River, Lund said. They sought five for Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, which used them to eat weeds in vegetation-choked canals.

"We used to have baby porpoises in the river," said Lund. "We wonder now how we are going to find a mate for George-Anne."

The porpoises hunted here last winter are at Canada's Expo '67.

County Commissioner J. W. Hussey complained to Gov. Claude R. Kirk by telegram Monday that SR 1769 which was passed Aug. 3, would cost Martin County a fortune if its provisions were carried out.

The law calls for county payment of life insurance of $10,000 for each fireman in the county. "Martin County has some 100 volunteers, some of them in their 60's and 70's," said Hussey.

Fishin's Better

Snook continue to hit everything but eels, even fish heads as they fish on the Jupiter Island beaches. Good snook fishing in both Forks of the St. Lucie River, Indian River, in the surf and in the beach area south of St. Lucie Inlet.

Spotted sea trout hot in Indian River...good fun plugging from drifting boats.

Tarpon still rolling in both river forks and downstream in the Bay Tree Lodge area.

Offshore, blues and Spanish mackerel good along the inner reefs, and to the Hole south of the Inlet. Running to good sizes.

Blues, small sizes, more apt to be inside than outside the reef.

Offshore, from the sea buoy out, you're apt to run into sails; cluttering the area six miles out. Dolphin good, too many false albacore, some cuda, some kings, bottor fishing on the outer reefs producing about everything.

In a word, fishing is excellent and getting better!

WELCOMES INDUSTRY- John Law and Evans Crary, Sr., chairman of the Martin County Resources and Development Board, hold the design for a new sign to appear on U.S. 1, inviting industry to look over Martin County.

Development Board Outlines Planning For Future Action

The steering committee of the Martin County Resources and Development Board, reorganizing the old Committee of 100, heard and adopted a report by a membership subcommittee last Friday in which a set of general objectives, including a plan of action and a proposed budget drew attention.

A $29,800 budget was outlined, including a $12,000 salary for a director. Evans Crary, Sr., chairman of the steering committee said the board had three local applicants for the position but no money with which to pay one as yet.

The sub-committee made the following recommendations:

The establishment of a central office with a director and secretary to collect, compile and disseminate information to create a climate for a proper promotion of industry in Martin County.

To pursue the development, promotion and designation of industrial parks in the county, including the mapping of such parks county-wide, posting signs at the sites and gathering data on them.

Industrial promotion would include an inventory of existing and adaptable industry, selective contact of prospective industry types complementing the inventoried list; maintaining close relationship with the Florida Development Commission, local contacts and promotion of potential industry prospects whose directors or principal officers reside in the county and appointing a committee to develop a planned advertising program.

"Membership of the advertising committee should be knowledgeable and professional," said the report.

The sub-committee also asked the updating of the Premack report on the county; the restoration of the annual dinner meeting with a top-flight speaker, periodic press releases, close liaison with county and city officials, limited local advertising periodically urging support of the board and liaison with local chambers of commerce, on a cooperative basis.

The overall committee discussed the possibility of gaining financial support from the county, mentioning one-eighth mill as a goal (it would raise about $24,000 in the 1967-68 budget) but decided not to ask for same in the upcoming budget, rather seeking private support in the fiscal year upcoming.

The sub-committee offered sign boards which would cost $42 for individuals to place on industrial-zoned vacant lands listing them as "Martin County Industrial Tract, Available For Development."

Executive control at the meeting was under J. Crispin Hill, vice-president of Brackenridge, Inc.

The steering committee agreed to refurbish a billboard used by the Committee of 100, and to pay the rent on it, it is located on US-1, south of Stuart. Cost was set at $350.

Members of the sub-committee which made the report included Fred L. Heil, John Law, William Burson and Richard Campbell.

School Board Levies 8.282 Mills

The Martin County School Board, at an official budget hearing Monday morning, officially levied a total of 8.282 mills to raise $1,535,410 in local ad valorem taxes without any public objection.

The total budget of $3,003,450, contained only a slight change from previously advertised totals according to finance officer Marty Boatright.

"The cash balance at the close of the fiscal year past was about $500 higher than anticipated in the budget," he said. He and Supt. of Schools James Navitsky said they believed the levy of 6.598 in general fund and 1.75 in District 1 would remain firm.

No one appeared for the public; it was the quietest budget hearing in many years. Only three members of the board were on hand for the hearing: Joe Greenlees, chairman; Mrs. Barbara Britton and Homer Wall. Members of the press were present.

In addition to setting the millage levy, the board adopted the teachers' salary schedule and other salaries for the new school year.

An across-the-board raise of $300 based on supplied state funds was approved for all teachers in the system, based on the index system adopted last year.

Scales for administrative personnel were also adopted. They range from: $12,500 to the superintendent to $12,000 for his assistant, to $11,440 for general supervisors down to $7,200 for the lunchroom supervisor.

Salaries of principals included $11,750 for Martin County High, $11,350 for Stuart Junior High, $10,800 for Murray Ninth, $10,600 for Warfield, $10,240 for J. D. Parker $9,600 for Port Salerno, Hobe Sound and Palm City; $9,300 for Jensen Beach, and $10,540 for East Stuart Elementary.

The director of adult education will receive $11,040 and director of special services, $10,540.

Coaching salaries were set from $1,000 for football coach at MCHS to $200 for golf and $3.00 an hour for intramural coaches. Other sports ranged between $300 and $700.

A new project priority list which must be submitted with the budget for State Board of Education approval, contained no changes.

Only two schools on the "planned" list, which will remain unchanged for the present, were two classrooms, a library and administrative office at Port Salerno, and four classrooms at Murray Ninth. Estimates were budgeted at $80,000 for the first, $76,000 for the latter.

All other projects on the list have either been completed or are now under construction.

The board adopted a set of lunchroom policies, presented by Mrs. Britton.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

In most parts of the country a mooching fisherman is a guy who helps himself to his partner's boat, bait and beer. In the northwest, everybody mooches--but only the fish.

Mooching is merely a way to sink a bait down to the bottom and keep it there. As a sophisticated technique, mooching is about as subtle as whopping a mule in the head with a club to get its attention, but it works.

As the waters get warmer, the wisdom of bottom fishing becomes more apparent, and it holds true in both streams and lakes where sinking lures chalk up the best records. Sometimes, however, the best bait in a fish's opinion won't drop to the fish's level--and that's where mooching comes in.

Mooching incorporates a three-way swivel at the end of the line. One leader is secured to a weight, the other to the bait.

The sinker most commonly used in running water is of the pencil or thick leadwire type--which can be easily freed from obstacles. It is tied with light leader material, the length determined by the depth to be fished.

Bait is attached to a longer leader and allowed to drift away from its "anchor" yet being held at the right depth.

Boat fishermen can adopt this technique with a form of "motor mooching," as it becomes more--a matter of drifting either a bait or an artificial plug with the wind, or trolling slowly so the weight bumps bottom.

A movie, "Search and Rescue Mission Co-ordinator" was shown to Civil Air Patrol Stuart Composite Squadron Seniors when they met last Tuesday for their weekly meeting at the CAP hangar.

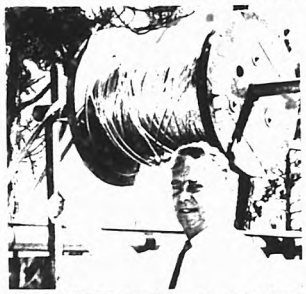
Visitors are invited to the meetings which start at 7:30 p.m. The Cadets meet at 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays.

Salerno Girls Top All Stars

Port Salerno girls' softball team, winners of the Martin County Girls' Softball League, defeated the All Stars 6-4 in the annual game held Thursday night at Sailfish Park, Stuart.

Winning pitcher was Donna Bowie, who pitched the entire game for Port Salerno, allowing 10 hits.

Trophies were presented to each of the players on the Port Salerno squad, by league president Walter Peterson. Coach Henry Crane also received a trophy.



GET THE PICTURE?--John Thomas, director of the Martin County Cable Television Co., points to the reel of aluminum sheathed TV cable that is being installed around the area. Some 50,000 feet of the cable has already been laid from the tower site in Port Salerno northward.

All Star Games

Champions in the Martin County Peanut and Little Leagues were just too good for the opposing All Stars teams last Friday night when they met at Sailfish Park, Stuart.

Rio defeated the Peanut League All Stars 5-2, with Jerry Bocchino winning pitcher.

Palm City, champs of the Little League, defeated the Little League All Stars 4-2 with Buddy Jones taking the win, striking out 12 batters.

Blank Pony Champs

The Flower Growers, the Martin County Pony League champions were shut out 4-0 last week by the Pony League All Stars team, with Danny Jones at the helm. Jones, member of the second-place Palm City team, threw a one-hitter and struck out 14 batters.

Brooks Heads Directorate

Brig. Gen. John A. Brooks, III, USAF, son of Col. and Mrs. J. A. Brooks, Riverside Dr., Stuart, has been named Executive Director of Technical and Logistics Services for the Defense Supply Agency, Alexandria Va.

The General is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, the Air War College and the National War College, entering commissioned service as a second lieutenant in June, 1941.

The Twin Rivers Saddle Club will hold a planning meeting Wednesday, Aug. 2, (today) at which the Oct. 21 open horse show will be discussed.

Junior Golf Winners

Winners in the weekly junior golf competition at Martin County Golf and Country Club last week were:

Boys, 13-17, Laine Rinker, 29 net; Bob Antos, 32 net; and David Thomas, 36 net.

Chips, Divots And Tips

by Matt Moore

There are four positions to a golf swing; the one you start in, the one you swing back to, the one you hit in and the one you finish in. Most important of the four is the hitting position, as here lies the knack of hitting a golf ball, and here you can correct errors made going back and starting down.

The timing of the swing also takes effect in the hitting position.

1. Starting position: The starting position is of great importance because it gives you an impression to hit back to and simulates the hitting position. The ball should be opposite your left heel, to establish your line of flight, and you should face this line to be square with the target. Your balance should be on your left leg, with your head behind the ball, your chin pointed down and behind the ball.

2. Back swing position: The back swing position is also of great importance, as here you are winding up for the delivery. The true way to wind up is to balance on the right hip, make a full hip turn, follow with a full shoulder turn, put the arms back and then break the wrists. At the top, the club should be horizontal to the ground or just below horizontal.

3. Hitting position: The hitting position is the most fundamental position of the four. All good players, regardless of style back and down, attain this position of success. In this category of the swing, you can correct for 90 per cent of your error. The big keys to this position are to have the right heel down and the right side rolled over before impact, the head up and back, with the chin pointed behind the ball. These keys hold you parallel to your line of flight and put the plane of your swing on the target.

4. Finish position: This position is a result, not a cause, and reflects the balance and movements as you operate in the other three positions. At the finish, your balance should be on your left leg, with the left side extended. The elbows should be pointed down, and here again, as in the back swing, the club should be horizontal to the ground, or just below. A good follow-through indicates a good swing, so always try to be good in this position.

In conclusion, the easiest position to execute is the finish, even though it depends on the other three. The hardest is the back swing position, for here you have to make the correct movements to execute it.

Most important is the hitting position, for here lies the knack of hitting the ball. The starting position is important, as it's an impression to hit back to.

Rest assured that if your head is up and back and your right heel down as you hit, you will do better for your swing and your scores.

Crews Begin Work Installing TV Cable

John Thomas, director of Martin County Cable Television Co., said Tuesday that construction crews had put about 10,000 feet of cable on poles, working from the tower site on Stake Road to U.S. 1 northward toward Stuart.

Crews were completing work Tuesday in the Hibiscus Park area, putting up a high-tensile steel messenger strand which will support the sensitive aluminum sheathed TV cable.

"It is anticipated that the tower will be erected and antennas and electronic equipment will be installed and adjusted one month from this time," Thomas said.

The first was activated by a radio opening, he said, to which the public will be invited Sept. 22 and 23. A demonstration will be given at that time, he said.

"We are so positive our equipment will be superior to any cable television in use, we are happy to offer a free trial period," said Thomas.

The company has been distributing brochures to 4,400 potential subscribers, offering a reduced installation price and a seven-day free trial period. See page 6 for full advertising information in The Mirror.)

The lines for the cable are being placed 40-inches below power lines as a safety measure by crews supplied by Burnup-Sims, contractors on line and pole projects. The lines are also being placed a foot above telephone lines, Thomas said.

Over One Million Added To Tax Roll

The Martin County Commission Tuesday morning adopted a tentative budget which showed a small tax levy increase, for a small dollar total raise, in general funds, and small increases in all of the special taxing districts except Port Salerno area, District D, which had a slight drop.

The levy as adopted did not include adjustments for the $1,229,600 added to the county assessment rolls as adopted Monday, but Budget Chairman Frank A. Wacha outlined the changes to the press following the regular meeting.

The adjusted figures call for an increase of .09 mill in general levies. The increase was expected to raise the $17,627,48 in a budget that totaled $2,017,763.47 of which $1,363,645.16 is to be raised locally.

As advertised, the budget will call for the following levies, locally raised funds and total from all sources, including fees, state grants and others:

Tax levies in the special districts were, in general, up slightly, but Port Salerno was the exception. It dropped .13 mill from last year's levy of 1.14. To be raised locally in that district is $22,864.83, the overall amount, $28,731.58.

The other districts are: District A, Jensen Beach-Rio area, up .06 mill, to be raised $42,589.02 locally and a total of $48,054.57; District B, Port Sewall area, up .11 to raise $3,165.37 locally, a total of $4,007.10; District C, Palm City, up .04 mill, $27,756.61 and $27,388.78; District E, Hobe Sound, up .09 mill, $18,870.99 and $18,427.44.

District F, Indiantown area, up .09 mill, to raise $19,391.45 locally, a total of $20,423.78, and no levy for District G, which had a $1,100 cash carryover sufficient for the new budget.

Salerno Town Site levy is for .41 mill to raise in that old district, $2,251.13 for a net of $2,367.74.

Wacha said decreases in receipts totaling $23,800 accounted for some of the increased levy, of which $15,000 was charged to the tax assessor's office for furniture and office machines, and $8,800 to loss of part of the seventh cent of gas tax from the state.

Increased expenditures included $9,000 for ambulance service, $19,800 for the county's share of the retirement and social security tax load shifted by the state to the county, $16,500 to insurance expense already noted in the past year; $3,575 increase in the county judge's budget including a $2,000 salary increase for the judge.

Also budget increases caused by set millages in two accounts, one the public library, $2,686; the other, Martin Memorial Hospital for $4,858; $31,500 for the county's share of the new mental health building, and $34,000 in the sheriff's budget.

The total increase was listed as $126,279 for a net increase of $150,079.

$2.5 Million Condominium Is Beginning Development Here

Tierra Verde, a $2.5 million condominium development located between State Road 76 and Palm City Road just outside the city limits of Stuart, began laying out its ten buildings and 160 apartment units this week.

A massive complex of buildings was revealed at a special press showing Monday afternoon in the recreation building on the site. As heavy construction equipment moved back and forth, county and city commissioners helped to turn the first spade of earth on the site of the first sixteen-unit building. Commissioner Bob Skinner turned the first shovel, followed by Arthur Peter, Mayor of Stuart.

Newsmen toured the site, where ribbons, stakes and flags outlined the locations of the buildings. Then the master plan of the condominium development was revealed on a special table in one of the recreation building offices.

George Apostolopoulos, developer, explained the development to the newsmen and special officials.

"We have here a very high quality condominium that will offer just about everything to the people who live in it. The apartments will be luxury, equal to the highest residence requirements in the country," Apostolopoulos said. "The prices will range from approximately $ xxxx for a one-bedroom, one-bath standard, to $16,000 for a two-bedroom, two-bath deluxe apartment."

The master plan showed the ten buildings laid out on angles designed to take advantage of the view to the west of the St. Lucie River, one block away. There are shuffleboard courts, located in garden areas in the back of the condominium, and one major shuffleboard court in the central recreation area.

Plans include a large auditorium, game rooms, swimming pool, bicycle and walking trails, four huts for cookouts and private individual get-togethers, and two nine-hole putting greens.

The site taken in over ten acres and is 6/10 of a mile from the shopping center on U.S. 1. It is 500' outside the city limits of Stuart and 2/10 mile from the new Palm City Bridge. It will be fully landscaped and managed by a corporation of the owners.

Of the 160 units, 40 will be deluxe two-bedroom, two-bath; 80 apartments will be two-bedroom, two-bath standard units; 20 will be one-bedroom, one-bath deluxe and the remaining 20 units will be standard one-bedroom, one-bath.

Monthly maintenance charges will include city water, city sewage, maintenance of all recreation facilities, landscaping, outdoor lighting, lawns, exterior building care, garbage collection and insurance.

"Local people are putting this program together," said Apostolopoulos, himself a local contractor. "We will use all local sub-contractors and suppliers. Our financing is through and with the cooperation of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County."

All apartments in the buildings will be soundproofed, and the air conditioning is specially designed for quietness. Economical to operate and yet individual control system.

There will be sixteen apartments in a building. Each will be large, offering what Apostolopoulos said, "is the open space of true Florida living." A typical two-bedroom, two-bath apartment will have 1008 square feet of living space, plus 224 square feet of screened porch, or 1232 square feet of living area. "This is comparable to the apartment zoning on Hutchinson Island where the requirements are the highest in the county," he said.

The living room is 12 feet eight inches by 24 feet long. The kitchens will be 8' 6" by 10'6". The master bedroom is 12' by 15', opening on the screened porch, as does the living room.

All rooms, with the exception of the kitchen and bath, will have wall-to-wall carpeting, even in the closets.

The kitchen will have Armstrong vinyl Corlon flooring, all formica counter tops and cabinet surfaces, a garbage disposal, drop-in range and oven, no-frost refrigerator-freezer, luminous ceiling, a ductless range hood, double sink, a pass-through window into the living-dining area and will be professionally decorated harmonized by Armstrong Cork Co.

One unique touch to the apartments will be a foyer entrance. Floor covering in this area is Spanish vinyl tile by Armstrong.

In keeping with the look of Florida openness, all phone and electric lines will be underground, and each apartment will be pre-wired for Cablevision, eliminating unsightly antennas and telephone poles.

Construction has already begun on the first building in the ten planned. Apostolopoulos said he planned to have a sales office in the recreation building opening today, and the first building completed in about ninety days.

House Of Refuge Provides Refuge

A pair of small craft sailors from Atlanta, Ga., were mighty happy to see the House of Refuge early Tuesday morning.

Hugo Greiner, 25, a medical student from Heidelburg University, Germany, and Turhan Arundo, 35, an electrical engineer from Turkey, built a 16-foot sailboat and took off Monday from Palm Beach Inlet to West End, Grand Bahama. Since 1 p.m. Monday they had been the object of a U.S. Coast Guard air search.

The men told The Mirror Tuesday afternoon that they ran into a severe storm which lasted only 20 minutes, long enough for them to lose their life jackets, compass and lights, everything except food and water. They admitted they were lost and said they had all they could do to handle the sails.

They figured they were about 35 miles offshore and turned west, as Arundo said, "because America is a pretty big place and we figured we couldn't miss all of it."

They sighted a tall tower, which turned out to be the Seminole Shores water tower, and followed the light, heading in toward what they thought was a Coast Guard Station.

It was the Martin County House of Refuge, aptly named for wandering sailors.

Credit for saving their boat was given to Jay Sexton, Ft. Pierce, who was working in the vicinity.

Greiner, who is now working at Emery University in Atlanta, told The Mirror, "It was fun but I think I aged 10 years during the 20-minute squall."

Arundo said, "It was a good experience and lots of fun. We will make changes aboard before making another trip."

The search was called off at 10:40 a.m. Tuesday when word reached the Coast Guard in Miami.

Wachas To Host Service Reunion

Former members of the 1081st Signal Company, veterans of the Army in World War Two, will meet in Jensen Beach this weekend. About 75 persons are expected for the reunion as 18 members of the group who served in the war in North Africa get together for their annual meeting.

County Commissioner and Mrs. Frank Wacha are hosts to the meeting. The people will come from eleven states to visit Florida for the reunion. A fish fry on Friday night and a buffet watch will kick off the activities of the group. Saturday the visitors will have lunch and dinner on the Causeway in a can) described by Mrs. Wacha as "just enjoying the outdoors."

The signal group was named in 1943, and left New York POE for the North African campaign. It was disbanded June 1, 1945 in Italy. Wacha was a corporal in the outfit and smilingly said, "I made corporal soon after I went in the service, and I never lost my stripes. I also left the service a corporal."

The unit was decorated for "superior performance of duty in the accomplishment of exceptionally difficult tasks in the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations....(in) ....1944."

School Board Adopts New Lunchroom Policies

"The basic purpose of the Martin County School Food Service Program, is to provide an applied nutritional experience and promote a maximum contribution to the health, welfare and education of all pupils," is the paragraph which opens a 27-page document adopted by the Martin County School Board last week.

The document on lunchroom policies is the end product of a five-month project which started last March with a strike at the J. D. Parker School lunchroom.

The strike had been precipitated by a Federal Wages and Hours law ruling which forced school lunchroom workers to pay for their meals.

At a school board work session, Mrs. Annie Laurie Pulley, food service supervisor, levied charges which have been investigated by the board, including a report of from 400 to 600 free meals being served each month to school employees other than lunchroom workers, and the distribution of school foodstuffs to private individuals and restaurants.

Inventory control was lax, she stated. At least one school's inventory was so far from reality it was believed to be a mythical compilation of what was on the shelves.

Working on the compilation of the new policy code were Joe Greenlees, school board chairman; Mrs. Barbara Britton, school board member; Mrs. Pulley, Felix Williams, principal at East Stuart Elementary; and Dale Clark, principal at Jensen Beach Elementary. Also Mrs. Dorothy Delich, teacher at J. D. Parker; Mrs. Doris Comstock, lunchroom manager at Hobe Sound Elementary; Mrs. Florence Clements, lunchroom manager at Warfield; and Mrs. Willena Elmore, home ec teacher, Stuart Junior High.

FEC Tells Troubles

Local officials were told this week that Florida East Coast Railway Co. was losing $1,100 a day on passenger operations, and an effort to drop the service was predicted.

P. L. Robie, assistant to the president of FEC, and N. L. Gray, director of personnel of the company visited this area Monday, complaining to officials about the railroad's woes with passenger trains.

The railroad operates one two-car train northward, and one southward each day to comply with governmental orders that it operate passenger service.

An early appeal to the Department of Public Utilities appeared to be contemplated, according to the commissioners who were interviewed.

Bank Of Stuart Pays Dividend

The Bank of Stuart decided this year to pay a semi-annual dividend of ten cents per share to stockholders of record as of July 25, payable on August 1.

Last year a dividend of twenty cents was paid at the end of the year.

July Permits Over $500,000

Building permits for the month of July in Martin County totaled $537,578, with a $206,000 apartment house permit near Snug Harbor as the largest single permit.

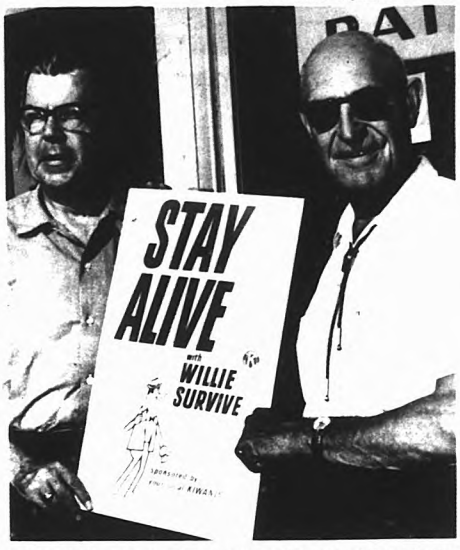
In Stuart, city building permits totaled $63,000.

South of the city limits, on SR 76, Chester Martin, owner of Martin Mobile Homes Trailer Park, is clearing recently rezoned land between the highway and the river.

Also on that section of SR 76, land has been cleared and the city is making connections to the sewer main, land on which an apartment complex is to be built by G-A Construction Co.

Constans Named FEA Secretary

The Florida Education Association (FEA) board of directors has unanimously elevated Dr. Phil Constans, Jr., to executive secretary of the 50,000-member teacher organization. He will replace Edward B. Henderson who is retiring after 19 years at the helm of Florida's largest professional organization.



SAFETY--The Stuart Kiwanis Club is conducting a safety program which started in May. Posters are being placed with local merchants who will display the bright red and white warnings of "Willie Survive". Shown above are Al Palmer of Palmer's Variety Store, and Charles French, both of Jensen Beach.

Kiplinger Dies At Maryland Home

W. M. Kiplinger, pioneer financial newsletter publisher and part-time resident of Sewall's Point, died Sunday, Aug. 6, of a heart attack at his home in Bethesda, Md. He was 76.

A journalist for over half a century, Kiplinger built an empire which now includes the Kiplinger Washington Letter, Changing Times magazine and a book publishing organization.

He developed and maintained a long-time interest in Martin and St. Lucie Counties and invested many of his profits in Florida real estate.

Kiplinger, well-known for his business interests as well as for his charities, owned a 20-acre estate on the St. Lucie River, Sewall's Point. In 1956 he donated a block of land in downtown Stuart for construction of the Martin County Library.

In the 1950's he became interested in Florida and devoted much space in his publications to the boom conditions in the state. He invested more than $1.5 million in local Florida land.

A native of Bellefontaine, Ohio, Kiplinger in 1912 became one of the first two graduates of the Ohio State University School of Journalism.

At that time "the idea of a college-trained journalist was preposterous and presumptuous," he once said, but he moved quickly up the ladder after working several years on the Ohio State Journal in Columbus.

He went to Washington as a legislative reporter for the Associated Press in 1916, and left the wire service to become a capital correspondent for the National Bank of Commerce in New York.

From this position grew a personal service which later became the original Kiplinger Washington Letter which he started in 1923.

In 1947 he founded Changing Times, a monthly magazine of advice on how to spend money wisely. Circulation of this magazine is now reported at over one million.

In recent years Kiplinger has turned over much of the vast business activity to his son, Austin H. Kiplinger, now president and publisher of the firm; and to his brother, C. Gale Kiplinger, whose name appears frequently in connection with the many real estate transactions of interest to the family here.

In addition to his son and brother, Kiplinger is survived by his widow, Mrs. LaVerne Kiplinger; two daughters, Mrs. John P. Wilson, Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. F. E. McNamara, Lengerlies, Germany.

Private funeral services were held at Bethesda. The family has requested no flowers. Those who wish may make a contribution to Children's Hospital, Washington, D. C.

THESE ARE THE CHAMPS--The Flower Growers, Palm City Pony League championship team received the trophy recently at the All Stars game held at Sailfish Park, Stuart. The Champs are shown above. Last week, by mistake, the Little League All Stars were pictured as being the Pony League champs.

Good Fishing Reported

Plenty of false albacore offshore, plus hot dolphin in the stream, and stray kings all over the ocean. Sails particularly good well in, between the three-mile reef and the beach, as well as in the stream.

Cobia reported plentiful near St. Lucie Inlet, especially on that hump a half-mile off the beach north of the jetty. Some Spanish mackerel, mostly south of the inlet. Occasional blues.

Beach anglers have been hitting big tarpon at varying spots from the inlet north recently. Trolling boats are hitting them, too, off the breakers. Big, 60 to 100 lb. class, and hungry. Also in the surf are whiting, some blues, very few pompano; plenty of snook, particularly Jupiter Island beaches.

Bottom fishing in Crossroads, St. Lucie and Indian Rivers excellent for specks. Upstream, in both forks are snook and tarpon, wild, including those chasing dog faced seals, which are back in the forks.

Fishing Violations Charged

Charges were filed by Sgt. Roland C. (Bouts) Byrd, Department of Conservation officer in Martin County, against two men for illegal spearfishing and two others for violation of crawfish laws last week.

James C. Thomas, 118, 1107 Pine Ave., Ft. Pierce, and L. N. Zoratti, 35, West Palm Beach, were charged with possession of egg-bearing crawfish. They were picked up off the beach near Peck's Lake, Jupiter Island.

Ray Sullivan, 19, South Bay, and John Evans, 20, Belle Glade, were charged with spearfishing within 500 yards of Randy's Pier.

All four were issued summonses to appear in County Court.

Sailfish Entry

Richard E. Markwalter of Satellite Beach caught a 56-1/2 pound wahoo aboard the Fran II, with Capt. Pete Robertson, recently.

The fish was entered with the Stuart Sailfish Club.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

Last week marked the official opening of the crawfish season again in Florida, and locally the catches by commercial men were far under the anticipated and hoped-for totals.

One reason for low yields of these delectable monsters can most likely be blamed on fresh water. According to local authorities, the recent rains and heavy fresh water discharges into the local inlet waters has had its effect on the crawfish. Salinity of local waters dropped as low as 11 parts to the thousand in some areas, and even as far north as the Frank A. Watts Bridge in Jensen, the count was only 17 parts to the thousand.

Crawfish require approximately 25 parts or better to survive, thus with the low count locally, the fish have mostly moved to other areas such as northward toward Ft. Pierce and southward to Hobe Sound.

One of the sad parts about the fresh water intrusion is the kill it makes of the young crawfish. According to one unreleased survey that was made during the past two months, the river areas and the near shore reefs were virtually barren of any small fish and very few adults were in evidence. Reportedly the adult fish ran and will leave areas of low salinity whereas the small fry die off.

Based on this and other reports on all types of marine life, fresh water is a culprit....especially when there is too much.

Another item of interest at this point seems to be a building feud between commercial crawfish men and skindivers. Numerous reports given to me during the first few days of the season exemplify this.

The commercial men had checked their pots on the days before the season began. Most of the pots contained 10 to 15 fish apiece, and when the pots were pulled the following day....as the saying goes "the outward was bare."

It must be quite disheartening to see skin divers around the pots, be almost certain they are robbing them, and yet be unable to prove it. The law states one must be caught removing the fish from the pot...or caught with the hand in the till....and admittedly this would require a lot of underwater police activity. Almost an impossible job....

But, commercial men, take heart, and skindivers beware. A new patrol is available, and it is my understanding this will be used extensively to detect the underwater culprits. The paint has ultra-violet qualities and shows up under a special lamp. Once the skin, gloves or clothing has touched this paint, the tell-tale signs are there to stay. It should prove to be a sure-fire method and it certainly will give the law enforcement officers a much-needed edge in the "catch" department.

TEMPO AND RHYTHM

Tempo and rhythm are terms often used in relation to a golf swing, but often they are misunderstood. They are so closely related that they are often taken for one another.

As defined, tempo is speed and rhythm is a beat. They are really musical terms associated with golf to portray the speed and naturalness of a golf swing. In music a foxtrot has a set rhythm but can be played to a slow beat or a fast beat. You can change the tempo but the rhythm is always there.

Rhythm in a golf swing should be a constant factor in a person's naturalness. It would be very difficult to change a person's rhythm. More often it changes for the better with practice and refinement.

Tempo, however, is a factor which can be changed. For example, a swing can be made in four counts, five counts or six counts. I take five counts as the medium tempo. Four counts would be fast and six would be slow. Count yourself from start to finish and find out what your tempo is.

Most swings are fast because they are not organized. To slow a fast swing down will help and probably to speed a slow swing up will help. Halfway in between is the right tempo.

They key to the right tempo and rhythm is the correct order of movement. The order of movement for a golf swing is four moves, four counts for the back swing, then one to the finish. Keep your swing in five counts and you will see improvement.

The cooking show is a public service presentation of The Mirror, in cooperation with Publix and FP&L.

Round Two

Arra Suit Under Way

The second round for the Arra construction vs. suit against the Housing Authority of Stuart ran through its second day Tuesday with Joseph Arra, president of the plaintiff firm, on the stand.

Ward Wagner, co-counsel with William R. Scott, for the SHA, motioned for a mistrial in the afternoon, but Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge denied the motion. Wagner sought it on the grounds that Elton Schwartz, Arra's attorney, was injuring people concerned with the construction operation by intimating the taking of graft, without making proper tenders or offering proof.

Judge Trowbridge denied the motion on the grounds that the plaintiff should show graft if there was any in the construction of the SHA project.

A verdict for the plaintiff was set aside by the judge as "excessive" the first time the suit was heard.

The jury, three tra major part of Monday's opening day, was a "working mother" jury, composed of three Whites and three Negroes, with an alternate.

Their occupations included mainten ance man, an assembler at an aircraft plant, a truck driver and a postal worker.

They were William H. Stevens, Jensen Beach; Thomas J. Leasher, Charles J. Millet and Donald L. Bellt, all of Stuart; R. L. Gary and J. O. Day, of Indiantown, and Aaron N. Johnson, Jensen Beach, as alternate.

Back From A Cook's Tour

Well folks, I am back on the job writing news stories for this page after a busy three weeks spent in England. The reason for this trip was primarily to visit with my sister and make re-with my brother. I had a very satisfactory visit in this regard as well as seeing many other relatives over there. My sister arranged a bon voyage party the last Sunday afternoon when 41 relatives attended.

England's summer temperatures were ages 15 degrees a bit more cooler than that of South Florida so dressed accordingly) and was quite comfortable. The weather was fine and I enjoyed the trip but found the long plane journeys tiring. My seat companions both ways were very friendly. On the return trip I was seated between two nice ladies-- how about that?

Nellie, who replaced me so efficiently as Park Reporter, wrote about the difficulty she and Mary Adams had in getting me started on my trip. Well, the getting me home wasn't so easy either.

The gals arrived at the airport in plenty of time but were misinformed as to where our flight would be discharged. The result was, the gals were biting their finger nails in the hope at one place while I was sweating it out in long underwear and business suit at another spot, loaded down with cameras and suit cases.

We eventually got together and Nellie informed me she was unable to secure motel accomodation so we started for home, driving in the rain, which added to our difficulties in unfamiliar surroundings, but we managed to find the turnpike. No sooner did we get on the Sunshine Parkway than the rain really tumbled down in the real Miami manner. The road was blotted out at times necessitating reducing our speed to a crawl many times in the next 20 miles.

We stopped for coffee at the plaza, after which the rain moderated and we continued our journey to arrive at our humble dwelling at 3 A.M.. We had much to talk about so it was getting near daybreak when we eventually crawled into our comfortable beds.

Yes, I have many happy memories of England, but it is nice to be home again and I do enjoy a cup of real coffee after so much tea.

Freda Peterkin Visits Hawaii

Freda Peterkin is enjoying a conducted tour of Hawaii to the fullest according to a letter received by Mrs. Adrean who gives us permission to use it. It is a long letter so will condense it some.

Hilo, Aug. 4, 67

Dear Mary:

"This planned tour is keeping me very busy, but I am enjoying every minute of it. Monday night's show, "Night in the Philippines" is one I will never forget. The eight girls were beautiful and the men, (quite) muscular. After the show we had the audience give them a standing ovation. Then we shook hands and danced each one individually.

"Today we had a bus tour of the sugar cane fields which were in different stages of growth, from the little bright shoots to the fully ripe fields of cane and then on to the factory where it is washed and sugar is extracted. Our guide told us that large quantities of water are used, one thousand lbs. of water to get one pound of lb. sugar.

"We also saw pineapples in all stages of growth to its harvesting in the fields. We cut the pineapples from the plant with a sharp knife and then them on to a conveyor belt which conveys them to the truck, then as we then go to the factory. Our driver took a pineapple in the top. Then with a sharp knife sliced off the outside skin and sliced a generous portion off for each of us to sample. It was juicy and delicious. We were glad to wash our hands off with water from a hose."

"This hotel room, May, you would love. Deep carpeting, two single beds, French windows with heavy drapes over-looking the water. Two deeply cushioned chairs invite relaxation and maid service."

"This afternoon I had fun watching a pee-wee baseball game. They were nice lads and I was glad I went."

"Dinner tonight started with tomato juice, hot vegetable soup, roast short of beef, mashed potatoes, green peas, hard bun, tossed salad, and coffee. Adjoining the dining room was a sunken garden with flowers and orchids. The latter are not so colorful as ours in Florida as we get more sunshine."

"You would love this spot with it's leisurely way of life. As our guide said yesterday on one of our timed stops, "Take your time-but hurry back." Another motorist of his was, "Sit back and relax- let Polynesian paralysis creep in gradually." His comment on mid mists was, "Serve it goodies-- some have more than others."

"We see people from all over. I noticed two ladies in their lovely native dresses. We have a Japanese couple with us. The lady was wearing a full Japanese dress even to the flat Japanese slipper- shoe."

"My eyelids grow heavy so I had better quit chatting and go to bed."

Best wishes
Freda

Brobergs Fly To California

Al and Helen Broberg had quite an interesting trip to California last mo th. They visited Helen's sister and brother-in-law , the Stewarts Railtons who live at Campbell, Cal., about 60 miles south of Frisco.

One day brother-in-law took them for a drive all over San Francisco. Some on a high hill that were able to see all over the city and the Golden Gate Bridge. While in the beautiful Golden Gate Park, they were hurt to see a group of "flippies" or school dropouts having a confab-erence. They are long-haired dirty, drug addicted bit of young men who don't do any work, but depend on the Salvation Army to feed and clothe them.

Stewart took a week off to show them the country, traveling some 1000 miles in doing so. They saw their first snow in seven years in Yosemite Park and just had to get into a snowball fight.

Then on to Reno, Nev. and Harold's Place. Next to Virginia City where they saw the old saloon, rambling table and Boot Hill, but no sign of the Cartwright Ranch. Next they went to the Lake's Indian-ian, one tree stump cut off eight feet above the ground was 24 feet in diameter and that was a square dance floor. Indeed on it one night.

They drove through the Donner Pass where pioneer Donnerites took the wrong road and died in the snow. Established in the store and valley. Donner was their leader and it all happened a hundred years ago.

The Broberges returned as they went, to National Airways and arrived at their mobile home in Indian Breeze Drive, Friday, July 28.

Some great Breeze residents are returning. Just to mention a few, there are the Hughes's on Gar Street, the Kents on Mango, the Daniels on Ninth, Dennis Hikins on Tenth, the John Hazeltons on Cypress and Dale Potter in here for a few days.

Mildred Marshland Returns

Mildred Marshland is back to work at the Park office after spending six weeks visiting relatives and friends in New England. Most of the time was spent with her daughter Wilmington, and four grandchildren in Durham, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. H.C. Clift, Richard Jr., Gary, Scott, and Anne, Dr. Clift is one of the physicians at the University of New Hampshire.

Other Park visitor residents were: Mildred's brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Collis at Raymond, Me., Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shaw at Lakeland, Me. She attended the wedding of Shaw's niece and nephew Henry Morgan and Jessie White in "The Old Country". Mr. and Mrs. Al Janks in Moody Beach, Maine and the Ted Landreths, and Mark Hammond in Bridgeport, N.H., while returning to Lake Worth, she saw the Stowe Gardens who were old winter residents on Lemon Lake.

Thank You

I want to thank everyone who sent friendly cards and letters during my confinement and extend my appreciation to all those who visited me during my stay at the hospital.

Brammers Take Caravan Tour

We just received a letter from Lawrence and Minnie Brammer of Hilo Avenue, that reads:

Huguette Lake, NY
August 4, '67

Dear Nellie and Tom,

So far we have had a very busy holiday. First we attended our grandson's wedding - Larry Moore and Sharron Spencer, June 3 at LaGrange, Illinois. Then on to Ft. Wayne where we were delegates to the Indiana and Kentucky Church Conference which lasted three days.

Following the conference we visited the International "Hootin Nanny" trailer rally at Bowling Green, Ky. There were about 650 trailers and 3,500 people, 33 of the trailers were from Indianapolis and were on a caravan. We had never heard of this rally before and it was quite an experience for us.

While at Bowling Green we visited the Floyds, Merrymans and Martins, and had lunch with them.

July 29, we left for the Adirondack Mountains to visit Harry and Mary Sanders at Huguette Lake, on the way we stopped at Niagara Falls and enjoyed seeing the falls. It had been 30 years since we were there.

Now we are at the Sanders'. It is beautiful country and they have a very lovely place. You should just see Harry's garden. It really is a show garden. He has everything, even tiger lilies started from bulbs. Mary is making a blueberry pie. You know Mary and her cooking and--

After we leave here we join another Holiday Rambler caravan of Hoosiers from Indianapolis 40 miles east of Kingston, Ontario, and will travel with them to Expo 67 where we will stay for five or six days. From Expo the caravan goes to Ottawa and north to about 50 Marie where we leave them, as we expect to spend several weeks at Upper Michigan and Wisconsin before coming home.

With love,
Lawrence and Minnie

Ruby Wren In Riot Area

Ruby Wren arrived at her mobile home on South Tenth at 3 A.M. August 4 after an absence of two and a half months. She left May 15 and travelled with the Romneys as far as Detroit and arrived in time to attend two bridal showers. Ruby spent two weeks with her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Snowden of Sparton, then returned to Detroit for her grandson Colin Wren's wedding.

While in Detroit she attended a water skiing tournament where her grandson Douglas was doing exhibition skiing. Doug, by the way, has been Michigan's boy champion water skier for four years. His record long jump was 108 feet.

At Jackson, Mich. she had the pleasure of meeting a former friend she had not seen in 37 years. They performed on the same stage for three years. After touring the northern part of Mich. she returned to Detroit July 24 at the time of the riots.

She went with her daughter to the Dubois store. This huge store was gutted and empty. Most stores were closed, all travel was curtailed so they went home to their motel. From there she telephoned several of her friends in Inkster, she called the Adkins, Rosbrows and Hollins who reported all well. Gladys Adams said there were no fires on their street, calm in Inkster and Dearborn brought to Pupils. Rubs went on to say, "The air was foul, National Guard and Army trucks were in the streets. No one was allowed to leave their homes. After the riot many fires were started and homeless will be housed in wool, mirrors were empty. All churches tried to feed and shelter people as best they could."

"My motel plans was to go to Cincinnati area on then she was to Indiana, we left Aug. 2 with a motor-home caravan of Holiday Rambler caravan of Hoosiers from Indianapolis 40 miles east of Kingston, Ontario, and will travel with them to Expo 67 where we will stay for five or six days. From expo the caravan goes to Ottawa and north to about 50 Marie where we leave them, as we expect to spend several weeks at Upper Michigan and Wisconsin before coming home.

With love,
Lawrence and Minnie

A Visit To Expo '67

Zylpha Salyards left last April for Indianapolis where she acted as companion for a blind lady at the Eastern Star Grand Chapter meeting.

She attended the weddings of two of her grand daughters, one at Kalamazoo, Mich, and the other at Toledo, Ohio.

Mrs. Salyards was joined by Dorothy Geeben on June 19 and they travelled together till they returned to Ocean Breeze. They visited Andy and Beth Bailie at Dearborn, Mich. and Keith Hankin's daughter Barbara, husband and family, (the Wintrops) at Toronto, Ontario.

They then took in three days of Expo 67. The most outstanding show in their opinion was the Bell Telephone exhibit. However it was a very busy time and they had to wait two hours, but it was very good, depicting life in all Canadian provinces from coast to coast.

The United States exhibit featured pictures of various movie actors and actresses, also a capsule in which astronauts had circled the earth and returned and dropped into the ocean. Also displayed were the chairs the astros sat in and other items relating to the moon project.

They found the food and accomodation good. The first night they slept in a private home, then they got a motel room for the rest of the trip except for the Expo grounds and returned them to the motel for a shower a bit each.

Back in New York cars were lined bid abreast and it took 2 hours to get the 6 miles out of Canada. At Buffalo, N.Y. the girls spent two days at Luther and Georgiana Brown's who were both well.

The Hershey Chocolate factory was visited. Electric signs would be nice to have a well-informed tour. Leaving Jamestown, Pa. they journeyed to Mrs. Salyard's daughter's home in Indiana and stayed two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Ball and another grandson-ing visit with their grandchildren at Toledo, Ohio.

Words To Make Your Life Better

SUNSHINE

Have you ever had your day suddenly turn sunshiny because of a cheerful word? Have you ever wondered if this could be the same world, because someone had been unexpectedly kind to you? You can make today the same for somebody. It is only a question of a little imagination, a little time and trouble. Think now, "What can I do today to make someone happy?"

Skiers Entertain On Way To Expo

For well over an hour, five lovely and talented girls performed on skis at the Langford Marina for a crowd of more than 300 persons who gathered to watch ceremonies welcoming the girls to Martin County.

They were Cathy Austin, 12, national water ski champion in 1966 in her age group; Linda Austin, 15, 1965 junior girls national jumping champion; and three relatively new skiers, Alice Roberts, 21, a beautician; Mary Fraas, 23, housewife and mother of two children; and Pat Markus, 26, a model, and the mother of four.

Skiing behind a houseboat which will be their home for the trip from St. Petersburg to Expo '67 in Montreal, Canada, the quintet arrived at Stuart about noon Thursday, rested for a while then took off for Jensen Beach where they were expected at 4 p.m.

They skied in circles for 20 minutes awaiting the opening of the Stuart bridge of the Florida East Coast Railway, used up so much of the craft's gas they almost ran out before arrival at Langford Marina.

Once there, they put on an hour and a half show for about 300 persons on hand to greet them. They participated in ceremonies in which Frances Langford was made an honorary champion skier; County Commissioner Frank A. Wacha was made an honorary admiral of the St. Petersburg navy, and various others were made champion skiers, including Dick Campbell, Ed Lawrence, Frank Forsberg and Reg Walker.

The girls are set to visit more than 30 cities on the tour, and one of them promised to ski the route, up the Intracoastal Waterway to New York City, then up the Hudson River to the St. Lawrence River and Expo '67.

Linda will ski the entire trip, the rest accompanying her in rotation, sometimes all five skiing at one time.

The trip is being sponsored by the Florida Development Commission, the St. Petersburg Chamber of Commerce, the Florida Council of 100 and various commercial sponsors.

The group was feted at the Outrigger Thursday night for dinner, followed by a personally-conducted turtle watch for the girls along Hutchinson Island. (See 'Live & Love It' this week.) Friday, about 8 a.m. the group headed north.

MERMAIDS OF THE DEEP--These five lovely young girls are skiing their way to Expo '67 via the Okeechobee Waterway and Intracoastal Waterway. Here they are shown rising out of the water at Langford Marina during a ski show presented to more than 300 persons last Thursday afternoon.

Arra Suit Re-Opened

The Arra Construction Co. suit against the Housing Authority of Stuart and A. P. Krieger, former executive director, set for a re-trial after a jury verdict was overturned by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge, opened Monday at 9:30 a.m.

The jury awarded Arra Construction $134,021.75 from the authority in trial held last spring. It was overturned as excessive. An award of $5,000 punitive damages and $1,000 in compensatory damages against Krieger was not overturned, but Krieger filed an appeal to Fourth Appellate Court late in June.

Representing the plaintiff is Clifton Schwartz; the defendant Shiff, William R. Scott and Ward Wagner, West Palm Beach; and Krieger, Hazelwood Ford, Fort Pierce.

Hospital Auxiliary Plans For Season

Plans for the coming season were announced by the ways and means committee of the Women's Auxiliary of Martin Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Walter Bauman is chairman.

A luncheon-fashion show will be held in November, followed by a Christmas card party, a dinner dance and fashion show in January, and a bargain box sale in February.

Other members of the committee are Mrs. Alan Browne, co-chairman; Mrs. Margaret Heckler, Mrs. T. Welser, Mrs. Clifford Prall, Mrs. Naomi Hellpenstell and Mrs. James Gilmore.

Social Security Recipients Increase

There are nearly half a million retired workers in the State of Florida receiving social security benefits, a jump of more than two-thirds since 1960, compared with a national increase of some 40 per cent, according to the Florida State Chamber of Commerce.

The report in its Weekly Business Review, released last Saturday, reads "Exact figures are available for no later than 1965. By the end of that year there were 464,910 retirees in Florida receiving social security. This figure was 67 per cent over 1960. During the five year interval, the number of these retired workers (both old and new residents of Florida) moved up consistently by 30,000 each year.

"Of the 464,910 retirees, 293,700 were men, one-third having retired before age 65. Of the women workers, 58 per cent retired early.

"In addition to retired workers, in 1965 there were 38,274 disabled workers receiving social security; 116,832 husbands and wives of retirees and disabled workers; 102,269 children; 73,954 widows and widowers and 15,375 parents.

"All told, these 811,596 recipients of social security received $714,838,000 in 1965."

Language Study Successful

Significant gains have been made on instructional levels on some local scenes, even though the summer's headlines in education have generally been in the field of sanctions and finance.

This became apparent in Martin County when John G. Gray, supervisor of secondary education in the local school system, last week outlined a local curriculum study program carried out over a period of six weeks.

The program, which concentrated on the language arts, was called a "significant breakthrough" by experts in the State Department of Education.

Martin County School Board members, who went out on a limb at their May meeting to sponsor the program, call it "something that long needed doing" and praise it as an "exceptional project in teaching."

Gray asked the board for permission to undertake the study, which eventually may cost between $7,500 and $8,000 as a summer project by a paid team of working teachers considered exceptional in the schools here.

Steps Taken

County Condemns For Right-Of-Way

The county commission on Tuesday morning voted in a floor to one split to ask the State Road Department to initiate condemnation proceedings against St. Lucie-Jupiter Co. in order to gain 1,972 feet of right-of-way for Cove Road, from A-1-A to an easterly direction.

The vote was taken after Chairman Jack F. Saunderson said that the SRD did not want to construct the proposed secondary road on anything but a straight line from US 1 to the Intracoastal Waterway.

Eventually, the highway is expected to lead to a bridge over the Intracoastal Waterway to the north end of Jupiter Island.

Saunderson said condemnation proceedings appeared to be the only way to get the right-of-way, which the owners have promised but not delivered for almost three years.

Commissioner Frank A. Wacha opposed on grounds that the company would be paid for improvements to its own property at the expense of the taxpayers. He argued for an alternate route.

Commissioner J. B. Bruner said the cost of an alternate route would be more than the cost to condemn and take.

The commission took no action, but discussed briefly the possibilities of putting the county in the car inspection business under new legislation which permits individual garages or the county to conduct the twice-a-year inspections which will be required next year.

"There were 13,262 tags issued in 1966; 12,358 so far this year in the county," Wacha said, "and the fee for inspections will be $1.75 of which 25 cents will go to the state, the balance to the inspecting agency)," he added.

He pointed out that the county could gross $39,000 a year at that rate, even if no additions are made to the tag list.

Saunderson said he favored public, not private, inspections, argued that there would be favoritism in private work, plus excessive charges for unneeded work, other abuses.

by law the county must decide on its course 30 days prior to the end of the year.

Zoning May Be Resolved

Hutchinson Island zoning will be up for a new public hearing session Sept. 21, according to zoning Director Fred L. Bell.

The County Zoning Board took the topic from the table Thursday night and agreed to the new hearing in response to changes in the present zoning code.

The board, after some discussion, said they would hold the matter with the committee appointed by Chairman Howard Hall to study Island zoning with property owners. Said said things were looking favorable towards reaching a solution and hopefully can be finalized in the near future.

In other action, Henry Crews, Palm City, who has been commissioned into county court on a misdemeanor charge entered an appeal from violation of zoning at a home flower shop, was denied a new hearing by the board.

The court case has been set for Aug. 31. Mr. Crews has been operating the flower shop because of her husband's incapacities due to health reasons.

Members of the Palm City Civic Association and neighbors attended the board meeting in protest any change in the board's ruling.

Occupational Center May Move Location

The Pioneer Occupational Center, Fort Salerno, may soon be moving the school site to the property of the former Coral Gardens Dwelling Lanes on US #1, according to a recommendation to the board of supervisors of the county on Monday.

At the special meeting, the board requested to negotiate a lease-purchase agreement with George Spencer Corporation.

Under terms of the negotiation agreement, the county would be able to lease the building for a period of eight months with an option to purchase. A request is being made for a Federal grant to cover 50% of the purchase price of $90,000. The grant is subject to the county's ability to lease the building, and also the the local matching of funds by the area served, which includes Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Okeechobee Counties.

The present quarters of the Center, the old Fort Salerno School, is deemed too small to continue housing the facility's population.

Starting in September, the Center will be serving 34 clients, 15 of which will be new at that time. An additional 18 are on the waiting list.

Boat Registration Begins For Labor Day Race

Tastes Better In A Coffee Pot

Then it pointed to an- diver, assigning him second set of fealers. were breathing heav- through the snorkles fitted ly in our mouths, and the ment of the moment ed a slight haze of per- ation to fog the glass of mask over our faces. ith no signal, as if some unknown had taken con- of the moment, we took deep breath and slowly ended into the crystal n waters of the Atlantic Ocean.

Gloved hands reached slowly for the tentacle feelers that arched, following our every move. Then the desperate confusion of reaching into the craggy cave, fighting the swift movements of the crawfish, caused exploded bubbles of air, swirled white sand and turbulent body-made water currents.

And then we were up, each with a Florida lobster in his hands, trying to smile while our mouths gulped the fresh air around the mouthpieces still clenched in our teeth. Masks were slipped back on our heads and we slowly pulled in the bathtub-like plastic boat that was tied by a string around the wrist of one of the hunters. The three lobsters were tossed into the boat, bobbing on the slight swell of the ocean's morning tide.

Howard Haid, Mirror sports editor; Ricky Campbell, 10, and I were hunting the giant crawfish, known as Florida lobster. The water was four to five feet deep a half mile from shore, with white sand and occasional coral growth to hide the shellfish. We were on the southern tip of the United States, a few miles from Key West, at Bahia Honda State Park, just a strip of keys set aside for the people.

The waters cover a new world of adventure, and the tang of salt on the lips and the fantastic world of sea creatures bring a feeling of fantasy to the diver.

Our feets were set at the water's edge on a sandy coral-strewn beach. An eight-foot boat with a 3-1/2 horsepower Evinrude outboard motor got us from one place to another in the quiet waters of the Keys. Other campers filled the park to overflowing. All available spaces in the camp were taken, and some cars parked along the entrance driveways as campers waited for a place in the park.

When we swam we also found shells, especially the conch. Beautiful colors hid beneath the algae growth on the outside of the conch, and ten-year-old Ricky was the only hunter to find a queen conch, one of the most beautiful shells in the sea.

Once back to shore, we tore the tails from the lobster, and Haid placed the tender white meat of the lobster on a cutting board. He cut each tail into many pieces and dumped them all into a coffee pot of boiling water. That night we had fresh Florida lobster, in a special tomato sauce, or dipped in butter.

The food smells of cooking on a Coleman campstove make everyone in camp even more hungry. Simple meals, yet with a touch of the outdoors, make dining on the wooden picnic tables around the park a joy.

Haid, his wife Nelda and their daughter Ewana shared one tent on the narrow beach. Stanley Cary, son of Jupiter Courier editor and Mrs. Ives Cary, Ricky and I had another tent. As dinner was prepared, we swept the tent of the fine sand and helped to set the table. Fresh lobster is a delicacy, and from a boiling coffee pot to the plate, it is even better.

The sun eased from the sky, tired from a day of lighting the water for our search, and Venus shone brighter in the sky over Florida's keys. A strange feeling exists at sunset, for it seems to be setting in the north on the key, which stretches west into the Gulf of Mexico. But the night glitters.

Without the many lights of the cities, the nights are fabulous in the Florida Keys. We sat, looking at the stars, a portable radio playing softly. Down the beach some college students laughed, and a guitar strummed as they sang, quietly. The night was early, and bedtime came at ten p.m.

The dawn again fooled us, seemingly bringing the sun from the south, but it was no other. The ocean was placid, reflecting every glowing drop of sunshine falling from the bright orange sphere rising out of its depths.

And, again, the water was fantastic.

Fish of all sizes, swimming effortlessly, looked quizzically at the long black flippers, the mask and the gloved hands of the divers. Three barracuda encircled Haid for a moment, looked him over, and glided away. A lemon shark took one look at Haid, swam around him and then went away. Haid then left the area where we swam, called us to our boat, and we returned to safer waters.

With eight large lobster in the plastic boat, we were having a good day. Then the conservation agent checked our catch. Measuring with a device, the agent showed us that the caprice of the lobster was less than one-sixteenth of an inch too short for a legal catch, and seven of our eight went back into the water.

We could not be disappointed, though. It had been a good weekend. The divers had seen the busy ocean community and all the fantasy of the world of the sea. They had swept the lobster from his cave beneath shining coral, and had discovered the camouflage and taken the beautiful conc...

The tents were struck and the boat loaded into the station wagon, along with the many items of camp gear that makes a weekend in the Keys comfortable. We crossed the seven-mile bridge and stopped for a final lunch in Marathon.

The coconut trees had silver-dust from the sun as we drove east toward Key Largo on our way home. It was a pleasant sight and added a final touch of natural elegance to our trip.

Imagine lobster tasting so delicious from a coffee pot. There must be magic in the Florida Keys, for it touches all of us.

HUNTERS- Rick Campbell, 10, and Stanley Cary, 8, did considerable diving at Bahia Honda State Park, and impressed their gear often. Typical of the maturity of the hunters, they found great difficulty in getting the snorkles past the yellow peg sticks in their mouths.

BIG CONCH--Rick Campbell holds the fabulous queen conch he discovered while diving in the crystal clear waters of the Florida Keys. A regular conch is held in his right hand to show the difference between the pink and queen.

BACK FROM DIVING- Howard Haid, his wife Nelda, and daughter Ewana, and Rick Campbell talk over their catch after four hours of diving in the four to five-foot deep waters of the Florida Keys. Sunburn oil is a staple item on a trip to the diving waters of Bahia Honda State Park, and after a four-hour swim, it is needed.

Notes On The Veterans

By John W. Keller

All G.I. students were reminded by the Veterans Administration recently to be sure their college notifies the VA promptly upon acceptance or re-enrollment for the fall semester.

Prompt action by the colleges and students will enable the VA to process the applications quickly and thereby insure timely payment to the thousands of students expected to be in school under the GI bill this fall.

The GI students themselves should remind the college that they are under the New GI Bill, otherwise they will be treated as non-veteran students, VA will not be notified, and no money will be received.

Q. I am enrolled at the University of Florida under the GI bill for the 1966-67 term. I plan to attend the University of Miami for the 1967 fall session. What must I do to obtain VA educational assistance for the fall session?

A. Submit a request to the VA Regional Office for a change of program or school. This should be done early enough to permit the issuance of a certificate of eligibility prior to your enrollment in the new school.

Q. I attend a business school under the provisions of the New GI Bill. Is it necessary that I continue to report my classroom attendance to the VA each month?

A. Yes, your certificate and that of an official of the business school are necessary each month to insure prompt delivery of your checks. Use the pre-punched IBM card mailed to you by the VA for this purpose.

$50 Is Paid For Big Hole

The county has been reimbursed $50 through the Dept. of Civil Defense for digging a water hole for watering cattle during last winter's drought.

County Commissioner Jack P. Saunderson said Thursday the only hole dug by the county under the aid program was between US 1 and SR 76 on Snake Road.

Unique in that a strike-out ended the first game, the same man came to bat in the last inning with two out and a man on second and third. They again were the tying runs. He hit a sharp ground ball to shortstop, who threw him out at first.

Protecting Natural Resources

For those of you that are conservation minded, the present legislative body has done some important steps towards protecting and retaining our natural resources.

The recent anti-pollution law created an Air and Water Pollution Control commission giving it broad powers to effectuate the new state controls towards good conservation.

In the future, on or after July 1967 permit will be issued by the Trustees of the Internal Improvement without the Conservation Department first having conducted a comprehensive survey to determine if the proposed project will cause a detrimental effect upon the water life presented, also...

...to our own area and make sure that proper surveys and biological studies have been made when said fill and dredge operations are scheduled in this area only.

Speaking about natural resources and according to the latest reports and figures, 4,362,848 pounds of oysters were harvested in one year from the waters along the coast. This is a relatively new industry to the commercial field, although the oysters have enjoyed the sport fishermen for many years. Oyster farming methods have come a long way since the days when oysters were gathered by hand from the bottom of the bay. Now they are grown on racks and harvested by machine. Oyster farming is a big business in Florida and is growing rapidly.

...ing to the Florida Conservation Department, the Florida oyster is the best tasting oyster in the world. Florida oysters are shipped to all parts of the country and are considered a delicacy.

The Fact That Hits Flat

The head and feet are vital balance points in a golf swing and they affect the effort parts to suffer.

Since everything to do with a golf swing has a certain circle, we will take it from the foundation up.

The hips are nearly the same shape as the head, but they are in a horizontal plane. The hips are the center of the body. In the address position the hips are parallel to the ball and the line of the feet.

The proper balance finds the weight on the left hip at the start, on the right hip for the backswing, and back to the right hip for the start and to the finish.

The hips in many in a golf swing, but the side to side balance is vital because it requires good footwork and good balance of the body.

The correct under-all movement going back is to shift to the right hip, and swinging down to shift to the left hip.

Then the ball opposite the left heel at the start, and ...balance on your left hip, and you will find this effect easy to follow. Practice this principle, and you will find your golf swing will improve right on the ball.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

Protecting Natural Resources

For those of you that are conservation minded, the present legislative body has made some important steps towards protecting and retaining our natural resources.

The recent anti-pollution law created an Air and Water Pollution Control Commission giving it broad powers to effectuate the necessary controls towards good conservation.

In the future, no dredge or fill permit will be issued by the Trustees of the Internal Improvement without the Conservation Department first having conducted a comprehensive survey to determine if the proposed project will have a detrimental effect upon the marine life resources. Also, Boards of County Commissioners must obtain biological surveys prior to fixing bulkhead lines.

Basically any fill or dredge project will receive close scrutiny as to the effect it will have on marine life, before receiving a permit for such work.

The law appears to be a good one and it's adoption can protect the states invaluable marine resources from ill-advised land grab enterprises. If the newly appointed commission will and does follow the law as it indicates it will, much of our natural resource will be preserved.

Locally we can aid this commission in performing it's duty, by keeping a watchful eye on our own area and make sure that proper surveys and biological studies have been made when land fill and dredge operations are scheduled in this vicinity.

Speaking about natural resources and according to latest reports and records, 4,362,846 pounds of oysters were harvested in one year from the waters along the coast. This is relatively a new industry in the commercial field, although the natives have enjoyed the Florida oyster for years. Coming into it's own commercially the Florida oyster could produce a sizable income in local circles and the fore mentioned law can help this type of industry grow and prosper without fear of extinction.

If proper and effective controls or fresh water can be provided by the present legislation, I would call it a Very Good Year and who knows? Maybe it will be...

Chips, Divots And Tips

by Matt Moore

Vero Beach was the season winner in the Indian River League with 16 points.

Martin County ended with nine points for second place, winning five of these points at Martin County on Sunday, Aug. 20.

Indian Hills was third with seven points, and Fort St. Lucie came in fourth with four points.

Blitz winners were Matt Moore, Jim Leighton, Neil Pope and Ted Hill with a score of 122.

The Part The Hips Play

The head and feet are your balance points in a golf swing, and they allow the other parts to work.

Since everything to do with a golf swing has a certain order, we will take it from the foundation up.

The hips are really the underpart of place for the shoulder swing, and from this area the ball of the swing.

A golf swing, like a wheel, has a hub, a spoke, which is the left arm, and a rim, which is the club head. This comparison is not hypothetical, it's fact.

Put the left arm and the shaft in the right plane, and the club head in the proper arc, and you can't help hitting the ball solid, which is the first requirement.

The hips are important because the body is the power plant for the swing, and transmission of power is from the body to the arms to the hands to the club to the ball.

The proper balance finds the weight on the left hip at the start, on the right hip for the backswing, and back to the right hip for the hit and to the finish.

The turn is easy in a golf swing, but the slide to side balance is hard because it requires good footwork and good balance of the head.

The correct order of movement going back is to shift to the right turn, and swinging down to shift to the left turn.

Play the ball opposite the left heel at the start, and balance on your left hip, and you will find this other easy to follow. Practice this procedure, and you will find more power, more accuracy in your swing and better flight on the ball.

Bell Reports

County Has 76.5 Miles Of Paved Roads

A new inventory of the county's road facilities, a set of maps of urban areas showing the county road status in each, the county road department operations plans and a set of proposed priorities for future construction within the county structure, were turned over to members of the county commission by County Engineer Fred L. Bell on Tuesday.

The inventory of roads classified the county's ways, particularly in the urban areas of Jensen Beach, Rio, Palm City, Port Salerno and Palm City, Port Salerno, Hobe Sound and Indiantown.

Classification included type of paving, if paved, unpaved status, including right-of-way "paper" roads.

The county has 76.5 miles of paved roads, not including roads and numbered roads and streets or those lying within corporate city or town limits; 52.7 miles of asphalt-in-place base or sand seated roads; 47.7 miles of graded dirt roads, and 188.1 miles of right-of-way only in paper roads.

Of the latter, Palm City Farms plats show 89.9 miles and St. Lucie Inlet Farms plats 54.7 miles. Overall total is 365 miles.

The total is broken down in the report to show the status in each urban area, includes an inventory of county bridges by types.

Bell suggested plans for improvements to the existing inventory and suggestions on a special benefit assessment basis for construction of the paper roads in his report.

He estimated that the total cost of improvement of the inventory to a satisfactory level or service with a 10-year life expectancy would be $1,373,560, of which bid contracts would account for $865,060 and road and bridge department work would total $498,500.

He broke down the cost estimates by districts and types of roads or structures, as well as by commission districts.

Bell listed budgets for the years through 1964 through 1967 in labor, materials and contract work, but not by total road and bridge fund budgets.

He noted that in 1964, $238,900 was spent; 1965, $276,550; $259,000 in 1966 and $274,000 (fiscal) years.

The road department budgets for the same years ran as follows: $471,281 in 1964; $435,353 in 1965; 1966 $450,117; and $459,358 in the new budget.

Bell's figures do not include the same costs, nor do they include district budgets, not shown in the total budget figures above, either. He pointed out that district funds were used for special purposes at the direction of the district commissioners.

For future policy, Bell pointed to a continued county-wide priority program of improvement; continued provision for special district projects in "residential-type" streets.

COLLECTOR COLLECTS- Martin County Tax Collector Andy Andrews collected a bumper sticker on his way to the Kiwanis meeting this week. He was stopped by fellow Stuart Kiwanians to have his auto bumper emblazoned with the "Willie Survive" slogan, "Stay Alive". The stickers are part of the Kiwanis safety program that will continue through the year.

Last minute details were ironed out Monday night for the day-long celebration on Jensen Beach Causeway next Monday, Labor Day, at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, coordinating group for the event.

Boat races, kids foot races and swimming races, an afternoon of Bingo, carnival games and food to be served were discussed by members of the Chamber, the Jensen Beach Lions Club, Jensen Women's Association, Jensen Fireworks Committee and scouting groups participating in the family-outing day activities.

Unique to Labor Day will be the afternoon of Bingo, under the main pavilion, being played under a bill recently passed by the Florida Legislature allowing such events for non-profit organizations. Heading the committee for the Chamber will be Ed Snyder. Various games are planned to continue through the afternoon, from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Other day-long activities include horseshoe pitching, carnival booths operated by Mrs. Jackie Hall and her Girl Scout troop, a carnival attraction operated by the Jensen Fireworks Committee, and swimming from the Causeway.

At 12:30 p.m. the first of several events will get under way as the Jensen Lions hold races for children. There will be foot races, bag races and three-legged races, with prizes of one dollar to the winner of each race and fifty cents to second-place winners.

Then, at 1:30 p.m., the captains' meeting for the annual Labor Day Amateur Boat race will be held, with the race getting under way at 2 p.m.

Trophies for the first three places in the various classes will be awarded, presented by Frances Langford and Ralph Evinrude, and the Outrigger Restaurant.

The favorite insertube races in the Indian River will be conducted by Gene Kasper at 3:30 p.m.

Throughout the afternoon, beginning at noon, the Chamber of Commerce will be serving hot dogs, hamburgers and coffee next to the main pavilion, and soft drinks will be served there and at the carnival site.

Masters of ceremonies for the day will be county commissioner Frank Wacha and Al Walker.

4450 County Students Started School Monday

School bells sounded on Monday heralding the opening of school for about 4,450 students in Martin County. Enrollment is expected to increase as usual after the Labor Day weekend, according to Mrs. Lillian Dassori, general supervisor.

This number is a few more than the number of pupils that ended the term last May. For the past decade, Martin County schools have matched or topped closing day pupil attendance with Fall opening week attendance, and increased again after Labor Day, reaching a peak in February.

There will be teachers in every classroom which needs one, Mrs. Dassori said, despite sanctions, the Florida Education Association and the Legislature.

Bus routes, although altered a bit to take care of the new school districting and countywide Ninth at Murray, are being run much the same as usual, William Lanier, 287-2828, may be contacted in case of problem.

For the first time in many years, the system still have only one high school, Murray Ninth alone will be countywide. Stuart Junior High and Warfield will have seventh and eighth grades.

Enrollment at MCHS was 824 compared to 630 last year; Fast Stuart had 265 compared to 371; and Murray Ninth, enrollment was 303. Its enrollment last year as a junior-senior high was 296.

By schools, the first day enrollment was: Booker Park 153; Dunbar, 94; East Stuart, 295; Hobe Sound, 254; Jensen Beach, 215; Palm City, 236; Port Salerno, 333; MCHS 824; Murray Ninth, 303; Stuart Junior High, 636; Warfield, 45* and J.D. Parker, 681.

TROPHIES--Herman Reitz smiles from behind the trophies that will be given amateur boat racers this Monday at the annual Labor Day boat races on Jensen Beach Causeway. Reitz is chairman of the event, a one-hour marathon race for family boats, which will be part of a full day of planned fun on the Causeway.

Holiday Bulkhead Proposal Accepted

A proposal to establish the line of bulkhead along the Indian River at Holiday Out, a new camping resort on the Indian River at Jensen Beach, met with the approval of a state marine biologist Monday at a hearing in Fort Pierce. The proposal was made by developer Hazen Kreis near the end of a hearing at which K. D. Woodburn, state marine biologist for the Department of Conservation, objected to a proposed line being asked by Holiday Out.

Though the intention was not to fill out to the bulkhead, according to Kreis, the line was being asked to straighten out the present shoreline.

Kreis, president of the firm developing the deluxe camper and mobile home site between the ocean and river, just north of the Martin County line, said his firm is ready to withdraw its original bulkhead line request.

Holiday Out will ask for a line immediately adjacent to the present shoreline, as set up on the approved plan, and request a boat channel off shore. The channel will be requested in the area of the original bulkhead line.

Woodburn, who had filed objections to the original line request, indicated that the new proposal would answer the objections which he had made on conservation grounds.

The solution was reached after a public hearing held by three members of the St. Lucie County Commission.

Woodburn's objection to the Holiday Out bulkhead line pertained to filling of the area between the bulkhead line and the shore, which would eliminate grassy fish nursery areas extending to 75 feet out from the shoreline.

Kreis said that Holiday Out had taken conservation measures into consideration in their plans.

He said they had no intention of filling in the land between the proposed bulkhead line and the shore as would be shown in the development plans, but wanted the area for boat channels.

He said with conservation in mind, plugs had been left in along the shore during the digging of finger canals so that the river would not be silted; plans for a sewage treatment plant were designed to prevent pollution of the five; and it was planned to make a single channel out to the intracoastal waterway so a minimum of bottom land would be disturbed.

The final decision will be made by the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Board which, under a new law, must consider conservation aspects.

Woodburn said one advantage of the new proposal is that it would eliminate any possibility of fill in the offshore area in the future.

Sawyers Have Visitors

Ralph Sawyer had a five day visit with his grandson, Peter Foley, and family last week. Peter, his wife, Caroline and daughters, Caroline and Angela, arrived from Natick, Mass., August 25 by car, and stayed long enough to wish Ralph many happy returns of his birthday on August 25, when he was 83 years old.

During their stay here they also visited Grandma Sawyer who is in the Martin Memorial Hospital, Stuart. Hospital rules do not allow children in the Memorial children in the wards. Jessie Sawyer wanted to see her great - grandchildren so much that arrangements were made to move the bed to the children - so - everyone was happy.

Peter spent the past year in Viet Nam and has been back less than a month.

Sorrells Return From Extensive Motor Trip

Joe and Stella Sorrell returned to their trailer-cabana home on Circle Drive, Sunday, August 20, after clocking over 8,700 miles on their speedometer. After leaving Ocean Breeze they drove to New Jersey and visited with many of Joe's relatives. They then drove to Missouri and picked up Mrs. Whitlow and took her with them to Wyoming where they stayed with Stella's daughter for a month. On their return south, they had reached Tupelo, Miss., when they decided to go to Texas and visit some relatives there, right close to the L.B.J. ranch. While they saw the farm buildings quite plainly they were not allowed to enter the ranch gates. Security guards were on duty there. When the Sorrell's were asked if they felt the heat on their return, both said no. While at Casper, Wyoming, the nights were quite cool at that 6,000 ft. elevation, but the days were very hot. They say it feels nice to be back and they are resting after their rather strenuous trip.

Reverdys Home From N. J.

Maurice and Flora Reverdys are back after spending almost three months in New Jersey. They spent over a month with their daughter Grace Eigensaugh at River Edge. They also visited Maurice's brother and many old friends. One of these was Sarah Fernndorf who they found very much improved in health. Due to ill health Sarah was unable to get to Ocean Breeze last winter but this winter she expects to return.

While visiting their daughter, Edith Sheen, at Southampton, L.I., they attended the wedding of their grandson also the christening of their great grand son.

They called on their Park neighbors, the Klavans and the Sunds and found them all well. The Reverdys say that the weather was cold and wet and it is a treat to return to the Florida sunshine even if it is hot.

Bill 186 Defeated

The following letter will be of interest to all Ocean Breeze A.A.R.P. members.

Dear Chapter Officers,

It gives me a great deal of pleasure to announce to you that through the cooperative efforts of all the AARP Chapters in Florida we have succeeded in defeating House Bill No. 186.

This bill as you know would have restricted your rights as a Florida citizen to order certain prescriptions via the U.S. Mail.

We wish to thank you personally for the individual efforts that the Chapter officers throughout the State gave to us and a special thanks to all you Chapter members who took the time to write to their local representatives and congressmen.

Bea Barritt returned to her home on Palm Lane, August 6, after spending several weeks with her son at Quincy and daughter at Needham, Mass. Bea says this past summer was the worst Massachusetts has had for 70 years. The unusually cold, damp weather has been ruinous for beach concessions. She is glad to get back to our Florida sunshine.

Mr. & Mrs. George Millar returned August 27 from their trip to N.Y. and L.I. They visited the Kronenbitters at Highland Lake, N.Y., and stayed at a hotel on Greenwood Lake, about 25 miles away. Fishing was very poor due to an infestation of eel grass in the lake. They also visited the Papes who have a nice home on the Great South Bay, L.I. There was a nice breeze coming from the river the day I called, and Mrs. Millar was really enjoying it as she said, "I'm glad to be back."

Freda Peterkin Back From Hawaii

A nights flight brought me from Hawaii to San Francisco. Once again we changed our watches two hours, this time ahead.

At Lake Merritt we stopped for "Childrens' Fairyland." Each child was given a key which would unlock a certain book which started the music suitable to the attraction such as, "Three Little Pigs", "Little Miss Muffet", etc.

In late afternoon we changed busses and a Chinese guide took over and later left us at The "Golden Pavillion."

Our guide then took us thru "China-town." We went in one store with it's large golden Budda and shopped for souvenirs. Then to our bus again. We passed the cable cars. As usual they were packed and people were hanging on the sides. I wondered how fares were collected. The lights of the city spread out below us were truly a wonderful sight. After visiting Fisherman's Wharf we were returned to our hotels.

The highlight of the Sunday tour was perhaps the "Seventeen mile drive" with it's famous homes. We followed a winding mountain road up to Carmel where we did some shopping. On our return journey I counted 90 turns of the road.

I returned by plane by way of New Orleans to Melbourne and then bus to Fort Pierce, where I was met by the Cooks, Tuesday morning and here I am home again after a very delightful travel holiday.

Bushnells Take Bus Tour To Expo 67

Mr. & Mrs. Harold Bushnell took a bus tour recently which to us sounded very attractive. It was a fourteen day tour to Expo 67 and return. The feature that specially appealed to the Bushnells was that the whole trip was unhurried.

Mrs. Bushnells says she thoroughly enjoyed the entire trip, especially the conducted tours of the various cities. Their stop at Niagara Falls was highlighted by lunching atop the Canadian Pacific's 380 foot Skylon, in the revolving restaurant, within sight of the Falls.

They enjoyed the six days of Quebec scenery, travelling 168 miles along the St. Lawrence River, and almost as many miles through the eastern countryside.

In Quebec city they had lunch in the luxurious Le Chateau Fontenac Hotel, then spent the afternoon sightseeing that interesting city.

The Saturday and Sunday were spent at Expo 67 but the Bushnells said they didn't enjoy it. The grounds were so very crowded and one had to wait so long to see anything. Possibly the weekend crowd would make it worse.

Their hotel in Montreal was the luxurious Le Chateau Champlain, another grand Canadian Pacific hotel, 30 stories high.

Their tour of Toronto took them to the Casa Loma, Canada's famous castle in the heart of Toronto. On their return journey they toured the historical battlegrounds of Gettysburg before continuing on to Jacksonville where they arrived August 12. Harold says, "We have had two weeks of luxurious living, but it's nice to be home. Now I can go fishing."

Octagenarians Celebrate

Three Octagenarians had birthdays last week. Mrs. Emily Ewing on North Sixth celebrated her 82nd birthday be attending a dinner party at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods on Arch Street.

Ralph Sawyer on South Fifth was 83 on August 25th. He had the pleasure of a Ray Scamehorn says an old friend of the family, Mrs. Edna Boom of Elgin, Ill., spent a night with them last week and left August 24.

Mr. & Mrs. Frank Wittnebert's youngest daughter had a birthday August 18, so her parents took her to the Outrigger for dinner as a celebration.

Steve Stephens gets in two of three hours fishing every day. Last Monday he boated 25 croakers fishing in the St. Lucie, Saturday, August 26, he got quite an assortment; 1 snook, 2 trout, 1 margate, 5 snapper and 7 jacks.

visit from his grandson, Peter Foley, wife and children, from Natick, Mass.

Mrs. Sarah Miller, sister to Mrs. Harry Hoke, graduated from the octagenarian class August 24 when she attained the ripe old age of 90. While her sight and hearing are not too good, her features are well preserved and her mind is quite alert. While television is not practical she gets a lot of pleasure out of her portable radio and is a keen baseball fan. The Chicago White Sox is her favorite team and she says she feels she knows every one of the players personally. Sunday mornings, she never fails to tune in the Rev. Fulton Sheen, at the Stuart First Baptist Church. She says he is leaving August 27, and she will miss him. During the day many relatives and friends dropped in to congratulate her and to wish her many more happy birthdays.

We extend congratulations to all three celebrants.

The accident, investigated by Deputy Sheriff Morgan Sprott, occurred on SR-707, about a mile south of Ocean Breeze Park, Jensen Beach.

The Spaker car was knocked into a utility pole where it overturned. It was estimated a total loss. Damage to the Mason vehicle was estimated at $400. Stpak was taken to Martin Memorial Hospital.

Shortly after 7 a.m. Friday, a car slammed into a bulk storage tank at the Kayo Gas Station on US 1 in North Stuart, spilling 500 gallons of gasoline over the ground.

The car, owned by Lerome Burgess, Hobe Sound, pulled into the station for water, according to patrolman Billie Chase. Burgess, who had been driving it, put water in the radiator, and Preston Lowery, 37, Hobe Sound, slipped behind the wheel. Lowery put the car in reverse, then into forward and hit the tall tank. He was charged with reckless driving and causing an accident.

The car was called a total loss; damages to the tank were estimated at $1,000.

Five Martin County High School seniors escaped injury in a rear-end collision Monday at 8:05 a.m. at the intersection of SR 76 and Monteres Road, Stuart.

A car driven by Judy Kay Tripp, 17, with Linda Millan, 17, a passenger, crashed into the rear of a car driven by Carlos V. Hudson, 17, in which Sue Crook and Jeff Bruner, both 17, were passengers, according to Deputy Sheriff Melvin C. Waldron. The Hudson car had stopped for a red light, but the Tripp car didn't, Waldron said.

Miss Tripp was charged with failure to have her vehicle under control. Damages were estimated at $100 to each vehicle.

Thousands Show

Family Day On Jensen Causeway

It certainly was a family day on the Jensen Beach Causeway as thousands seeking entertainment took part in the annual Labor Day celebration of the Jensen Chamber of Commerce. Family day was the theme, and picnic baskets mixed with bingo, boat races and kids races as the crowd stayed for sun, fun and fellowship in one of the most successful events in Chamber history.

"I believe that our causeway is becoming known as a fun spot for people all over this area," said Chamber President Frank Forsberg. "Our fireworks, boat races, and organized fun offer so much, and the people are taking advantage of our efforts. It is really rewarding."

In the boat races, fourteen year old Melvin Kaiser teamed with aged Charlie Bachelier (who admits to being "over 65") to win the youngest and oldest race drivers in the family boat races. In the races, the Outriggerjet Classes were won by John Stavely (0 to 34), Gordon Vanous (35 to 44), Mike and Ken Adams (45 to 69), Mike and Tom Fogt (70 to 89) and Herman Betts (90 and up).

Eighteen boats out of the twenty-two entered finished the race. Betts, the Fogts and Gene Pollard took top honors in overall racing. Trophies donated by Ralph Evinrude and Frances Langford in the name of Miss Langford's Outrigger Restaurant were awarded to the winning three places in each division.

Carnival booths were open in the two small pavilions and "The Preceptors", a rock band, played during the afternoon. Booths operated by the Girl Scouts, directed by Mrs. Jackie Hall; the Jensen Fireworks Committee and Chamber members were busy all day awarding prizes to the players. Foot races were run by children for prizes handed out by the Jensen Lions Club, who handled the races for the day.

Ed Snyder and several helpers from the Jensen Beach Women's Association handled the bingo activities for the Chamber, and reported an "excellent turnout through-out the day".

Masters of ceremonies were Al Walker and Frank Wacha, Co-chairmen of the entire day of play were Chamber President Forsberg and Mirror editor Dick Campbell.

Other committees working on the event included; food, chairmaned by Mr. and Mrs. Will Bowman; cooking, Don Wilkie; prizes, Mrs. Hazel Forsberg; muscle crew, Wayne Dailey; sound, Al Walker; foot races, Edwin Miller; horseshoes, John Hughes; cold drinks, Harry Lentz; transportation, Chuck Hall; cooking equipment, Jensen Volunteer Firemen; ambulance, Martin Wahl; and traffic control on water and land by members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, the Sheriff's Department and the Conservation Department.

TALKIN' TEAM- Al Walker and Frank Wacha, above, kept the crowd informed of the goings on at the Labor Day Celebration on the Causeway Monday. They again ably handled the mike, taking turns as masters of ceremonies.

Sandy Bingham Is Junior

Bonnie Sue Brown Is Miss Martin County

Bonnie Sue Brown, a former Miss Stuart Jaycee, won the title of Miss Martin County Monday night at the annual Jaycee Labor Day Pageant. Tears poured from the eyes of the new queen as the audience roared and applauded its approval, and former queen Miss Karen Cook placed the jeweled crown on the head of Miss Brown.

The 17 year old Miss in County High School Auditorium was in her capacity as the announcement was made. Two other popular contestants, Miss Sharon Jones and Miss Durley Ann Howard won the first and second runner-up positions.

Miss Brown, a 17-year old Palm Beach Junior College voice major, also won the coveted "Miss Congeniality" award, having been elected by the pageant contestants.

In the junior division, Miss Sandy Bingham, an eighth grade fifteen-year old attending Stuart Junior High, won the Miss Stuart Jaycee Division. Miss Cathie Cortley and Miss Deana Gary won first and second runner-up positions. Miss Bingham was crowned by retiring queen, Miss Cathie Wyatt.

Master of ceremonies for the night was Tony Romano, singing guitarist now featured at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant. Romano was assisted by Jaycees Paul Judd and Kermit Tucker, entertainment for the night was provided by a new group, The Hijatovys.

Judges were Mrs. Marsha Bihar, assistant home economics agent in Palm Beach County; J. C. Williams, a Palm Beach Jaycee, and Jaycee national director Waddy Batson.

Contending in the Miss Martin County Division, along with the winners, were Miss Lawanda Edmondson, Miss Betty Lee Garrett, Miss Sheri Johnson, Miss Pat Lamfreous, Miss Marta Vivas and Miss Pam Schreckengast.

In the Miss Stuart Jaycee contest, in addition to the winners, were Miss Judi Bruns, Miss Vicki Cooper, Miss Karen Dailey, Miss Sonja Fuller, Miss Lisa Lamoree, Miss Linda Langebeio, Miss Rose L., Miss Sally McArthur, and Miss Cindy Soulsais.

Zoning Violation

A couple has filed suit against a local fish dealer that they charge is in violation of zoning by operating a wholesale fish house in Fort Salerno.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zimmerman have filed a permanent restraining order against H. H. Crane, owner of Crane's Seafood in Fort Salerno.

The Zimmermans own and operate a trailer park immediately across a 30-foot canal from Crane's business.

The Zimmermans charge that the scraping of steel shovels on the cement and the noise made by trucks during all hours of the night have caused several of their tenants to complain and that some have moved out.

The battle began in October 1966 when Crane opened the fish house as a "retail" business. H-S-A zoning in the area permits retail trade but not wholesale. The Zimmermans claim Crane is conducting a wholesale business operation.

Crane had previously admitted to County Attorney Dean Tooker conducting wholesale trade at the site and, according to Tooker, agreed to stop.

Crane has moved his sales transactions to Independent Fisheries, located nearby. However, the loading, icing and cleaning of fish still goes on at the old location, according to Zimmerman.

The question boils down to what constitutes "wholesaling" of fish. The Zimmermans claim that it is the loading, icing and cleaning of the fish that constitutes the nuisance, not the transaction of cash. They claim that the amount of retail trade done at the store does not justify the large volume of fish handled during a single day.

Crane said Saturday that no "wholesaling" had been conducted since July when he, after consultation with county officials, agreed to quit wholesaling.

The Zimmermans took action themselves because the county legal department, headed by Tooker, would have been unable to file suit on their behalf for quite some time.

Tooker said his office is swamped with nearly a hundred legal matters, and he has to take things as they come.

Road Work Begins

Work on a one-mile stretch of the Pratt-Whitney Road, SR 711, is getting under way this week, Martin County Commission Chairman John F. Saunderson said Thursday.

Dickerson, Inc., of Stuart, which has the $51,461.75 contract, is preparing the area for paving by clearing the 200-foot right-of-way, providing culverts, drainage and grading.

The one-mile road extends from the county line to SR-710 in Palm Beach County.

Dickerson also has the $199,902.48 contract for a three-mile stretch of SR-711, from SR-708 to SR-76. The work order has not yet been signed for the project, Saunderson said.

Dickerson is now working on another project in Martin County, to be completed in November, i.e., the Jensen Beach-Rio Access Road, at a cost of $129,949.

A Hoax

Kids' Day Tickets Not From Mirror

Tickets for a bogus "kid's day" in Jensen Beach, supposedly sponsored by The Mirror, were mailed to local businessmen last week. Calls began coming into the Mirror office Wednesday afternoon questioning the tickets, and the event.

Investigation into the case of fraud on the part of whoever perpetrated the hoax is being pursued by U.S. Postal Inspector, O. B. Perkins from West Palm Beach, and by Sheriff Roy Baker.

"It's a cruel hoax on the kids in our county," said Mirror publisher, Dick Campbell. "Some merchants will probably give tickets to some kids and they will expect to have a good time."

"We plan no kid's day at present, we have just finished our cooking show, and had our hands full with the Labor Day festivities in Jensen Beach and Stuart when we learned of the ticket mailings. The tickets are bogus, and have no value," he added.

The tickets are a standard promotional type of ticket used by the traveling kids day shows, carnivals and small circuses. The ticket is usually sold by an advance man who works with local groups putting on the shows, usually for some charity. An unscrupulous advance man, with access to such tickets and a rubber stamp, could easily send out tickets under the name of any sponsoring group.

The ticket promises youth acts, aerialists and performing animals, with each ticket good for three rides. The bogus tickets have a date of September 16 stamped across the front, with the Mirror as sponsor.

BLOCKING PROGRESS- Seemingly standing in the way of progress is this horse as he bars the path on Cove Road. The Cove Road project has received considerable attention lately as efforts have been made to acquire right-of-way so the road may be paved and become the major thoroughfare to the proposed County Beach on the south side of the inlet.

Each of the committees has elected two people to represent the community on the CAC board. Named were Hurst and Preston from Hobe Sound, McKnight and Ara Bell Parker, Booker Park, and Meuse and Lorene Grant from East Stuart.

Immediate objectives, Dr. Bost said, include a community survey this month, and enlistment of interest in the activities of the CAC, especially as channeled through the Neighborhood Committees.

Mortuaries Zoning Action Postponed

A motion by City Commissioner J. M. Hartman to carry over to the Sept. 25 meeting of the Stuart City Commission, the request to expand all three residential zonings to include mortuaries, was unanimously passed Monday night by the commission.

Hartman also suggested that the commissioners meet with members of the City Planning Advisory Board before their next meeting.

The request was made by attorney W. J. Crary, representing Baird Funeral Home of Fort Pierce, which now operates a local ambulance service.

The funeral home's original proposal for building a mortuary at E. Ocean Blvd. and Hospital Ave., in Stuart, met with opposition of residents in the area, who said the home would create a traffic and noise nuisance.

Because of the opposition, the funeral home abandoned the E. Ocean Blvd. site, according to Crary. He now asks for the expansion of all three zonings to include mortuaries.

The subject will be discussed at the Sept. 25 meeting of the commission.

"I want to congratulate you on a job well done and ..." began County Commissioner Herb Brunner at the meeting of the board Tuesday. Jupiter Co. Seeks Court Order

A court order to void the assessment made by the Martin County Commission, sitting as the Board of Adjustment, is being sought by the St. Lucie-Jupiter Co., which owns land on Jupiter Island.

Suit was filed Monday by W. R. Scott, Stuart attorney, on behalf of the Chicago, Ill., firm. The suit was filed in Circuit Court naming the County commissioners, Al-ton Andrews, tax collector; Clyde Pearson, tax assessor and Fred O. "Bud" Pearson, state comptroller.

The court is being asked that the original assessment be reinstated and that the court restrain the collection of taxes based on the present assessments.

The assessment recently was increased from $135,400 to $250,000. The property has been appraised for more than a million dollars, according to County Commissioner Frank Wacha, who said the increase was overdue.

Assessments on two other properties in the area were also increased substantially, with a total of $1,229,600 increase on the three properties.

Land owned by W. H. Malvin, Palm Beach County, increased from $83,100 to $433,450 in assessment; and that of Charles H. Bradshaw, also of Palm Beach County, from $56,500 to $393,050.

At the present time the county is planning to condemn the St. Lucie-Jupiter Co. property in order to obtain necessary right-of-way for Cove Road.

Board Says Okay

Teachers Ask Special Legislature Meeting

The Martin County Teachers' Association and the Martin County Principals' Association asked the county school board to request a special session of the Florida legislature to deal with problems educational in Florida in a letter given to the board Tuesday night.

The letter was received calmly by the members of the school board, who unanimously agreed to go along with the request of the teachers and principals.

The letter defined the present chaos in the teacher-legislature battle as an "educational tug-of-war", and asked that the board write a letter to the governor asking for the special session. Frank DeStefano moved immediately that the letter be written.

Jean Murfin said, "The spirit of the letter is just as we feel (on the board)". When questioned if the letter would ask that the session be held immediately, Mrs. Murfin said, "I don't believe a special session should be called tomorrow," adding that the board could not set the date.

In another move by the board, an appointive or elective superintendent of instruction will be on the ballot this November, along with a millage of four mills, the same as in the past, on the district current levy.

County Honors Berkey

A resolution was passed by the county commission this week, a memorial to Andrew Berkey who passed away recently in Palm Beach. Berkey had been one of the leading proponents of civil defense in the county and served on the CD board. He also was a constant donor to worthy local charities and to the various public service agencies, such as the hospital and library.

Jack Saunderson, County Commission Chairman, said, "Andy Berkey was a quiet man, never in the limelight, but he did so very much to help this county." The resolution recognizes the "great assistance" of Berkey to the county.

Thanks A Lot .....But!

A resident of Coral Gardens thanked the county with a full measure of pleasure at the county commission meeting last Tuesday, and the commissioners were smiling happily, and with surprise, as they started to say "Thank you"..."people just don't say things nice like that any more," when the man said, "But"

Sam Hover congratulated the county on "the excellent job on Harrison Avenue drainage." He lauded the county, County Engineer Fred Bell, the cooperation of the county crews,..and all smiled.

"But,.," said Mr. Hover, and the smiles faded as the audience chuckled. Hover then asked an explanation of the law pertaining to the mowing of lots, and added that no one, especially the developer of the land at Coral Gardens, be given preferential treatment in the mowing of lots, and that the palmetto trees be removed.

County Attorney Dean Tooker agreed to get together with Hover to explain the new lot-mowing law as revised by the legislature this year.

It was pointed out that this is not to be regarded as school but fun, bringing greater boating pleasure through better knowledge.

County Actions

At the regular county commission meeting this Tuesday, the following actions were taken:

The county accepted a bid of $1,130.50 for a new copying machine for the office of the county engineer, Fred Bell, from a West Palm Beach firm.

Advertised for bids on the widening and resurfacing of North Fork Drive in North River Shores, north and west of the city limits of Stuart. Stuart had paved the road and widened it to twenty feet from eighteen feet. Funds will be taken from District A to pay for the project. Commissioner Frank Wacha said that the road "is quite hazardous as it is, and should be widened to match the city road."

Advertised for two miles of fence on Pratt Whitney Road, a mile of fence on either side of the road from State Road 76 east one mile.

Accepted a request of Bill Berry to deed back to the owners rights-of-way at the intersection of Bonita Ave. and St. Lucie Blvd., after the county engineer reported that there was no need for the property). Lots 37, 38, 40 and 41 will be returned.

Asked county attorney Dean Tooker to look into the legality and cost of reserving Held Court Road when property owners agreed to pay the cost of the job in the Vista Salerno Subdivision south of Cove Road.

Asked Commissioner Elmer Powers to look into a request for the return of rights-of-way, with the county attorney, on the formerly proposed Glades Highway, paralleling the FEC Railroad, in western Martin County. The road took a different course in the final grade, and the county has no reservation for the property.

Asked the chairman of the county commission, Jack Saunderson, to sign warrants for the zoning board on violations in the junk car regulations. Violators include Ernest L. King and Frances L. Burkee of Port Salerno, and David L. Smith of Hobe Sound.

Moved the meeting of Oct. 24 to the 31st of that month due to a conflict with the annual convention of the state association of county commissioners.

Heard commissioner Wacha report that $14,296.13 in interest was collected on investments of surplus county funds this year.

Heard a report on the condition of the Britt Road detour by commissioner Herb Brunner, who said there had been many complaints by residents on the condition of the detour. Brunner said the detour was graded and was in use while the Britt Road Bridge was being constructed.

Asked for legal advice on action to lease a "rotavator", a roto-tiller and grader for the parks department for use in the parks and on baseball fields for 60 days.

Asked the county clerk to keep the books of the county open for 30 days past the end of the fiscal year to allow for payment of bills which would be dated at the end of the year, September 30.

Peabody Survey Gets Underway

The Peabody College survey of Martin County schools system has started, according to an announcement by the superintendent's office on Monday.

The Nashville, Tenn., college study was authorized by the school board several months ago. Martin County Taxpayers' Association is donating $1,000 toward the $12,500 cost of the survey.

The school board also announced that Dr. J. W. Whitlock, associate director of the division of surveys for field services, is working on the financial setup of the school system.

Cub Scouts Organize

Jensen Beach Cub Scouts, Pack 4401, are reorganizing for the coming season. The first den meeting will be held Thursday, Sept. 14, at 7 p.m. at the Cub Scout hut in back of Jensen Beach Community Church.

All boys from eight through ten years of age are invited to join. Approximately 10 boys are members at the present time, according to Mrs. Alice Hickey and Mrs. Mary Lou Habegger, den mothers, who hope to expand the pack.

H. C. Hoffner is cub master.

September's theme is "Trail to Scouting", a program designed to interest young boys in this activity and explain scouting.

The first pack meeting will be Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Community Church at which time family games will be played. Parents are invited to attend and are urged to participate in the formation and activities of the group. Registration forms and other information can be obtained from the den mothers or cub master.

Shelter Spaces Available At Bank

Over 800 new shelter spaces have been approved by Civil Defense, according to CD Director Al Keston. Located in the First National Bank, Stuart, the building can now accommodate 945, he said, using the entire top floor for shelter.

A re-survey of all public buildings in Martin County is being conducted by CD leaders. The bank was the third building this month to have its shelter spaces expanded.

Over 600 spaces were added recently at the Instructional Center on E. Ocean Blvd., Stuart, and more than 500 were added at the courthouse.

A federal inspection survey team, contracted by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, is expected momentarily in Martin County to view the added shelter spaces. If they are accepted, the three buildings will be eligible for canned goods stock from the government.

Keston is continuing his survey this week but has been delayed for a few days by routine hurricane precautions necessarily taken by his office. Next on his list is St. Joseph Catholic Church, he said.

Mirror Bowler Of The Week Begins

Recognition of The Mirror bowler of the week in Martin County is being established this week by officers of the Martin County ABC and WIBC, according to Joe Svec, president of ABC here.

The bowler will be called "The Mirror Bowler of the Week", and will be featured each week on the sports page of The Mirror.

Candidates for bowler of the week in both the women's and men's bowling leagues will be selected by an ABC-WIBC committee. The weekly selection will be based on the improvement and the outstanding achievement of the local bowlers at Jensen Lanes.

Serving on The Mirror committee will be Larry Falivena, manager of the lanes; Warren G. Shipes, Jr., Svec, Doris Fleming, Etta Rojt and Edith Osterholm.

Weekly winners of the bowling honor cannot repeat during a bowling year, and at the end of the year all winners will compete in a tourney, sponsored by Jensen Lanes, that will select the King and Queen of Bowling in Martin County.

Permanent trophies are being established by Jensen Lanes to be displayed in the lanes, and each year the winners' names will be engraved on a plate.

Auto Inspection State Law Is Passed

A semi-annual inspection of automobiles will be forthcoming to all Florida residents through the recent passage of a new law by the state legislature.

The state has requested the counties to take over the job of inspecting the automobiles as it would be turned over to private business, as some states do.

Locally, Jack Saunderson, chairman of the county commission, asked that the county take over this responsibility.

The cost to the county would be approximately $3,500 for equipment, plus a building for work area.

Cost to the motorist for these inspections, if county operated, would be $1.75 per inspection, with only five cents going to the state for the sticker.

The county is to be notified by the state 60 days prior to the effective date of the law, and the board, following Saunderson's suggestions, indicated it would write to the State Motor Vehicle Department for more information before going further with any plans.

The county commissioners delayed a decision on the asking of bids for a motor grader by county engineer Fred Bell when commissioner Wacha reported that the county would be operating on cash carryover until November. Bell said that the present grader was out of service and a new one was needed. The action was tabled until the last meeting in October.

Local Pigeon Wins Race

A local racing pigeon won the Indian River Racing Pigeons Club race on Sunday, flying an average speed of 41 miles per hour from Sanford, Florida, to Jensen Beach.

The bird is owned by Michael Pauly and Bill Kenny who operate the Tradewinds Loft, a pigeon roost on S. Indian River Drive.

The winning bird was a blue check hen born in 1967, which raced against birds born during this year. The pigeons were released at the Sanford Air Force Base.

The hen flew 125.008 miles to the loft, averaging 1031.74 yards per minute. Speed is determined in terms of yards from the release to the loft.

Fourteen members of the club raced 7 birds. The birds were carried to Sanford in a custom-built pigeon carrier trailer.

This was the third race of the year.

Mr. & Mrs. Raymond Reid's new home

Reids Have New Mobile Home

Mr. & Mrs. Raymond Reid first came to Ocean Breeze in February 1948 and spotted their trailer at the corner of Fifth and Pepper and made this their winter home for many year. They are both in love with Florida and Ocean Breeze in particular so this summer they decided to make this park their permanent place of abode, thus saving the big task of changing residences twice a year and the work involved in that change-over.

When Ray makes up his mind, things begin to move and in next to no time their residence at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and their accumulation of many years of furniture and other "treasures" was disposed of and they hit for Ocean Breeze.

The Reids were noted for their lovely lawn and flower arrangements and it was with much regret that they had to leave their nice corner lot in order to get a lot that would accommodate the large trailer they wanted. However Jack Heaton suggested that Ray take a look at a corner lot in the "South Ten" that had become available. It was just what the Reids were looking for. They had a Windale 12 x 56 mobile home placed on this lot, added a what Lillian calls her family room, on the East side and a car port and "Playroom" for Ray on the west side. Ray immediately started to work on a lawn and flower garden. He has a green thumb and already, that corner lot begins to look like the beauty spot the Reids had on South Fifth.

Ray and Lillian celebrate their 65th wedding anniversary on the 25th of this month, and friends will be wishing them many more happy years together to enjoy their new home.

SUBSTITUTE--Tom and Nellie Cook left for Jamaica Sept. 8, where they will spend the next two weeks visiting their son, daughter-in-law and family. Freda Peterkin, above, of 21 Sixth Ave., is taking over the Ocean Breeze page during their absence and will appreciate all news items.

Nixons Write

Freda Peterkin has a letter from Jim and Ellen Nixon written July 23 in which they say, "We have our house trailer parked in a shady yard on Ballston Spa and are having a little shower."

"Eva Frey was our welcome wagon hostess in Afton. She looks wonderful but Fred is quite feeble and shaky."

"The Clarence Hendrickson's who used to live on Seventh are not very well."

"Mrs. Matthews is well. Her trailer home is on a large fruit farm owned and operated by a daughter and family."

"Fred and Ethel Lowe have just been here. They look well, I'm happy to report. They called on the Failings one Sunday and found them both well."

Best wishes
Jim and Ellen

Tanners Have Accident

Erema Sackett in a letter to Mrs. Ray Scamehorn tells of an unfortunate accident to Willis and Liz Tanner. Apparently they were returning from the Outer Banks with their trailer when a car hit them from the rear, demolishing the trailer and put their propane gas bottles in the station wagon. It took two hours to get them apart. They left the trailer at Kill Devil Hills. The car had to be repaired. The over-taking car showed 210 feet of skid marks. Neither of the Tanners were hurt.

She concludes by saying that Vic has been recovering from a severe case of bursitis. Five weeks ago the doctor gave him three shots, partly cortisone.

Park Personnel Listed

It has been brought to our attention that many residents of Ocean Breeze do not know who our Aldermen are. One lady suggested using this page to list the names of our governing board. Here it is: -

Mayor, Harry Hoke; President of Board, Mary Adrean; Aldermen, Grace Lewis, Betty MacNab, C.E., Hoke (Gene), Walter Tabor, and Frank Bruynseels; Town Clerk, (pro, Tem.) Nellie Cook; The Town Marshall is A. Nelssen; Office stenographers are Arlene Woodruff and Mildred Marsland.

Personals

Rena Ice and Joseph Edmund Duguay have returned from their honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and thence to the New England States, where they visited kin relatives. On their return, they stopped to visit with Rena's children and grandchildren, in Ohio. Both of them enjoyed the "tripping" but state they are happy to be back in a warmer climate, than they found in the north, and at home on Palm Road.

Among some of the residents of the park are Marie and Clarence Rhoades of 4th Street. He is still confined to bed-- but is feeling better than earlier in the summer, after his fall, at Glen Spey, N.Y.

Betty and George Thompson, of 10th Street were pleasantly surprised when their son, Gilbert and his wife, Phyllis Thompson, arrived here last week from Salisbury, North Carolina, for a few days visit.

Marie Tweed, of 5th Avenue, returned after a three month visit with her family at Lafayette Hill, Pa., she visited with her daughter, Phyllis and son-in-law, Steve Bradley and their family there. A short visit with her sister and neice, in Rehobah Beach, Delaware and there Marie felt very much at home in their new mobile trailer. At the grandson's, Martin Bradley, Jr., in Princetown, West Virginia, Marie enjoyed the scenery of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Another daughter, Jean and son-in-law, Preston Heckler, at Landscale, Pa., tried to persuade Marie to stay a little longer- but the cold weather there, but the cold weather there, necessitating to a fire each night for comfort, hurried Marie back south, to her home here.

Alice Heaton, Jack's daughter, reports that his surgery on Wednesday, September 6, seems to have been successful. She is unsure of how long his stay in Martin Memorial Hospital will be, but many friends both in the park and elsewhere trust that the knee will improve steadily.

Another park friend, hospitalized in Martin Memorial Hospital, is Frank Hawkins. His condition is improving and with his hearing-aid restored to him, time is not tiresome to Frank, now.

Otto and Trudy Chihas/ were both busy scrubbing and cleaning house when I called August 17. I believe they were glad of the opportunity to take a rest while telling me of their enjoyable six weeks spent mostly in Tennessee visiting relatives and friends. They had to return to Ocean Breeze sooner than they had planned due to an accident Trudy had. She had picked a basket full of tomatoes in her daughter Vivian's back yard and on returning to the house and stepping down from a low wall, she twisted her ankle, and down went Trudy, tomatoes and all. We are glad to say it was just a sprain, and we trust she will soon be back to normal.

Walter Scott received word that his sister, Estella Scott, had died, so he left hurriedly the next day, August 19, to attend the funeral at Trenton, N.J. He stayed for a week to be attend to business at Morrisville, Pa., before returning to the park.

The day he returned he received word that his son-in-law had been in a car accident and was in the hospital with broken ribs, a broken nose and spine injuries. The son-in-law, Warren Smith, was driving home from work alone in Somerville, N.J. It was pouring rain at the time and on turning a corner the collision occurred. Walter's friends extend their sympathy in his time of trouble.

Lill Hawkins writes:- "...My sister and I have been cleaning out the attics as we are trying to sell the house. I didn't know I was such a hoarder. I must have thousands of cards and letters. I have an apartment next door to my sister's just across the street from the Cathedral so it is very handy. My step-son has been doing everything for me. I don't know what I would have done without him. The Barretts will be in St. Paul next week. It is so cold this morning, Sept. 1, sure could use flannels. Think I'll send some of our weather down to you."

Love from
Lill

Mrs. Leonard Smith returned to her trailer-cat ana home at Third and Sixth, Saturday, Sept. 2. Her son, Carl Bjorling, drove her down from her home town of Willow Grove, near Philadelphia, Pa. He tells us he made the trip in 29 hours and returned to Pa., Sept. 5.

Mrs. Smith's step-son, Gordon Smith, daughter, Sandra, and Sandy's cousin Jo Ann Melin, all from Merritt Island visited for a time on Labor Day.

Mrs. Andy Pickard heard from Gertrude Rakes at Muncie, Ind. She says Claude is getting along quite well this summer.

Scotty Smith heard from Walter Thompson of Bay Drive to say they had attended Expo 67 and had done a lot of entertaining this summer. Their grand-daughter was married on Labor Day.

Teresa Bolin, who broke her hip some time ago is getting around with the aid of a walker, as of August 27.

Sue Bayles is glad to be back from Michigan. She says that at last she can get warm.

Jarel Lyons of Cypress, is out of hospital and is now at his home at Hoopston, Ill., and getting along nicely.

Scotty and Agnes Smith celebrated their 44th wedding anniversary Sept. 6.

Gertrude Bushnell received a letter from Ben and Margaret Morgan in which they say they have travelled 9,136 miles so far. In addition to this they were, at the time of writing, on a trip with friends with car and trailer to the North West part of Washington state. They expected to get back to where they left their own trailer by Sept. 7. Mrs. Morgan adds:- "I guess we had better have our brakes working 100% after seeing the hilly streets in some of these cities."

Joe and Ruby Robinson on Bay Drive returned from Indianopolis last week. They spent about four months at 903 Eldorado Drive so they could be close to their daughter, Mrs. Sterling Raymond, and her two children. Except for the two weeks spent in Oklahome they spent the whole summer in Indianapolis where they have many relatives and friends. They talked to the Bill Byrnes over the phone before they left and they were well.

Joe loves to fish and he lost no time in getting his boat in the water. The day I called, he, Bushnell, Tyree and Ronnie Moore were out fishing.

Mr. & Mrs. Walter Scott received a letter from Brownie Gill in Haines, Alaska, dated August 28. She writes:- "Gordie and I flew over the Arctic Circle to Fort Yukon and we are now at Haines where we will take the ferry to Prince Rupert. We will stop at Juneau for a couple of days and then on to Canada and Yakima, Wash., where we will visit his sister. Gordie caught five salmon today and is very happy with it. He is going again tomorrow."

As always

Harry Hokes Move To Fort Pierce

Mr. & Mrs. Hoke

Yes, Harry and Queena have a home at Fort Pierce. It was not too much of a surprise to us older residents of Ocean Breeze when we heard the news that Harry had bought a home, for we knew that the time must soon come when Harry would have to ease out of his harness and retire. He has stood up well under the strain of 30 years of planning, organizing and directing a trailer park which he has seen grow from nothing to what it is today.

Yes, it is time for the younger members of the family to shoulder the responsibilities of this Town of Ocean Breeze Park. With this in mind Harry bought a quiet, comfortable home where he and his good wife, Queena, can relax and enjoy a well deserved rest.

However we have not lost our Harry and Queena. They are still, and always will be, members of our Ocean Breeze family. They own home on the Fort Pierce inlet, is not so far away but that they can drive down often and keep in touch.

Their house faces the water, is just three minutes walk from the beach and from their front lawn and porch they can see the ocean and enjoy it's cooling breezes. We congratulate them.

Harry Hoke Remains Active In Ocean Breeze

"You've got it all wrong," said Harry Hoke, mayor of the Town of Ocean Breeze Park, "We are not retiring, we just got ourselves a place to get away from weekends and for an occasional rest."

Hoke was replying to The Mirror story last week that had him hanging up his spurs after almost 30 years of operating Ocean Breeze Park.

"I've had cards and letters and telegrams all asking if we were retiring," Hoke said, "and the people should be assured that we're not retiring and I are going to continue to be active in the town, and we have no intention of retiring."

The Hokes bought a home on the inlet at Fort Pierce. They travel up there occasionally for a restful afternoon, or morning, and relax in the park. They have not moved up there, said Harry.

"In fact," Hoke said, "last week we were up there and Queena looked at her watch and said, "come on, it's time to go home...time for supper."

This meeting will be held to take care of business and financial matters and to decide on a part-or full-time director. Nov. 10 has been set as a tentative date.

Cleary named Walter Crowell, Fred Bell, Joseph Greenlees and Dick Campbell as a committee to go to Tallahassee and confer with the Florida Development Commission. This group will assist the local committee in obtaining leads to bring light industry to Martin County.

The steering committee interviewed Frank Shugert, who is interested in becoming director of the board. Shugert, a management consultant who lives on Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach, represents industries in the north and indicated he would be on a part-time basis.

Coach Knott Says

Tiger Opener Will Be A Real Thriller

The opening game for the Martin County High School Tigers will be a real thriller of Indiana and, according to head coach Don Knott, will also be a tough one.

"The Pahokee boys are big and tough and will field a strong defensive team, he said. Last week the Pahokee team fought an equally strong Belle Glade eleven to a 0-0 tie. So we can expect a knock-down, drag-out game here Friday at Long Field and with the determined spirit of our boys, we can come out winners he commented optimistically.

We will use a two-platoon system as much as possible this year, said Knott. This will give the offensive and defensive units a chance to rest and play their positions better.

Most of the positions are two and three deep with equally good players and the starting lineup is still somewhat of a tossup, according to Knott. Some changes may be made before the Friday night tilt, but at press time the probable starting lineup will be as follows:

Wade Powell, le; Hartman or Kanarek, lt; R. Brown or R. Johnson, lg; Tommy Hill, c; McClain or Burnley, rg; A. Davis, rt; McIntyre or Estes, re; Drageeth or G. McHardy, qb; Stiller, Hudson or D. McHardy, fb; Conley or Lowe, lh; and Bruner, Mease or Burdge, rh.

Effective October 1

Bell Resigns, Takes St. Lucie Position

Fred Bell, popular Martin County engineer for the past four years, resigned this week to move up to the position of St. Lucie County administrator. The resignation took county commissioners, the press and many local residents by complete surprise.

Bell's resignation was received by the commissioners Sunday by mail. He released a copy of the letter to the press on Monday morning. Tuesday afternoon, at the regular meeting of the St. Lucie County Commission, Bell was approved for the position of county administrator.

The salary for Bell was "in excess of what he was making in Martin County", according to one St. Lucie County commissioner. Bell's Martin County pay was $14,000 a year.

Upon receipt of the letter, Martin County commissioners met singly and in groups with Bell in an effort to change his mind. Local businessmen also endeavored to gain reconsideration of the resignation, but to no avail.

The effort to keep Bell as county engineer continued past the time that he was approved as county administrator in the neighboring county. "We have exhausted every means," said Commissioner Herb Bruner. "All five commissioners agreed to try to get Bell to reconsider."

At 5:30 p.m. Tuesday when it was learned that Bell had accepted the post of county administrator in St. Lucie, Commissioner Frank Wachs, who had worked closely with Bell for the four years, said, "I am sure we all wish him every success in St. Lucie County. If there is anything we can do to help him, we will try. He has been of great service to the growth of Martin County."

In a statement to The Mirror on Tuesday evening, Bell said, "I have had over three hundred calls since Monday from the biggest, littlest, richest and poorest people in the county, and many from all over the state, asking me to reconsider my resignation. I must say I was overwhelmed by the reaction of the citizens.

"I certainly appreciate all the county has done for me, and I hope that the county appreciates all the things I was able to do for it. We made great progress in the past four years.

"I am looking forward to the challenge and opportunity in St. Lucie County with great expectations," Bell concluded.

Bell will take over the post October 1, when his resignation in Martin County becomes effective, in his letter to the members of the commission, Bell wrote, "September 28 will signal the end of four years of service as your county engineer and zoning director. During that time I have felt personal satisfaction as a member of your team in the progress made in zoning, building inspection and regulations, mosquito control, parks, and other public works, especially roads and bridges. I know there is still much to be done in all these areas; however, I find it necessary to tender my resignation and the date of termination, if you agree, will be October 1.

"This has not been an easy decision for me to make. I have come to love Martin County and consider it my home, but I sincerely feel that I can only grow in my profession through this act. I hope I will continue to have your personal friendship."

Martin County's loss became St. Lucie County's gain as county commissioners there expressed pleasure over the appointment of the experienced engineer to their top administrative post. Bell is a close personal friend of County Commissioners W. R. McCain and Cody Bailey.

Peabody Survey To Begin

Plans are being made for a survey of Martin County's school plant needs for the next five years, according to two state school survey specialists this week.

Superintendent of Schools James Navitsky met with the specialists, Don Lott and Oakley Highsmith to check details for the survey which will start October 12. The result of this state survey will dictate for the next five years what school buildings will be funded with state money.

At the present time, the George Peabody School survey is being conducted in the school system and will cooperate with the state's survey, Navitsky said. Another portion of the Peabody survey will begin Oct. 12, he said, and James A. Tyler, director of research and development for Richmond, Va., public schools will be conducting a survey of Martin County's professional school staff.

The Peabody final report is scheduled for April 1. The business management and finance portion began last week.

Panel To Talk About Conditions At County Jail

The public is invited to a 7:30 p.m. meeting today (Wednesday) which is being held by the Martin County League of Women Voters at the Library, existing conditions of the county jail will be discussed by a panel.

Attending the meeting and answering questions will be Sheriff Roy L. Baker and County Commissioner Herb Bruner.

Members of the League investigated conditions at the jail following a Grand Jury meeting where labeled conditions "deplorable."

New Dump Site Ready

Martin County's new dump site west of the turnpike is expected to be open and in operation this week, according to County Engineer Fred L. Bell on Monday. The shell road has been completed and will serve until it can be paved sometime within the next five years, he said. Martin County had been using the City of Stuart's dump, but moved to a temporary dump site in Hobe Sound until the present facilities were found.

229 Start Classes At St. Joseph

Classes are in session for 229 enrolled students at St. Joseph college in Jensen Beach, as of 8:40 a.m. Monday, Sept. 18.

Twelve states and three foreign countries are represented by the students who were oriented last week with sessions, registration and assemblies.

Fun was not forgotten, as the group took a sight-seeing tour to Miami, viewed films and visited the local beaches.

The college has 148 resident students this year, all awaiting completion of the new dormitory and cafeteria now under construction just west of the college. In the interim, the 120 men students are housed at the Pelican Hotel, Stuart while the 28 women reside at nearby 316 Tide Motel.

In addition to the resident students, there are 37 commuters and 44 sisters, for a total of 229.

Enrollment during the next few years is expected to increase to 500, according to Sister Mary Jerome, academic dean of the college, who promises that individual education and personal attention are of importance to instructors and will not be sacrificed by increased enrollment.

Students this week are buckling down to hard work at the modern, beautiful college located on a high ridge overlooking the intra-coastal Indian River.

RR Crossings Combined

Work will start in two or three weeks on combining two Florida East Coast grade crossings, according to City Manager Joe N. Crowder.

Plans have arrived from St. Augustine to combine Albany and First Street crossings, Crowder said on Wednesday. Railroad personnel cleared the right-of-way of all but single line tracks at both crossings and at E. 7th St., he added.

The project will start after the Florida Power and Light Company moves a pole.

Several months ago the city commission approved plans to eliminate the unguarded Albany St. crossing and move the First St. crossing and signals northward.

REORGANIZATION MEETING- Members of the Boy Scouts, troop #401, Jensen Beach, met last Thursday night at Jensen Beach Community Church to make plans for the coming season. Jensen Beach offers scouting activity for Cubs and Boy Scouts, Cadets and Girl Scouts with a well-rounded program.

Acquited In Forgery Case

Miss Marcia Lita Wollard, 22, of Palm Lake Park, was acquitted on a charge of forgery by Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge in circuit court last week. Two other charges for forged instruments were also dropped.

Miss Woolard, represented by attorney Alice Beasley, was acquitted when it was explained that she was signing checks at the direction of and with the knowledge of her employer, who initiated the suit.

Charles T. Carlton was state attorney.

The case of V.L. Underhill, Okeechobee, was continued until the beginning of December. He was charged with altering and defacing cattle brands.

Car Overturns

A car, driven by James S. Duvernois, Locks Road, Tropical Farms, left the pavement, traveled 720 feet in a ditch and overturned three times, landing upright on its wheels. The accident occurred Tuesday night on Kanner Highway, six miles from Stuart.

Duvernois, charged with failure to have his vehicle under control and for having no driver's license, was treated for cuts and bruises at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Deputy Sheriff Melvin C. Waldron, who investigated, said damages to the 1968 model car were estimated at $400.

CTA Pleased With School Board Action

Action taken by the Martin County School Board at its meeting last week was heartily approved by Classroom Teachers Association President Ed Howell. The Board had voted unanimously to send a letter to Gov. Claude Kirk asking that a special legislative session on education be called.

The action was taken after a request had been received from the CTA and the Principals Association that the board make the move.

Other action taken by the board included a move to let the people decide at the November election whether they want an elected or appointed school superintendent. Freeholders will also vote on a request of four mills by the school board.

School bus problems have been solved, according to Assistant School Superintendent Jack Simpson, who reported that almost everybus was over capacity. He said 83 children were seated in one bus, with most being picked up close to the school.

A work session will be held for the board on Oct. 3.

Perrys Move To Jensen Beach

Newcomers in the area are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perry who moved to 218 Spruce Ridge Road, Legion Heights, Jensen Beach, on August 1 from Richmond, Va.

The Perrys visited Florida four times and last year came to this area to see friends, the Fred Kacks, of North River Shores. They were especially impressed with Jensen Beach and are renting temporarily. They hope to build a home and live here permanently, they said.

Larry is employed by the Overholt Trailer Sales in Vero Beach.

Collection Nets $70

Cadets of the Civil Air Patrol, Stuart Squadron, worked hard and long Saturday collecting bottles, according to Ralph Randall.

The drive raised $70 which will be used to purchase study guides and text books to further their knowledge and qualifications in the Aerospace program.

Another collection drive will be held Saturday, Sept. 30, as some areas were not covered, Randall said. Residents are asked to call 287-4754 for pick-up.

About a dozen cadets and three vehicles took part in Saturday's drive. When one of the trucks broke down, a station wagon was pressed into service.

At lunch time, the group returned to CAP headquarters at the hangar at Witham Field, Stuart, where senior leaders charcoal-broiled hamburgers and served sodas to the crew.

Condemnation Asked In Cove Road Construction

Abstracts on the St. Lucie-Jupiter Co. property have been sent to the State Road Department in Fort Lauderdale, according to County Commission Chairman Jack Saunderson. Martin County is asking the SRD to condemn a right-of-way owned by the Chicago, Ill. company.

An answer is expected in 30 to 60 days when all the paper work is completed.

The 1,972 feet of right-of-way is holding up construction of Cove Road, Saunderson said. The company owns a 280-tract on Jupiter Island, also.

Assessment on the 280-tract was recently raised by the Martin County Board of Adjustment, from $125,600 to $750,000. A suit was filed recently in Circuit Court by attorney W. R. Scott for the company asking for an injunction to void the assessment.

Plans for a rifle range on a 144-acre tract west of U.S. #1, Port Salerno area, have been completed by the National Guard, according to Commissioner Timer Fowers, who said he has been conferring with Col. Charles M. Gilchrist on the matter.

NEW CONSTITUTION- Looking over the first draft of the new constitution for the United Fund in Jensen Beach and Rio are, left to right Alex Wilson, treasurer; Jacqueline Hall, president; Dr. A. J. Wiegand, third vice-president, and first vice-president Willard Bowman. The new constitution will be presented to the board of the fund drive at the annual meeting November 10.

Broad Responsibility

Jensen-Rio United Fund Revamps Organization For 1968 Drive In Area

A new constitution which broadens the responsibility of officers of the Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund was approved for submission to the members of the drive at the annual meeting of the fund on November 10, at a meeting of the executive board last Thursday at the Rio Civic Club.

The constitution was prepared to modernize the amendment-riddled document that has guided the United Fund through eight years of successful goal accomplishment by a committee composed of UF president Jacqueline Hall, Anita Hoke and Mardee St. Clair, and was received with high praise by the committee which met to set up the 1968 drive.

The number of officers in the United Fund was pared from four vice-presidents to two, making the officers number six, instead of eight. Also, officers were limited in tenure to two years in any one position. Officers include the president, first and second vice-presidents, corresponding and recording secretary, and treasurer.

The board of directors, previously fluctuating between twenty and thirty members, was pared down to fifteen.

A new fund drive committee was established to take the place of a drive chairman, and will consist of the executive committee plus three members at large. "I believe that this will take a lot of the very heavy responsibility off the drive chairman, and allow more people to make decisions," Mrs. Hall said in presenting the constitution to the board.

Another change in the constitution clarified the rights of participating agencies in the fund drive. Under the new constitution, agencies participating in the drive will not be able to hold supplementary drives for funds in the Jensen Beach-Rio area, and the section in the very concise and short document allows participating agencies to "hold special events or sell items of value if the residents of this area so desire their goods, entertainment, etc. The organization may advise where this service is available, but the initiative to gain this benefit then lies with the resident, not the organization. The final judge as to meeting this qualification shall be the executive committee."

The constitution also provides that a certified public accountant be a member of the finance committee.

4Mill Rate

Martin County voters will vote Nov. 7 on the question of retaining the district millage at 4 mills, which has been in effect since 1965. However, the school board has asked only a portion of that amount, Superintendent of Schools James Naritus pointed out Wednesday.

The county-wide millage for fiscal year 1967-68 has been set at 1.69b, he said, giving the final judgement of the school board is not levying all the millage voted by county residents.

The county-wide millage is needed for next future building program of additional educational and vocational program, Naritus pointed out, adding that the board is limited by the state as to how much increase can be made in general millage each fiscal year. General millage can be increased by only 10 per cent along with a five per cent referendum increase which must be approved by the state superintendent.

If voters do not pass the district millage, the building program would be curtailed to a point where the county could not match state funds.

Anticipated revenue from the 1.696 county-wide millage would be $3%,123 for the operation fund, according to school finance officer F. M. Boatright. Total collection in the operational budget would be $75,000 with $241,000 budgeted for capital improvement or building fund.

Kids'Day Saturday

Kids' Day, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Stuart, will be held Saturday, Sept. 30.

Judging of the parade will be held at 9 a.m. at the Youth Center. Prizes will be awarded to boys up to age 12 with the most unusually decorated bicycle; to girls for the prettiest decorated bicycle, and to boys and girls to age 7 for decorated tricycles. Prizes will also be awarded in a decorated doll carriage division for children to age 5.

A special $3.00 prize will be awarded to a model showing the most ingenuity in the age bracket from 6 to 12. Models will be exhibited at 9:30 a.m. at the Youth Center.

Starting at 10 a.m., a special movie will be shown at the Lyric Theatre, "Mustang, Go Home", and two cartoons. Attendance will be limited to children between the ages of 5 and 12, with no adults other than supervising Kiwanians permitted inside.

Free ice cream and cake will be served to the children by members of the Kiwanis Club.

Mirror Editor Wins National Post On Board

Richard E. Campbell, editor of The Mirror, has been named to the executive board of the Newspaper Association for Free and Competitive Press, according to information received here this week from Stuart H. Paddock, Jr., publisher of Paddock Publications in Illinois.

Campbell was one of the leaders in the fight against Senate Bill 1312, a bill to exempt newspapers from anti-trust laws, at the national convention of the National Newspaper Association in Richmond, Virginia, recently. A victory in the legislative committee of the NNA to oppose the bill was approved by the national board of the newspaper organization.

Paddock is the coordinator of the drive to defeat the bill in Congress. The bill is designed to allow large newspapers to enter into pacts with other newspapers to insure the continuation of another newspaper.

A Mirror editorial, entitled, "Newspapers Under The Law", which explained the dangers of the bill, is being used on the front of a mailing piece being sent to all publishers in America to gain support for the fight against the anti-trust lobby in Washington. The editorial was published in The Mirror on July 6, 1967.

Jensen Rio Road Work Is Delayed

Work on the $128,000 new Jensen Beach-Rio Cutoff Road has been delayed for about six weeks because of a question in the specifications written by State Road Department engineers.

About 60 percent of the job has been completed, including construction of a box culvert. The trouble, apparently, is the soft sand base. New tests of the project are being made, SRD inspectors say, to see what marl should be used for the base.

The 1.5 mile stretch of secondary road, which will eventually link SR 707 in Rio with SR 707A in Jensen Beach was supposed to have been completed in 90 working days. The bid was made almost six months ago, March 29.

County Actions

At Tuesday's meeting of the County Commissioners, the following action was taken:

Tabled down request by the School Board for a special election Nov. 7 to decide whether the superintendent of schools should be appointed or elected. The county commissioners voted to place it on the May, 1968, primary ballot to lessen the cost of the public referendum; $1,700 was appropriated for the election which will include the millage election, also.

Agreed to close a portion of Mango Lane, Jensen Beach, on the agreement of Bill Bassemer to give a ten foot easement to the county for drainage.

Tabled a request for a zoning change to permit duplexes until a definite plat was approved by the county for Joseph S. Milliori near Port Salerno.

Announced that the public dump operated by Henry Grim is now in service. It is located off Martin Grade, west of the Turnpike.

Agreed to advertise a change in zoning R-3A to permit mortuaries, morgues, funeral homes and retail stores in the classification.

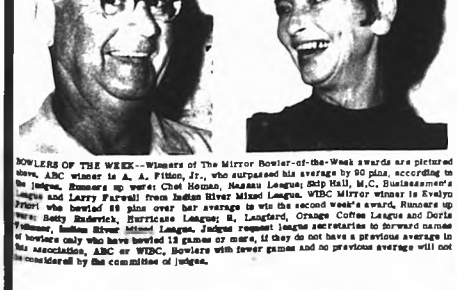
Bowlers Wanted

Bowlers are wanted for the Tradewinds Coffee League at Jensen Lanes, now being organized, to bowl every Friday at 9:30 a.m.

A meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. this Friday, Sept. 29, and all bowlers are welcome. Anyone interested in bowling may register at the lanes.

FOR SAFETY--Stuart Kiwanians got together with public safety officials for a kick-off to the new Kiwanis survival sign on the City Hall in Stuart. The sign will light on red for 72 hours following a fatality, and on orange for 24 hours after a serious injury accident in an auto. Top to bottom are Stuart Police Chief Jesse Taylor, public affairs committee chairman Lloyd Chase, Kiwanis president Bill Scott, Kiwanis publicity chairman Ralph Randall and Sgt. Bill Hawkins of the Florida Highway Patrol.

'Bowler Of The Week'



BOWLERS OF THE WEEK--Winners of The Mirror Bowler-of-the-Week awards are pictured above. ABC winner is A. A. Pitton, Jr., who surpassed his average by 90 pins, according to the judges. Runners up were: Chet Homan, Nassau League; Skip Hall, M.C. Businessmen's League and Larry Farwell from Indian River Mixed League. WIBC Mirror winner is Evelyn Bryant who bowled 88 pins over her average to win the second week's award. Runners up were: Betty Roderick, Hurricane League; H. Langford, Orange Coffee League and Doris Pedersen, Indian River Mixed League. Judges request league secretaries to forward names of bowlers only who have bowled 12 games or more, if they do not have a previous average in the Association, ABC or WIBC. Bowlers with fewer games and no previous average will not be considered by the committee of judges.

TOP AWARD--The Victory Crusade award, a gold key and certificate, was presented to Mrs. Nellie Pezzoni, campaign chairman, Stuart, by Dr. Fredrick Krasnkopf, president of the Martin County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, last week at a meeting in Stuart. This is the first year Martin County has gone over its quota, surpassing it by 8%.

The bridge will cost $1.25 million.

Mortuaries Okayed

Residential Zones

In answer to a request by Aycock-Baird Ambulance service, mortuaries will be permitted in R-3 zoning areas, according to a move made Thursday by the Stuart City Commission and Planning and Zoning Board. A stipulation was made, however, that a public hearing must be held by the commission. At present funeral homes are permitted in B-2 zones.

Cooperation by the city was suggested by City Manager Joe N. Crowder and Commissioner Bill Todt, to encourage the ambulance service to stay in Martin County.

Co-owners of the ambulance service, Wade Aycock and Richard Baird, indicated they could not last in this county without a funeral home, which would absorb some of the loss suffered by the ambulance service.

Baird Funeral Home of Ft. Pierce originally planned to establish a mortuary on East Ocean Blvd. and Hospital Ave., Stuart, but abandoned plans because of protests from residents.

Under Thursday's move, a public hearing must be held before construction starts, to allow for any complaints from neighbors.

Women Voters Discuss County Jail Conditions

a question and answer sion pertaining to con- ons at Martin County Jail held Wednesday at a eting of the League of men Voters.

uized by the women e Sheriff Roy C. Baker County Commissioner rb Bruner.

n answer to questions a- t construction of a new ility, Bruner said $25,000 has been budgeted for the coming fiscal year toward construction. He was commended by Baker for many improvements made in the jail since Bruner took over as commissioner in charge of the jail.

Sheriff Baker pointed to the problem of maintenance, saying that prisoners destroy bunks, mattresses and plumbing, with about $2,000 spent on repairs so far this year.

Bruner estimated that a new jail would cost about $200,000, and said he would like to have about three-fourths of the money budgeted prior to construction.

Early in the summer, league members toured the jail in their study of local government.

Navitsky Addresses Civitans

Special training classes for the handicapped child were discussed by Martin County Superintendent of Schools James Navitsky on Thursday when he spoke to members of the Stuart Civitan Club.

Four teachers are allotted by the state to handle special training classes located at Stuart Junior High School, East Stuart Elementary, Warfield and the old Fort Salerno Elementary School, Navitsky pointed out that many training aids are available at these four schools, which might not be accessible at any one school.

He spoke of the changes which have taken place in the parents' attitude toward the slow learner and the handicapped, and outlined various locations in the school today.

Civitan members have a special interest in the handicapped and purchase books, training aids and other equipment necessary to the program.

Civil Defense Moves Emergency Hospital

The 200-bed Civil Defense Emergency Hospital moved Tuesday from G&A Warehouse to the Courthouse Annex, Stuart.

The hospital was manned by personnel of Martin County Mosquito Control and Road Departments, according to John Gray, MC CDAT Coordinator.

The equipment is stored in Martin County to provide an additional 200-bed capability for Martin Memorial Hospital, and would be used in the event of a major disaster. The staff which would operate this Emergency Hospital has been trained by Civil Defense personnel and would function with a minimum amount of notice.

SHA Expansion Is Considered

More units for the Stuart Housing Authority's development in East Stuart are being considered, according to City Manager Joe Crowder Thursday.

Crowder said he talked with Housing and Urban Development officials in Atlanta about adding three- and four-bedroom units to the 70-unit structure.

The SHA will make a survey and submit a report to Atlanta, Crowder said. The application will be considered on such things as need and ratio of units built to slum units replaced.

Rio Home Damaged By Fire

A utility room was destroyed by fire Saturday at the home of Tinius Disch, 114 E. Allen Ave., Rio.

Fire Chief Al Walker estimated damages at $300 and initiated an investigation of the fire, which was of suspicious nature, he said.

Two trucks from the local department responded to the 2 a.m. blaze, reported by an unidentified caller to Civil Defense Emergency Headquarters.

The fire was confined to the utility room and did not spread to the main house. The owner has been upnorth for the summer, Walker said.

Regret for time wasted can become a power for good in the time that remains. And the time that remains is time enough, if we will only stop the waste and the idle, useless regretting.

Outlines Plan

Administrative Assistant Powers' Goal In County

A system to include an administrative assistant for Martin County was outlined to the press this week by County Commissioner Tumer Powers in an obvious attempt to begin a movement to get acceptance of the public and his fellow-commissioners of the plan.

Powers said, in a prepared statement, "With the tremendous growth potential of Martin County, it is imperative that we continue to improve our operational efficiency and services while striving not only to keep abreast but also to move ahead in arrangement practices. Therefore, I favor a system that would include an Administrative Assistant as an integral part of our total operations."

A vacancy in the post of county engineer, following the resignation of Fred Bell, has created a system of operation under which the county commissioners must make operational and administrative decisions for the various departments of county government. The post of county engineer has not yet been filled, and commissioners have given no indication of seeking one.

Powers' outline of the duties of the administrative assistant for the county also include a sort of code of ethics for commissioners to follow. In the outline, Powers suggests that the board of commissioners "...shall not, in any manner, deal or interfere with the administrative assistant; that the individual members of the county commission shall not give orders to subordinates of the county administrative assistant directly, or indirectly, publicly or privately."

The rough draft of the duties of the administrative assistant include the following:

1. Administer and carry out the directives and policies issued to him by the Board of County Commissioners acting as an official body.

2. Select and employ personnel to fill any vacancies, position or employment after the County Commission has authorized that such vacancies, positions or employment be filled with the exception of department heads.

3. Supervise all departments. Department heads and employees of County Commissioners and, at his discretion, terminate for cause the employment of any employees of County Commission except for Department Heads.

4. After policy has been established by the Board of County Commissioners acting as an official body, supervise all aspects of carrying into effect such policy to its completion. He shall thereupon report or order a full report to the Board of County Commissioners the action taken upon such policy and directives of the Board of County Commissioners.

5. Perform such other duties as may be required of him by the Board of County Commissioners acting as an official body.

Mirror, Rowell Open In Jensen

The new Mirror office, and the Jensen Beach display store of Rowell Furniture opened in Jensen Beach this week. Grand opening of the two firms, across the street from each other on Commercial Street, will begin this week and will continue through the month of October.

The Mirror office opened Monday morning, following a weekend of moving from The Mirror plant on Sunview Road. Open house for the newspaper office will be held on Friday from nine a.m. until five p.m., and on Saturday from nine a.m. to one p.m. At that time there will be a tour of the offices and explanation of the various departments in the newspaper for the public.

"This newspaper belongs to the people of Martin County, and especially in Jensen Beach, and we would like them to see how we put their newspaper together each week. We will have displays on the layout and makeup of the pages of the newspaper, and we will have all the offices open for the people to see how the plant is laid out," said Mirror publisher Dick Campbell. The two days have been set aside for the people to go through the plant during a time when the staff can explain the mechanics of the newspaper.

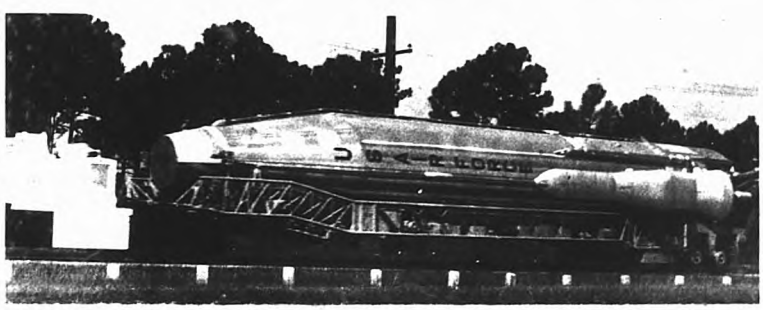
Rowell Furniture is having open house during the month of October. Manager of the new store is Mary Rowell Greene, wife of airline pilot Bill Greene. Mrs. Greene is the sister of Elam Rowell Chase, owner of Rowell Furniture in Stuart.

Local merchants are tying into the opening of the two businesses on Commercial Street in Jensen Beach. The Mirror is having a "Mirror Month" promotion, offering weekly door prizes that include subscriptions, a full page of advertising, a full page feature story, and many gifts for other door prizes that are donated by Helen's Dress Shop, Jim Stewart Jewelers and local restaurants. Registration at the new office is required.

Rowell Furniture also has a registration door prize promotion in which the firm will give grand prizes that include a box spring and mattress, a recliner, five thermal blankets, two forty-piece table services and two eight-piece snack sets. Visitors to the new store can register for the prizes, which will be awarded at a drawing on November 1.

Helen's Dress Shop has joined in the promotion with a drawing for a gift certificate and a man's dress shirt. The drawing will be held each Saturday and winners of the gifts will be announced in The Mirror the following Wednesday afternoon.

Next week a new travel agency will open in Jensen Beach, next door to The Mirror office. It will be called Jensen Beach Travel Service and will be associated with Stuart Travel Service. The opening will be another part of the month-long opening of commercial activity in Jensen Beach.



UP-COMING- The future position of this missile will be UP, but at the time Mirror photographer saw it, the missile was resting on its side being transported from Cape Kennedy to Coral Gables, via U.S. #1.

Chamber Seeks Reg Walker Replacement

A replacement for Reg Walker, who resigned effective October 28 at a meeting of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce board of directors Monday night, is being sought by a committee, according to Frank Forsberg, president of the Chamber. Walker has been executive secretary of the Chamber for the past nine years.

Forsberg heads the committee, with past-presidents Albert Palmer and Richard Campbell serving with him in the search.

"It is a service to the community, not a job," said Walker in urging that attention be given to the man to replace him. The salary of executive secretary is $25 per week, "not enough to attract a person who is interested in money alone," Walker added.

Walker said he would stay on to train the man or woman who would replace him. Persons interested can apply at the Chamber office or to any member of the committee.

"We must let the people know that we need a Jensen Beach or Rio resident to handle the job, and the person must be interested in the community," Forsberg said. "The job doesn't pay enough to be anything but a public service to whomever takes it, but we do want to get a good secretary, and we want to continue to do the kind of job Reg has been doing so capably over the past nine years."

Walker has been "Mr. Chamber of Commerce" in Jensen Beach since he took over the post nine years ago. He retired from the Pennsylvania Railroad at that time. He and his wife live on Melba Drive, Skyline Heights area.

JensenPTA Planning Courses

Five two-hour study and discussion courses will be held next week, sponsored by the Jensen Beach PTA.

Monday night's course will be moderated by Dale Clark, principal, entitled "Critical Issues in Our Democracy."

On Tuesday, "Emotional Health" will be discussed by Ernest Varvil, Martin County guidance counselor.

Wednesday's program will be "How to Love A Country," moderated by Mrs. James Grossnickle.

Discussion will start at 7:30 p.m. each evening in the library of Jensen Beach School. The public is invited.

Salerno A City? 2 Sides

There are two sides to every issue, and the exploratory move to incorporate Port Salerno has drawn its share of support and opposition.

Last Friday evening a small group of the Port Salerno businessmen met to discuss the possibilities of incorporation for the area. After about a two-hour meeting, the group decided to hold another meeting, inviting all interested citizens to attend on Friday, Oct. 13. No time or place has been definitely decided upon as yet for the up-coming meeting.

Spearheading last Friday's meeting and the Oct. 13 meeting are Milton Carlton and R.C. "Buck" Blackman, both local businessmen. Both contend the purpose of their meetings was to find out if the area and the people could support themselves as an independent municipality. They suggested "Port Salerno was a stepchild of the county and as such was not getting a fair shake in many phases of county government," with zoning listed as one of the primary problems locally.

The Port Salerno Civic Club, as a result of the recent incorporation move, will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday, Oct. 5, at the Civic Club and will also undertake the problems facing an incorporation move. Club president Walter Sonner said the meeting would start at 8 p.m. sharp, and all interested members should plan to attend. Sonner indicated, as did County Commission Chairman Jack Saunderson, strong opposition to any incorporate move on the basis the area and the people could not reasonably sustain a city charter which would "involve increased taxation."

Chamber Goes For The Birds

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce is asking the Martin County Commission to establish the inhabited area of Jensen Beach and Rio as a bird sanctuary, according to a resolution passed by the board of directors at its monthly meeting last Monday night.

A resolution submitted to the Chamber by Bob Bair, local conservationist, was re-worded when it was pointed out that the proffered resolution would have cut out some of the prime hunting grounds around Jensen Beach and Rio. The reworded document, which finally passed by board action, limited the area of wildlife protection to the inhabited areas of the two unincorporated communities.

The resolution calls for the protection of wildlife in the area bounded on the east by the Indian River, on the north by the county line, on the west by a curving line made of Savanna Road and to the north limits of the Northwood Subdivision, and on the south by the St. Lucie River.

To clarify the area to be protected, the Chamber will include a map of the proposed wildlife refuge with the resolution to the county.

Zoning Changes

Two zoning changes were recommended to the city commission by the City of Stuart Advisory Planning and Zoning Board.

William Dean, developer of Fisherman's Village, requested a small lot on E. Ocean Blvd., just west of Broadway, now a R-3 area, to B-1. Dean was represented by attorney James Littman, Robert Clark and Billy Hardwick, presenting a petition with 30 names of residents from the area. No objections were voiced.

The other change corrected an error on a zoning map. A B-1 business zone had been placed by mistake into an R-3 zone when the new map was copied, involving an area on W. Ocean Blvd., south side.

The city commission will advertise for hearings on both recommendations.

Hupfel Elected To ASC Service

Walter Hupfel was elected to a three-year term in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, S. Douglas Zant, county office manager announced on Thursday.

Elected as first alternate was Joe Pennington, and Albert Krueger as second alternate committeeman.

Holdovers were Dean Smiley and Tom Clements. Six-to-three qualified ranchers and farmers took part in the Martin County election.

FIRE DRILL- The 232 pupils at Jensen Beach Elementary School cleared the school building in 37 seconds recently during a fire drill conducted by Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department. One truck was used, manned by Chief Randy Spinny, Mike Quinn, Gene Oliver and Jack Hall.

The first meeting of the season for members of VWW1 Barracks #854 and Auxiliary will be held Friday, Oct. 6 at 8 p.m. Buddies will meet at the Community Center; Sisters will meet at the Jensen Beach Community Church. All members are urged to attend.

The response to a call for donations for the 40 ditty bags being made and filled for the squadron of 40 men adopted by the Auxiliar, was excellent, according to Mrs. Charles Diffendal. However, more financial help is needed. Donations may be sent to Cpl Barlow, 2 Skipper Dr., Ocean Breeze Park, Jensen Beach.

Sister Julia Clark will resume her sewing project with a group meeting set for Oct. 18, Wed., from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sewing is being done for the Buddies at Coral Gables and Hollywood Hospitals. Workers are needed. Bring a sandwich and sewing equipment; beverage and a light dessert will be provided.

Three new officers were elected and installed at the meeting presided over by President May Kirse. Caroline Peterson, St. Lucie Auxiliary, was installed as treasurer; Conductress, Eleanor Diffendal, #854 Auxiliary; one-year trustee, Frances Henry, Vero Beach.

The next district meeting will be Nov. 18 in West Palm Beach.

Traffic Safety Asked For New College

St. Joseph College, Jensen Beach's new co-ed college, was termed an economic boost to Martin County by County Commissioner Frank Wacha Tuesday, as he asked traffic control on Sewall's Point Road to permit safe passage of students to the college campus.

Sheriff Roy L. Baker recommended a 35 mph. zone on Sewall's Point Road and a painted cross-walk. Shell side-walks are planned for construction along the road to permit safe passage of the students.

Before the action was approved, Mirror editor Dick Campbell asked that the county plan for future concrete side-walks and proper traffic control for the future growth of the college. The commissioners assured the editor that the shell paths would provide a proper base for future concrete side-walks along the road.

Grumman Employees Congratulated

A personal message was sent to each of the 374 employees at Stuart's Grumman Aircraft Corp. by Art Frank, deputy director of manufacturing, congratulating them on meeting a recent quota.

The house news magazine, Grumman Plane News, in a two-page story, illustrated with pictures taken at Witham Field, praised local efforts in building the OV-1 Mohawk, one of the most effective weapon systems in Southeast Asia. The Army's increased requirements for the Mohawk has stepped up production here, according to Art Melrose, local base manager, who points out that the plant has grown from eight to over 370 employees.

Grumman was recently awarded a $9.5 million contract by the Army; an estimated $3 million of it, calling for 36 Mohawks, will be done locally.

JUST ONE DARN MINUTE
That's the most an Accutron® timepiece will gain or lose in one month. And we guarantee it! Accutron looks like a watch. But it isn't. It doesn't have a mainspring, a hairspring or a balance wheel. Accutron has replaced them with an electronic tuning fork. It splits each second into 360 equal parts. And makes the Accutron timepiece so precise it won't gain or lose an average of more than two seconds a day.

TIGERS CHASE TIGERS— Martin County Tiger quarterback Jim Dragash is chased by a host of Clewiston Tigers as he made a substantial gain during last Friday night's clash. Martin topped Clewiston 7 to 0 in a conference game.

Play At Lake Worth Oct. 6

Tigers Trip Clewiston 7-0

In its second straight victory in eight days, Martin County's Tiger Team came rushing down Long Field in the final quarter to score from the 40 yard line for the game's only touchdown. Jeff Bruner broke off his left side and raced by the deep defenders for the six points. The extra point was kicked by David Lowe.

The game, played Friday night against Clewiston, saw the visiting team in the driver's seat during the first half. The Tigers came alive in the third quarter to chalk up a victory over a tough Suncoast Conference Western Division opponent.

Martin County racked up 17 first downs against 11 by the Clewiston team and totaled 227 rushing yardage against the opponent's 106.

Martin County's Tigers will meet Lake Worth Oct. 6 at an away game.

On Oct. 10, Stuart JHS will meet Dan McCarty JHS at Dan McCarty. Another away game will be Oct. 12 between Martin County JV's and Vero Beach JV's.

The next home game will be Oct. 13 when Dan McCarty meets the MC Tigers at Long Field.

Hole-In One Made

Marty Anderson had a hole-in-one Monday at Martin County Golf and Country Club, according to pro Matt Moore.

Anderson used a #2 iron on the 200-yard lucky 13th hole for his shot. He was playing with Gene Wilchester, Bill Vohden and Bill Snowden.

Sports In The Mirror

Jayvees Smother Jupiter

Martin County's junior Tigers outplayed the Jupiter B-team with a vengence last Thursday night, smothering the visitors with a 45-0 victory. The junior varsity racked up a score in every quarter.

Top scorer was Wallace Rogers, sophomore halfback, who led the local team with four touchdowns. In the first period, Jim Thomas passed to Bill Williams for Stuart's first score and ran seven yards for another. A 25 yard run by Dennis Mitchell, who intercepted a pass, counted for another six points for the Tigers.

Martin County had 12 first downs to Jupiter's two, and totaled 156 yards in rushing to only two by the visiting team.

PILE UP- Believe it or not, but at the bottom of this pile is Tiger halfback Jeff Bruner, whose white helmet shows in bottom left. Shortly after this play, Bruner scampered some 30 yards for the winning T.D.

Chips, Divots And Tips by Matt Moore

We are progressing pretty well with 13 teams already entered in our annual Four Ball Championship which will be played Nov. 11 and 12 over 36 holes. We are looking for at least 64 teams, 16 teams from each of the Indian River Golf Leagues, which take in Martin County, St. Lucie, Ft. Pierce and Vero Beach.

This gives Martin County a big tourney in the fall, and of course we have our annual pro-am scheduled again for the first day of Spring in March. Our Handicap Tourney will be in January, the Buddy Tourney in February, and the Club Championship in March.

There's talk of the Men's Club Championship being played on a medal play basis this year rather than match play.

Blitz winners this week with 16 under par were Lou Papsidero, Paul Thomas, Jack Scranton and Dan O'Kelly.

FUNDAMENTALS OF GOLF
The Part The Shoulders Play

The trunk of the body is really the power plant of the golf swing.

However, the body has to be balanced properly, and go through the proper movements, or it ends up as wasted energy.

The hips operate the bottom part of the trunk, and the shoulders function as the upper part of the body, in that order.

In the starting position, the left shoulder is held higher than the right, which is only natural, as the left hand is higher on the club than the right. This relationship is maintained throughout the backswing and all of the downswing.

In the hitting position, the left shoulder rises and the right goes down, as does the rest of the right side, to allow one to get down to the ball.

From the hit to the finish, the left shoulder is still the leader, and maintains its height over the right.

This shoulder relationship is a barometer as to the balance of the body, allows one to keep the club in a good plane back and down and gives one a good clean hit at the ball.

Remember, the left always leads and the right follows. As to the shoulders, the left is always higher than the right, and if you maintain this relationship you will have a more accurate, consistent, powerful swing.

Beware Hunting Fever

It's that time of year again and with it comes the hos'wetsee' dreaded disease called "Hunting Fever". Thus far there is no known cure and the disease must be allowed to run its full course which is quite lengthy.

This coming weekend thousands of Florida hunters will be at their favorite fields for the opening of the first phase dove hunting season on Oct. 7. The season will open statewide, except for Alligator Point in Franklin County, and will continue through Nov. 5.

Daily shooting hours are from 12 noon until sunset. Previous announcements have indicated that prior to Oct. 29, when time will be set back one hour, legal shooting hours would begin at 1 p.m. The return to 12 noon as the time for shooting to begin came about as a result of a re-evaluation by Federal authorities of an earlier legal interpretation of existing law.

Daily bag limit is 12 per day and hunters are required to have their guns plugged to a three-shell capacity including the chamber.

The second phase dove hunting season is from Nov. 18 through Dec. 3. The third phase season opens Dec. 16 and continues through Jan. 5.

Another interesting item is that Florida sportsmen who harvest deer with eight or more points or black bear with skull measurements at least 10 inches long and five inches wide are eligible for honor badges which they may wear on their hat or shooting jacket as recognition of their skills in Florida's forest and fields.

Big Game Honor Badges are awarded by Field and Stream magazine. Application forms for honor badges will be available through the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, Dept. I-E, Tallahassee, or the Commission's regional offices located in Panama City, Ocala, Lake City, Lakeland and West Palm Beach.

Since 1964, a total of 17 honor badges have been presented to Florida sportsmen for deer and one for black bear.

It is pointed out that Big Game Honor Badges are not the results of a hunting contest, but recognition of skill in big game hunting.

Key blocks by Carl Williams and Dan Jones led to the second touchdown, carried around left end from the 25 by Boling.

Sheriff To Regulate

County To Prohibit 'Pass Of Any Kind' On Beach

"Passes of any kind" on the beaches will be prohibited 15 days from Tuesday, according to action taken this week by the Martin County Commission in establishing rules and regulations for Martin County's public parks and beaches. The comment came from County Commissioner Bill Hussey when it was mentioned that football players endangered sunbathers and swimmers, and a special part of the ordinance read "no indecent petting allowed on the beach". County Commissioner Frank Wacha immediately said, "I want to be a judge" and the fun continued throughout the reading of the 16 point beach regulations.

Commissioners got into a small hassle over the definition of where a drunk could go in public parks or beaches, until Wacha pointed out that it was a misdemeanor to be intoxicated in a public place, thus solving the problem.

The new rules will give Sheriff Roy Baker power to regulate the congested public beaches. The regulations are as follows:

1. It is unlawful to swim more than 100 yards off shore.

2. Surf-riding is unlawful in the areas marked for bathing, but will be allowed in those specific areas designated by the life guard.

3. It is unlawful to surf ski (being towed behind cars) within the bathing areas.

4. It is unlawful to bathe in areas designated for surf-boarding.

5. It is unlawful to surf fish in the areas designated for bathing.

6. It is unlawful to bathe during electrical storms.

7. Drunk or intoxicated persons will not be allowed in the public parks or beach areas, or in the surf at any time within the areas controlled and patrolled by Martin County.

8. It is unlawful to play ball of any kind either in the surf or the beach areas designated for bathing.

9. It is unlawful to operate motorboats, speedboats, runabouts, water skis, catamarans, sail boats or other vessels within the 100 yard limit declared as the safe-bathing limit.

10. Scattering of trash, refuse, bottles, cans, etc., is prohibited.

11. No indecent petting allowed on the beach.

12. Fires on the beach are prohibited. Permission must be granted from the main life guard station or from the Board of County Commissioners of Martin County.

13. Dogs, cats or any other type of pet are not allowed on the beach.

14. When surf conditions are dangerous, the safe-bathing limit shall be determined by the life guards.

15. Vagrants are not allowed on the beach.

16. Flag designations shall be posted in a prominent place by the life guards.

17. It shall be unlawful to water ski in the Manatee Pocket area, more particularly from Marker #4 and running southward.

Authority for the regulations is granted by a law passed in 1961.

Offers Coming

Wacha Sees Beach Access Possibility

Several Hutchinson Island land-owners are interested in selling strips of land to Martin County for public access to the beach, according to County Commissioner Frank A. Wacha, who said Thursday that he had been contacted.

Money has been allocated for the purchase of strips of land to provide the public with access to the beach, he said. The county will buy 100-foot strips from A-1-A to the beach, of each county-owned land on the Indian River side for the access stretches of beachfront.

The county would pave the strips to provide parking areas for cars, he said.

Wacha's thought is that access to the beach is the main problem, not necessarily long stretches of the beach itself. Several months ago the county purchased 440 feet of oceanfront property just south of the house of Refuge Museum at a cost of $35,000.

The more beachfront property the county owns, the less it would cost the county to have the St. Lucie Inlet improved, according to Congressman Paul Rogers who has been urging the county to buy more beachfront to lower its share on federal projects. The inlet is a federal maintenance project, and at the time it was accepted, the federal government offered to pay $1 million of the $2.5 million it will cost to improve the inlet, Wacha said.

Lectures Continue

The last three two-hour study and discussion courses sponsored by Jensen Beach PTA will be held in the school library Wednesday (tonight), Thursday and Friday.

Wednesday's lecture and moderator will be Mrs. J. A. Granderson. The program, which runs from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., is entitled "How To Love A Child" and "The A Years of Adoption."

Thursday, Oct. 12 at the same time, Mrs. Willard Allen, minister and education director of All Souls Episcopal church, will be lecturer and moderator for "Questions Boys Ask", dealing with popularity, sex, religion, school, dating, girls, and related subjects.

"Questions Girls Ask" will be discussed Friday, Oct. 13, from 9:30 to 11:30 A.M., covering the same basic subjects as Thursday's course. Lecturer and moderator will be Mrs. Jan Fernander, minister and education director, pastor of Rio Baptist Church.

The public is invited to these discussion sessions.

Road Work Resumes

Work on the $2.2 million Jensen-Rio Causeway has been given again, according to Florida Senator Dick Stone, Jr., this week.

Stone, assistant resident inspector, on the job, which has been at a standstill for more two months until repairs to failed concrete pilings were done, said a new start has been approved.

Walter J. Criswell, vice-president and director of Dickerson, Inc., contractor on the project, said work will be used to stabilize the base.

The project had been halted when some rock failed to meet the state's specifications, failed to stabilize the base and sank deep into the sand.

No work was done on the 1.5-mile project while the state's district testing laboratory in Stuart tried to figure out a way to solve the problem.

After the marl is put down some rock will be used to fill in, and with the asphalt will form the surface of the long-awaited road.

Hundreds Tour New Plant As Mirror Offices Open

Hundreds of visitors toured the new Mirror offices in Jensen Beach as the new plant was opened for public inspection on Friday and Saturday. Visitors included [illegible] as well as the curious [illegible] and the just plain [illegible].

Jim Jesse, president of the Florida Press Association and south Broward columnist of Today newspaper, was among the visitors to the new offices of The Mirror and commented on the fact that "I'm not envious of your new plant, but I'm delighted to see it. I've always believed that a newspaper should have the best equipment and facilities that money can buy, and you have it. I'm sure you will be proud of your new plant."

Visitors were also impressed with the [illegible] of the new offices, including the beckoning department typewriting behind the counter, and the [illegible] and large Martin County [illegible] being exported to the [illegible] for [illegible] and readers.

The Mirror opening was the latest weekend as the opening of Howell's addition, a new street in the former building occupied by Tilton Real Estate and Insurance, Howell opened with several visitors seeing both Howell's resignation, and resigned that a substitute teacher search was under way, on June 28 has been set by [illegible].

Businesses lying in with the opening of The Mirror include Helen's Dress Shop and Jim Stewart Jewelers, both of whom offer door prizes for registering at The Mirror, Helen's also has a line for other gifts in that store.

"The entire idea is to get local people to come in and see what we have to offer them. So often the people shop out of town, not knowing the many items they have on the shelves of local businesses, and we want them to shop here," Campbell said.

Referring to the highly-praised office of The Mirror, Campbell said, "I am [illegible] proud of the job done by A. A. Construction on the new plant. Their cooperation in our special needs and their concern for quality work made this fine office possible. Also, I take real pride in the help of Larry Flynn enough, and the people at Stuart Paint and Supply, in providing us with the [illegible] necessary to have such a beautiful office."

Furniture in the plant was selected by Howell Furniture.

In the lobby of The Mirror there is an eight-foot wide by four-foot deep photograph of the Jensen Beach-Stuart area, on loan to The Mirror from the Martin County Resources and Development Board. The photo is one of the decorative touches that makes the lobby an attractive sight to see. There is also a wall of the awards won through the years and history of The Mirror.

School Board Plans Resignation Policy

The Martin County School Board took action Tuesday night to offset possible teacher resignations in the [illegible] by establishing a policy, subject to the board attorney's approval, which would penalize any teacher who does not follow the procedures outlined by possible suspension of teaching certificate, loss of seniority and no references for a future position.

The board made it clear that it is forced an individual consideration of each teacher's resignation, and instructed that a substitute teacher search was under way, on June 28 has been set by [illegible].

County Actions

At Tuesday's meeting of the County Commission:

Rexry Crews asked permission from the Board to advertise for a public hearing to amend the R-4 Zoning Category. The Planning and Zoning Board has turned him down on this amendment and the Palm City Civic Association was strongly opposed to it.

County Attorney Dean Tooker reported to the board that Crews had started a business in violation of zoning ordinances, adding that the self-created hardship has no standing (in court) whatsoever."

The board denied Crews' request.

The contract with the Animal Rescue League was renewed for the next fiscal year and the payment of the $5,900 was authorized.

It was brought to the attention of the board that several unauthorized garbage dump sites were being used. There was a lengthy discussion on the garbage collection and dumping procedures used by individuals in this county, and the county attorney was given permission to take any legal action necessary to stop the violation of the sanitary code, and

The $2,190 bid from Bobby Wall was accepted for the construction of approximately two miles of fence along the Pratt-Whitney Rd.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips by Howard Lee Haid

The Breaks Of The Game

Don't let last week's game against Lake Worth dampen your spirits or cause a loss of interest in the Tigers.

The boys played good ball against Lake Worth, but as it turned out they were a bit overmatched. Even though they failed to score, they held their own against a good offensive team. The only thing that beat us was the breaks of the game, and the breaks in any sport determine the outcome.

Referring to the breaks of the game.....some of them just happen, while others can be considered inflicted.

Those that happen can fall into the category of fumbles, incompleted passes, and so on, that may plague a team. Inflicted breaks are those that come from poor referees or officials.

Most officials are fair, unbiased men who show no preference while officiating. Only twice during the past few years have I seen cases of favoritism shown by officials on the football field. The head linesman during the Pahokee game last year was guilty of one of those offenses. During last week's Lake Worth game, a different man, but the head linesman again, showed favoritism. Luckily it rarely happens but when it does it stands out like a sore thumb, so I feel justified in saying so.

The unjust calls by these men certainly can't be used as an excuse for a ball game, nor would it probably have changed the outcome, but it can serve to demoralize a team's spirits especially coupled with the natural breaks.

I am certainly glad to say I have withessed very little of this in the world of sports and it's very rarely that those guilty continue long in their position of the tried and true official.

Burnett Attains Record

Michigan State Trooper Merle Burnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Burnett of Jensen Beach, continues his shooting prowess in national competition.

In a recent letter received by his family, Burnett writes:

"I am here for the Illinois State Championships. Have shot six matches and won them all. Won a .357 Mag. Python in the Governor's Match; stainless steel 5-shot S&W bodyguard revolver at the Ind. State Police Invitational; and at Jackson I shot a 2659-156X out of 2700 for the highest score any policeman has ever shot. Am now in the 2650 Club."

Burnett is stationed with the State Police in Lansing, Mich.

Lake Worth Hands Tigers First Defeat

Martin County Tigers bowed down in defeat to the Lake Worth Trojans Friday night in a 20-0 score. It was the first defeat of the season for the local team.

The game was played at soggy Russ Ballard Field in Lake Worth before a crowd of about 1400 which braved the showers.

The Tigers' offensive spark which had led them to previous victories seemed dimmed. Only four times did the visitors cross the midfield stripe against the hometeam Trojans, and Stuart's deepest penetration to the 16 was stopped by a pass interception.

In the second quarter, Lake Worth's Don Shelhamer scampered for a 34-yard touchdown run. In the next six plays, the Tigers roared for 77 yards but lost out when a pass play was nullified by a penalty.

The fourth quarter saw Trojan players march 84 yards in 13 plays to score their second touchdown, and with only 2-1/2 minutes remaining in the game, Lake Worth hit for its final points.

Martin County hit for seven first downs to Lake Worth's 12, and racked up only 77 yards rushing against the Trojans' 221.

This was the 30th gridiron clash between the two schools, and the Trojans' 19th win. The Tigers have six wins, with five ties for the teams.

The schedule for current games is:

Oct. 12, Thurs., Martin County JV at Vero Beach JV.

Oct. 13, Fri., Dan McCarty at Martin County.

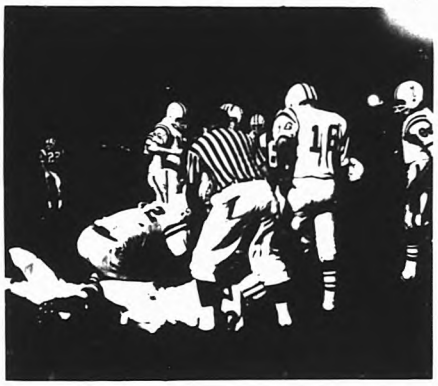
Oct. 17, Tues., Stuart JHS at Vero Beach JHS.

Football schedule is as follows:

Oct. 12, Thurs., Martin County JV at Vero Beach JV.

Oct. 13, Fri., Dan McCarty at Martin County.

Oct. 17, Tues., Stuart JHS at Vero Beach JHS.



PILE-UP--Tigers and Trojans tangled Friday night when they met in Lake Worth. Martin County High School Tigers were trounced 20-0 by the Lake Worth Trojans, the first defeat of the season for the local team. The Tigers will meet Dan McCarty this Friday night, Oct. 13, at Long Field, Stuart.

Game Warden Assumes Duties

A. W. Cappar, 23, Port Salerno, has started his new duties as one of Martin County's two Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission Game Wardens. For the past three weeks he has worked with agents here and in Indian River County.

Cappar has been assigned to all of Martin County north and west of St. Lucie Canal. John K. Roberts, Indiantown, handles the area south of the canal to the coast.

2-Day Regatta

Plans are being made for a two-day regatta to be held Nov. 4 and 5 in the St. Lucie River near the Stuart Youth Center, sponsored by the Sunrise Sailfish Fleet #125.

The Youth Center will serve as headquarters, according to Dennis Hutson, Jr.

Chips, Divots And Tips by Matt Moore

Fundamentals

My team won the Blitz Saturday with 14 under par. My partners were Chet Martin, Clark Gibson and Charlie Gipe.

The Nov. 10 Fairway is coming in fine and will be open for play before Nov. 11 for the Four Ball Championship.

FUNDAMENTALS OF GOLF

Swing Fundamentals

The definition of a golf swing, in brief, is "one full, smooth, flowing motion from start to finish." Make a full swing back and go through to the finish, and you don't leave out any of the parts.

In general, and taking the swing as a whole, there are four positions to a golf swing; the one you start in, the one you swing back to, the one you hit in, and the one you finish in.

The most important is the hitting position. If you take them in order, the backswing would be next, then the starting position, and last the finish position.

The hitting position is the most important because here lies the knack of hitting a golf ball, and this is the only common position among all good players. No two players start alike, swing back alike, or finish alike, but put a camera on them in the hitting area and all are similar. The hitting position is also most important because here you can correct errors and finish your swing.

There are two balances in a swing; posture and side to side balance. There are two balance points in a swing, namely the head and the feet. There is an order of movement to a golf swing.

These are the fundamentals in general, and much can be written about them. In teaching, I keep the swing in two parts, backswing and downswing.

There will be a Pro-Am on Saturday before the Four Ball Championship Nov. 4. Each pro will play with three amateurs. Visiting pros will bring two partners and I will furnish one.

Lou Collins had a hole-in-one on #7, using a #6 iron, while playing with Eve Wilchester, Hazel Gleason and Isabelle McPherson.

R. K. Fears III Is Married

Gertie Dixon writes, "I visited Nan Fears Sept. 16 at Chesapeake City, Maryland.

Bob, who died in Ocean Breeze in 1961 and Nan were residents at Oak and 6th and of Ocean Breeze for years.

On Sept. 16 Nan's grandson was married. He is R. K. III. The many friends of Nan and Bob will remember R. K., III, as he visited several times in the park when Nan and Bob were there.

Nan asks to be remembered to her many friends at Ocean Breeze."

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY!--Art and Doris Lewis celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary Oct. 7, the day we called. This young-looking couple arrived at their trailer cabana home on North Eighth on Oct. 1. Doris says they had a busy season at Elmira, N.Y., having sold their house while there. On their way south they stayed for a week at Hendersonville where they bought a trailer with the intention of using it during the hot summer months. Otherwise Ocean Breeze will be their home. While at Hendersonville they saw quite a lot of Larry and Jean Fisher who expect to arrive at Ocean Breeze soon. Friends congratulate the Lewises and wish them many more happy years together.

Butlers Home

Butlers Return

Mr. & Mrs. Dale Butler returned to their home at 24 Bay Drive October 1st, after spending the summer at their home in Boswell, Indiana. On their way down they stopped at the Bloomington University in Illinois, where their grand-daughter, Cathy Butler is a student. Dale finds it hard to keep away from Ocean Breeze for he and Claude Wright spent a couple weeks here in August. During their stay they did some fishing and in five nights fishing Dale got 10 snook weighing a total of 157 lbs.

Dale spent 25 years of his life in the machinery business, and for many of these years he operated two John Deere farm machinery businesses and a wholesale lawn and garden equipment business. When he retired in 1959 his sons took over the businesses.

Previous to this the Butlers had been spending their winter in Florida from as early as 1952, mostly in Ocean Breeze, where they rented a trailer. In 1960 the new section was developed and Dale bought a large trailer and located 24 Bay Drive, where they now live.

It looks now like we won't be in Florida this winter."

Thank You

I wish to express thanks to my many friends in Ocean Breeze for their cards and letters of sympathy at the time of my husband's death. They were a great comfort.

Clubhouse Accivities

Mrs. Gene Hoke informs us that bingo started October 2 and will continue all winter at the usual times, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

The ceramic class will start October 16. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson from Rio will instruct the classes.

The Hendersons are already well known by many in the park for their good ceramic work and their friendly disposition so should be very welcome.

Mrs. Hoke further said that Ladies Gym classes will commence at the usual time October 16 and the dances November 4. However, the weather will have a bearing on the latter two and these dates are not possitive.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST- We mentioned in last week's Mirror that Dulcie Numar reported seeing a strange giant lizard. The iguna is not a native of Florida, and we presumed it had escaped from captivity. We were right. The missing iguana belongs to Alice Heaton, it having escaped a week or more ago. Alice consented to have a picture taken of it's smaller companion which she keeps in a cage on the Heaton back lot. She tells us the iguana CAN bite if provoked. The very long tail is used as a means of defense which it can use as a whip. Alice is the daughter of Jack Heaton who has worked in the park for the past 30 years.

Elois Hoyt Visits Father

Elois Hoyt drove to Tennessee to see her father who is ailing. When she arrived she was disappointed to find him in bed, in a nursing home. Elois describes this home as being very nice with everything to make it's guests comfortable. Finding that he was in good hands and realizing there was nothing she could do to help she did not stay very long and is now back in the park. An accident on the way south marred the enjoyment of her trip.

Elois was driving on a four lane highway through Dotham, Ala., when a car coming off a side street to her left, crossed three lanes and hit the Hoyt car, demolishing the left rear door. It was fortunate that it didn't hit the front door. As it was Elois was unjured and by driving slowly was able to make it home.

Stiles Return

Strawberry Growing In Florida

Ray and Mary Stiles are one of the several couples that returned to the park last week. The Stiles left for the North July 6 with ideal weather conditions and stopped overnight at their daughter's at Atlanta. They continued on to Winchester, Ky., where they spent six weeks visiting relatives and friends and one whole week with Florence Bryant at South Bend, Indiana. Mary said they spent a very enjoyable week with Florence. They then returned to Forest Park, Ga., and spent a month with their other daughter, Margaret Fox and family.

Their last stop was at Plant City, Fla., where their friends and distant relatives Mr. & Mrs. R. E. Parke own the Parkdale Strawberry Farm. R. E. Parke started this strawberry farm ten years ago and he now has 45 acres devoted to strawberries. At present the land is being prepared of planting. Modern machinery is used for this purpose. First the soil has to be plowed to loosen it up, fertilizer applied, then at the right time a tractor pulling a soil fumigating machine, puts liquid one foot deep into the ground. This liquid soon turns to gas which sterilizes the ground and kills any harmful insects that are there.

Another tractor follows pulling a sort of plow which makes the hills or ridges, and a third tractor pulls the roller which flatten the ridges. Before planting, the whole fiend is covered with plastic and the young plants are inserted in the hills by punching holes in the plastic covering. The ripening berries never touch the ground. An underground irrigating system is used to provide the plants with water.

When the strawberries begin to ripen, usually in December, about a hundred pickers are employed and the berries are picked every second day. In addition to the pickers, about 30 women are employed in sorting the berries. Only farm employees are allowed to pick the berries until the end of the season which is about February to March. High grade strawberries are shipped all over the United States and also abroad to such countries as England and Germany. One shipment was for Queen Elizabeth. These are shipped by air express in crates containing the berries in half pint boxes.

ADDITION--Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilkie are having a cabana built on to their trailer on North Sixth. It will provide Harry and Carrie with much more needed room. As Otto Chitwood said "You have room for three square dance sets, Harry." Bernie Tripp is the builder.

Smith In Hospital

We have some information regarding the condition of Max and Bea Smith following their recent car accident, Flora Reverdy obtained the information through a Mrs. Hoke of Franklin, N.C., who called her on the phone. According to this Mrs. Hoke, Bea is all right, and she arranged for two boys to bring the car contents and the little dog, Rusty, down. Mrs. Reverdy agreed to keep the dog for them until they are able to come themselves.

Max is suffering from a broken shoulder bone and misplaced ligaments which is causing him a lot of pain. As Max needs lots of sedation Bea is staying there to care for him. Due to his serious injury it may be some time before he is able to leave the hospital. When he can leave, the minister will drive him to the Atlanta airport from where he can take a plane to West Palm Beach. Max's address is c/o the Haversham County Hospital, Demorest, Ga.

Mrs. Sawyer Passed Away

Jessie Sawyer, after a lengthy illness in the Stuart hospital of four months, passed away the afternoon of October 4th, Ralph Sawyer's daughter-in-law, Edna, had returned home after visiting her mother-in-law, only a short time, when the news came of Jessie's death. Edna pooned her husband, Douglas, in New York and he flew down. The burial will follow cremation, on the family plot at Bethel, Maine.

Immediately following the death of Mrs. Sawyer, the Sawyers' daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Poley and their daughter arrived from Wellesley, Mass., also a son, Joel Poley, from Palo Alto, California. A family service was held in Yates' Funeral Home chapel.

Krowarz Return

Friends and neighbors were pleased to see the Krowarz residence opened up again after being closed for the past four months. Bill says they were quite busy with about the same activities that they participate in during the winter season at Ocean Breeze. He says he was extremely happy to be able to enjoy the companionship, shuffleboard-wise, in several of the Shuffleboard Association events of the past summer.

Krowarz continued, "Contacts through the mails and telephone enable us to arrange the attendance of quite a number of Ocean Breezers at events in Astor, Toledo, Lakeside, etc, namely, Clara and Ernie Pfingsten, Geo. & Sam Koslow, Erma and Carl Work, Geo. and Clarence Garn, Sarah Blesse, Gertie Dixon, Sally and Bill Krowarz and Sally Krowarz's sister, Winifred Newkirk who is arranging to spend the coming season in the Park if she can find a spot to locate."

DOWN IT COMES- The well-known Jensen Beach welcome sign at The Arch came tumbling down last week as workmen removed the entire arch crossing SR 707 at Langford Park. County Commissioner Frank Wachs said that the sign had become a danger due to its weakened and rotted condition. He added that the sign will be replaced by the county. Gone the old sign, falling, which had a welcome sign on it. On the north side of the same previous sign was "Gateway to the Trail." A few years ago the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce had a new, painted sign put up that read, "Jensen Beach".

Island Plan Is Approved

Last week members of the Martin County Planning and Zoning Board, together with members of the special Hutchinson Island committee, tentatively approved four new zoning classifications for Hutchinson Island.

The new categories were designed to dove-tail with the rest of county zoning. Only Port Sewall will have its own special zoning classifications after the Hutchinson Island zoning is finally completed.

The new categories are: HR-1A - replacing Hutchinson Island's R-1A.

HR-2A - replacing the Island's R-2.

HB-1A - replacing C-1A.

HB--B - replacing C-1.

All four categories will be approved for advertising for a public hearing at a meeting of the zoning board to be held Thursday, Oct. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the courthouse.

The Mirror has been leading a campaign for over a year to get proper zoning for the Island.

7566 Can Vote On Millage

Eligible to vote in the Nov. 7 school millage election are 7,566 Martin County voters. Those who pay either county real estate or personal property taxes and who registered prior to 5 p.m. Saturday, are on the eligible list.

Martin County School Board has asked for a maximum of four mills in the District No. 1 bus and building fund. Voters can reject the request or suggest any millage from zero to 10. Present levy in the district is 1.698 mills, well below that asked for future approval by the board.

Registration will continue, although freeholders registering now will not be added to the rolls until after the school election.

November 4 is the last day for those who plan to run for public office in a party other than their present one, to change registration.

Garvey Honored

James A. Garvey, executive vice-president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County, was honored by members of the Florida Savings and Loan League in convention Oct. 10 with a certificate of recognition for his 25 years service to the industry.

Garvey joined First Federal Savings of Martin County in 1959, after having been associated with Coral Gables Federal for 17 years, serving 10 years as treasurer of that association.

He is past president of the South Florida Savings and Loan Controllers Society and past president of the Coral Gables Lions Club. He served on the faculty of the University of Miami Night School and attended the University of Miami Law School.

A veteran of World War Two, Garvey served as a navigator with the 8th Air Force in England, flying 35 missions and winning the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with six oak leaf clusters.

Garvey has been for three years secretary of Martin County Resources and Development Board and has been a member of the steering committee for five years. He is a member of the library board in Martin County and is chairman of the special committee to evaluate Hutchinson Island zoning for future development. He has been Heart Fund chairman in the county for the past three years.

200% Plus

Businesses Are Up As Tourists Arrive

Retail business showed a marked increase in Jensen Beach as "snowbirds" arrived from the northland in ever-increasing numbers, according to a survey of many local retailers taken by The Mirror this week. "Snowbirds" is the friendly term used by local residents to describe winter visitors who come down to Florida to get away from the late fall and winter cold.

One business reported a 300% increase, while others averaged their increases over the same period a year ago at around 200%.

"I don't know where they are coming from, but they are coming," said one retailer. A motel owner said, "Our bookings are heavy, and early. It looks like the best season ever."

Local real estate men are seemingly overjoyed with the many prospects they have looking at property. One said he has been "waiting for five years for the number of prospects that have been calling" at his office in the past few weeks.

Another said, when asked how business had been, "Terrific, real good. The home builders have more work than they can do around here, and that means that people are moving in here."

He said that speculative land sales were "not too good", but home sales were excellent. Also mentioned was unusual activity in small businesses and cottage courts. Deals pending for several years seem to be closing, or about to close.

Hutchinson Island, for years a gem of undeveloped ocean and riverfront, is presently the prospect of three different groups planning giant subdivision of homes and condominiums, with golf courses on two of them. Two condominiums are presently in the negotiation stages in Jensen Beach.

Dr. A. J. Wiegand, developer of Indian River Gardens, plans to have the subdivision open for the late fall season. Construction of the subdivision began last spring.

Changes on Commercial Street, the heart of Jensen Beach business activity, have been many. The Fredrickson Building, empty for almost a decade, has blossomed in the past month, with the new offices of The Mirror and Jensen Beach Travel Service. The Tilton Building gained a new business as Rivell Furniture moved into the vacated office area of Tilton Real Estate.

For the first time in two years, all the offices and stores along the one-block commercial district reported as "Wall Street" by financial men here-about, are filled, and new businesses in the old post office building include new owners of The Swinging Door Gift Shop, a reopened Jensen Grill, and a sign shop that draws payments for major national colleges and sports groups.

Many other activities are in the discussion and planning stage, including a Mexican food cafe, a printing shop, a men's store and another neighborhood grocery store.

Stuart Boat Show Opens Thursday

The annual Stuart Marine Center boat show opens Thursday, according to Herman Reitz, manager. The show will last through the weekend, Reitz said.

Included in the show this year will be several new lines of boats, and a completely remodeled showroom. A new repair department has been constructed at the rear of the showroom, near the docks, according to Reitz.

New "Fun Time" houseboats, 28' long will be on display, and a new 14' unsinkable multi-purpose fishing skiff will be shown. New styling and colors in the standard Fabuglas are featured as well as new hardtop models of the T-Craft, most of which are designed by Reitz, who said, "We have even installed new interiors that can be found only on larger models of boats, including heads and refrigerators."

Reitz was excited about the new line of Evinrude motors. There will be motors from 3-1/2 to 125 horsepower, with the new 55 horsepower motor being the star of the show.

Other displays will include the 24 and 26' Stamas boats, new Brandt ski boats, seven White Swan fishing boats up to 16', and a new galvanized Easy Trailer for boats.

Manufacturer's representatives will be at the show, which will be open nightly until 10 p.m., according to Reitz.

Salerno Opposes Any City

Over 100 persons attended a meeting Friday night to register opposition to proposed incorporation of Port Salerno. The meeting was held in the school cafeteria.

Milton Carlton, local businessman, who was behind the move to incorporate, received little encouragement from the crowd. Most persons said they were afraid of higher taxes.

County Commissioner Harman Jack Saunderson told the group he was definitely against incorporation and has a petition signed by over 500 persons who are also against incorporation.

JVs 19-13 Over Vero Beach

Jim Thomas led the Martin County High School junior varsity football squad to a 19-13 win over Vero Beach Thursday night at Vero.

Thomas was responsible for two scores, one when he hit Willie Harris with a 15-yard pass, and another throw for 37-yards to Robert Matheny. The third touchdown was scored by Wally Rogers.

BIG BEAMS--Fourteen "tin-tee" pre-stressed concrete forms are being installed on the roof of the new science building at St. Joseph College and will become the beam and roof of the building. Each tin-tee weighs 38,000 pounds, is 93 feet long and 10 feet wide. The beams were hauled to Jensen Beach from Miami on specially designed trucks.

Rules Of The Road

In the interest of better boating, The Mirror presents the first of a series of articles for sail and power boat owners. The series will cover common nautical terms, rules of the road, equipment and government regulations, aids to navigation, cause of accidents, in case of an accident, distress signals, weather, knots, bends and hitches, making fast at dock, anchoring, charts, common sense, and a nautical glossary.

Boats are usually operating on a vast expanse of water. There are no well-defined roads, paths or lanes to safely control traffic. To prevent collisions, rules have been laid down to prescribe the actions the skipper must take under any meeting, overtaking or crossing situation.

PRIVILEGED AND BURDENED VESSELS

The Rules of the Road, to prevent collision, have necessarily considered that one of two vessels has the right of way. The vessel having right of way is called the PRIVILEGED VESSEL and the other, which must give way, is called the BURDENED VESSEL. In all cases, the privileged vessel must hold course and speed. The burdened vessel must adopt every means to keep out of the way of the privileged vessel.

THE DANGER ZONE

The area that should give the skipper the greatest concern is located clockwise from dead ahead to two points abaft the starboard beam. Other boats within this DANGER ZONE, which are approaching your boat, have the right of way. It is your duty to keep clear of all approaching boats in this area. All boats that are outside of your danger area, which are approaching, must give way to you.

At night, boats in your danger zone will show a red light. Boats outside of your Danger Zone will show a green light and must give way to you.

Hidden talents come to light at the Anchorage Talent Show

SINGING MIXOLOGIST--Everybody got into the act Saturday night at The Anchorage. Here Pat Provenzano, mixologist, rendered a song during the Talent Show.

YOUNG SHARESHOOTER--Racking up one first-place and two second-place awards was Frank Bertel, 14, Jensen Beach, pictured above with his three new trophies. Frank competed Oct. 7 and 8 at Camp Blanding against 130 other riflemen in the Marks Division Tournament. The young sharpshooter won 1st place, 200 yards, slow fire, aggregate; 2nd place, expert 200 yards, slow fire, standing, and 2nd place, expert, prone, aggregate in the 31st Annual Gateway Invitational Tournament.

TALENT--Connie Schmidt, member of The Anchorage, sang a rollicking old-time song at the first Talent Show to be presented at The Anchorage last Saturday night. She and many others performed to a packed house.

LOOKING--Ruth Woods was looking for "A Good Man Who's Hard to Find" Saturday night when she sang out at The Anchorage Talent Show. This activity was the first of its kind for the Club and probably is "The Start of Something Big".

TWISTER--Man from Mars? No, believe it or not this is Nancy Everest, who with her "twin" Donna Rogers, performed The Twist for the capacity audience at The Anchorage Saturday night. The big bow came to the girls' waistline and the results amused and delighted the crowd.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips by Howard Lee Haid

'How To Catch A Tiger'

Dove hunting is for the birds and should be left that way. This seems to be the year that was for these fine-feathered friends.

There appears to be plenty of dove around and I foresee they will stay that way. Most of the dove population is widely scattered and apparently seeking and staying in safety in the sanctuaries.

Meanwhile, the quail outlook is good...at least for now. Comes the season and maybe another story.

Counted at least eighteen coveys over the past weekend with twelve to sixteen birds each. I also saved a space in the freezer in anticipation.

Upcoming on the golf scene is a hospital Pro-Am and Best Ball Tourney in early November at Martin County. The Annual Perry Como will provide another Thanksgiving thriller again at St. Lucie.

Football, as any fan knows by now, is in full swing and a sees my pre-season prediction of a championship year for the local lads is looking good. They are well on the way and if they can handle the highly-rated Belle Glade team, we'll be home scot-free.

Lots of activity on the bowling front also, with a full schedule at the Jensen Lanes. Some really good early-season scores are being tallied by the local keglsters and first-place races should be tight.

Winter fishing is coming into its own during the last few weeks and the outlook is good for excellent catches. Illness showing heavy and Spanish on the snore. Look for increased action in weakfish and snook along with good bottom fishing.

Referring to the title of this column, "How to Catch A Tiger," it's like many books. Get the attention of the audience first and hold on for dear life....Good luck until next week!

Ties For Western Division Lead

Tigers Pull Tail Feathers Of McCarty Eagles, 19-0

Martin County High School Tigers coasted to a 19-0 victory before some 4,000 fans at Long Field, Stuart, Friday night, scoring two touchdowns in the first half before their opponents, Dan McCarty Eagles, ever got a first down.

The Tigers kept the pressure on the Fort Pierce team during the entire game. The Eagles reached Tiger territory three times, running out of downs once, being held on downs once, and being beaten by the clock at the end of the game.

The Tigers' first score came on a halfback pass, Jeff Bruner passing to Wade Powell, end, for a 38-yard maneuver in the first quarter. In the second quarter, a short punt set up the second score with George Dotson going over from the one. With 1:13 remaining in the game, after intercepting a pass, the Tigers racked up another six points, with Robert Wiley carrying the ball two yards through center.

Leading in rushing for the Tigers were quarterback Jim Dragseth, 58 yards; Bruner, 51, and Dotson, a sophomore, with 45.

The Tigers ran 70 plays to the Eagles 48, and outgained McCarty 348 to 137 yards in total offense.

The two teams were leaders of the two divisions of the Suncoast Conference. Last week the Eagles went down to defeat to Boca Raton under the same 19-0 score. Martin County bowed to Lake Worth 20-0.

The Tigers, 3-1 for the season, dropped into a tie for the Western Division lead with Belle Glade, which beat Clewiston 20-6.

Current football schedule is:

Oct. 19, Thurs., Martin County JV at Belle Glade JV.

Oct. 20, Fri., Martin County Tigers at Boca Raton.

Chips, Divots And Tips by Matt Moore

When you start breaking your swing down into parts for analytical or learning purposes, then you are on the right track to acquiring a sound golf swing. There are as many parts to a golf swing as there are to degrees in a circle, but for simplicity of learning I keep it in two parts.

The first part is the back swing to completion. The second part the down swing to the finish. You might call these two chapters of two large keys of which many smaller keys make up the details.

FIRST PART: The fullness of the back swing is a start to creating the first part. With every full swing the club should be swung back until horizontal to the ground or just below horizontal depending on the wrist action used at the top of the swing.

Most common errors in the backswing are shortness and bending of the left elbow.

Both of these are created by faulty body action and balance and the most common error of the two is the bent left arm.

There are two ways to encourage a firm left arm. One is through calisthenics, such as swinging a club just held in the left hand. This puts stress on the left arm muscles.

The other is to balance on your right hip properly and wind the hips and shoulders fully, which allows the body to carry the load, thus not putting so much dependence on the arm. This gives you an order of movement for the back swing which is shift to the right hip and turn.

SECOND PART: The knack to swinging a golf club is in the second part, which includes the hitting position. The order of movement is the same as that in the backswing except that you shift to the left hip and turn.

The key to the down swing is the completion of your wrist break at the top, accompanied by the roll of the right foot as you start down. The roll of the right foot as you start down moves you back to the left hip for the delivery.

Remember two big keys for the back swing are to balance on the right hip and turn and be conscious of that firm left arm. The down swing will be easy if, as the wrists break at the top, you roll your right foot down to the ground till the club hits the ball.

Planning Begins

Jensen Chamber Endorses Recreational Activities

Planned recreational activities utilizing the Jensen Beach Community Center were endorsed Monday night by the members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce at a semi-annual meeting of the membership. The board of directors will look into the planning at its Monday night meeting, according to Chamber President Frank Forsberg.

Some of the activities presented for consideration by the board include dances, covered dish suppers, card nights and Bingo. "The winter visitors are crying for something to do here," said June Rice, operator of Ft-Tween Waters Mobile Park. Others agreed, and discussion of possibilities of social events caused excitement among the members.

One area of problem for the Chamber would be in who would coordinate the activities, as no one at the meeting would volunteer for the post. It was suggested by one of the members that new associate members be brought into the Chamber to help with the new activity. Associate membership in the Chamber is $10 for a year.

In other actions, the Chamber members spent considerable time discussing delinquent memberships of local businesses. In a report to the members, secretary-manager Reg Walker announced that there were 123 members paid for 1967, while in 1966 the Chamber had 149 members. It was pointed out by the manager and Vice President J. Fred Stivers that only one of the many gasoline stations and one food market in town were members of the Chamber.

Reporting the activity of the Chamber for the past year, Walker showed 3,560 pieces of mail received and 3,212 letters and cards mailed; 2,528 telephone inquiries were answered during that period and the Chamber had 2,877 visitors.

The Chamber distributed 3,869 maps and brochures and sent out 21,178 copies of the Resort and Fishing Guide.

Some of the major projects undertaken, often with the help and cooperation of other local civic and social clubs, were outlined by Forsberg. They included the July 4th Independence Day celebration, the Expo '67 water ski show team, the Labor Day celebration and the designation of the area as a wildlife and bird sanctuary.

Forsberg also announced that the Chamber will be represented in the Stuart Christmas Parade.

The possibility of a retail merchants committee of the Chamber was discussed at the meeting. Forsberg said that the board of directors would take up the subject at its next meeting to be held Monday.

Homecoming Weekend Activities

Cathy Bruner | Lynn Nanni | Sue Crook | Patti Irons

Homecoming week at Martin County High School will be climaxed with the football game against John L. Leonard High School Friday night at Long Field. However, the climax for the four lovelies pictured above will be the crowning of one of them as Homecoming Queen in pre-game ceremonies. Twenty-four girls were nominated by school classes and clubs for the honor and the queen will be elected Friday morning. Last year's winner, Rachel Fenton, will crown the 1967 Queen during ceremonies beginning at 7:30 p.m. This Homecoming Parade, with twelve floats, will begin at 7 p.m., Friday at Stuart Junior High School, including two school bands which will march in the parade. Following the game, a Homecoming Dance will be held at the high school gym with "Willie and the Adolescents" providing the music.

Lutheran Church To Hold Open House Oct. 29

On Sunday, Oct. 29, Redeemer Lutheran Church, Ocean Blvd., Stuart, will hold Open House for the entire community from 2 to 5 p.m., culminating a two-week celebration of the observance of the 450th anniversary of the Protestant Reformation.

A special feature of the afternoon will be the children's service at 3:45 p.m., in which all the children and young people of the congregation will participate to tell the story of the reformation in words and song. Visitors will be shown through the local facilities and, following the service, the ladies of the congregation will serve refreshments.

"The very idea of an open house," said the Rev. Donald K. Schroeder, pastor, "is to give the community of non-Lutherans an opportunity to see and know first-hand what the world's largest Protestant denomination is like and all about. We wish to open our doors and stretch out our hand in a sincere desire to become better friends with all the Christians of our community."

Testimonial Dinner For Walker Is Planned On November 13

"Because he has served the Chamber of Commerce with dedication and unselfish service, the board of directors is planning a testimonial dinner to honor Reg Walker, our secretary-manager," Chamber President Frank Forsberg thus announced the retirement of the popular Chamber manager at the general membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night.

Walker looked surprised, and pleased as Forsberg said he planned to have the committee for the dinner begin contacting all Chamber members to make reservations for a dinner in honor of Walker on November 13 at St. Lucie Country Club.

Forsberg said that the details had not yet been completed on the dinner, but that he would announce them following the meeting of the board of directors next Monday night.

Walker has been with the Chamber of Commerce in Jensen Beach for seven and one-half years, following his retirement from the railroad business.

Jury Members To Be Quizzed

Martin County will send questionnaire to each prospective member of the entire jury list as drawn, as required by new procedures of the state legislature, according to County Commission Chairman Jack F. Saunderson on Friday. Action will be taken as soon as possible, he said.

The constitutionality of the law has been upheld by Dade County circuit court, County Attorney Dell Tooker told Saunderson.

The local circuit will have a week of criminal trials starting Dec. 4, at which time jurors probably would be made available under the new process, Saunderson said.

Plead Not Guilty In Zoning Cases

Mrs. Henry Crews, Palm City, and Homer Wall, Indiantown, charged with alleged zoning violations under the Martin County code, have pleaded not guilty in court last week. Trials have been set for the week of Jan. 22.

Mrs. Crews, represented by Attorney Robert J. Randolph, had won a delay in which to appeal to the county zoning board and the county commission. The case was reopened in the court when both boards refused to alter provisions of R-4 residential zoning to permit operation of a florist's shop.

Wall had been ordered to construct a screening fence at the W&W Lumber Yard in Indiantown. The fence is partially constructed, he said.

PENNY'S CORNER

Now for the food. Try this new trick for Popcorn Balls. Combine a cup of light corn syrup with ¼ cup of sugar and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and stir in a package of flavored gelatin (try orange). Limit discovered. Add a half pound of salted peanuts (can be chopped) and pour over 5 cups of popped corn. Shape into 3 in. balls and chill. Makes 8 dozen. Glazed apples on a stick, cider, hamburgers, hot dogs and potatoes are all natural for a Halloween party. And you'll want something like brownies or a Halloween layer cake. Use your favorite cake recipe, cover with orange flavored frosting. Make paper cut outs of bats or Halloween cats and press into frosting. Remove and fill with a square of melted unsweetened chocolate mixed with a teaspoon of butter. If you're a believer save a small slice for the Great Pumpkin and have a fun filled Halloween Spook In.

4 Positions Of A Swing

I spoke of the two parts of a golf swing which are two big keys or categories, or chapters if you were writing a book. The continuity of the two parts is to break the swing down into four positions. The one you start a swing. If a club is swung back right and down right, it will time itself with good trajectory, good accuracy and good distance.

1. Starting Position: The starting position is of great importance because it gives you an impression to hit back to and stimulates the hitting position. The ball should be opposit your left heel to establish your line of flight and you should face this line to be square with the target. Your balance should be on your left leg with your hand behing the ball, your chin pointed down and back of the ball.

2. Back Swing Position: The back swing position is of great importance as here you are winding up for the delivery. The true way to wind up is to balance on the right hip, give it a full hip turn, let the arms back, then break the wrists. At the top, the club should be horizontal to the ground or just below horizontal.

3. Hitting Position: The hitting position is the most fundamental position of the four. All good players regardless of style back and down attain this position of success. In this category of the swing you can correct for ninty percent of your error. The big keys to this position are to have the right heel down and the right ankle rolled over before impact and the head up and back with the chin pointed behind the ball. These keys hold you parallel to your line of flight and puts the plane of your swing on the target.

4. Finish Position: This position is a result, not a cause and reflects the balance and movements as you operate in the other three positions. At the finish your balance should be on your left leg with the left side extended, the elbows should be pointed down and back again, as in the back swing, the club should be horizontal to the ground of just below. A good fellow through indicates a good swing so always try to be good in this position.

The easiest position to execute is the finish. The hardest is the back-swing position. Most important is the hitting position for here lies the knack. The starting position is of great importance as it simulates the hitting position. Rest assured that if your head is up and back and your right heel down at the hit you will do better for your swing and your score.

Next - The two balances of a golf swing.

Homecoming Friday

Tigers Down Bobcats 28-0

Martin County High School Tigers put on their best defensive show of the season Friday night when they met the Boca Raton Bobcats in Boca Raton. From the first play, the Tigers took charge of the game and brought a 28-0 victory back to Stuart.

Martin County scored twice in the first half, once by Georgs Dotson charging from the nine, and a second touchdown by Jim Dragseth who went over from the five after Cliff Hataway recovered a fumble at the Boca 38.

In the second half, the Tigers scored in each of the two periods, converting each touchdown and adding a two-pointer with a safety on the final play of the game.

Martin racked up 15 first downs to Boca's seven and rushed 287 yards to the Bobcat's minus nine.

Martin County JV's will meet Dan McCarty JV's on Thursday, Oct. 26, and on Friday, Oct. 27, Lake Worth Leonard will meet Martin County's Tigers at Long Field, Stuart.

Oct. 30, Dan McCarty JHS at Stuart JHS, and Nov. 7, Martin County JV at Jupiter JV.

Nov. 3, Martin County at Vero Beach.

Sailfish Tourney

Slightly changed rules have been announced by the Stuart Sailfish Club for its 14th annual light tackle sailfish tournament, scheduled for Dec. 10 through 16.

The chief changes are in the area of fishing and the time boats are required to return to Sewalls Inn headquarters, according to W. O. Simpkin, president of the 53-year old anglers club.

The tournament fishing area will be unrestricted, but all boats must return to the headquarters docks by 6 p.m. each day or be penalized by receiving no points for the day's fishing. Fishing will start at 9:30 a.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. each day.

Rules Of The Road

In the interest of better boating, The Mirror presents the second of a series of articles for sail and power boat owners. The series will cover common nautical terms, rules of the road, equipment and government regulations, aids to navigation, causes of accidents, in case of accidents, distress signals, weather; knots, bends and hitches; making fast at dock, anchoring, charts, common sense aids and a nautical glossary.

CROSSING OR MEETING OBLIQUELY

When two motor boats are on courses so that they are approaching each other at right angles or obliquely, the vessel which has the other on her own port side is the privileged vessel. The privileged vessel shall hold her course and speed. The vessel which has the other on her own starboard side is the burdened vessel and shall keep out of the way of the other vessel. These vessels exchange one blast of the whistle. The privileged vessel should blow first, although either may (See Fig. 1)

BOATS APPROACHING HEAD AND HEAD

Boats approaching each other head to head (heading directly toward each other) are required to exchange one blast of their whistles to signify their intentions and swing to starboard (right rudder).

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips

by Howard Lee Haid

'I Caught A Tiger'

This past week I have been bombarded by friends, enemies and the in-betweens with all types of comments about my famous or infamous column entitled "How To Catch A Tiger". Course, I am forced to admit I don't know a thing in the world about catching tigers, but I do so with tongue in cheek, for apparently the heading I used for the column caught a fair portion of the readers in its traps.

Maybe this serves as a lesson to many of us that all the things that sound, look and appear to be good are not necessarily so. Knowing the complete story from both sides gives a much better opportunity to decide whether one will be pro or con on any issue.

Many times in the world of sports various laws are enacted that drastically change the concept of the sport involved. Many times the armchair critics sit back and take pot shots at these changes without having a complete understanding.

Some recent laws pertaining to legal size of catfish, the fresh water variety, have made quite a change in this area. Size limits as I am now told will prohibit the taking of any fresh water catfish under seven inches. There is good and bad in this new law for it will affect the catfish restaurants that serve the delicious little fellows, better known to local natives as butter cats, from having them as a main item. Many people feel the smaller the fish the better the eating, and most often this is true, but with a continued depletion of the small, unreproducing size, a future shortage could occur anyhow if the former regulations were left in effect. Formerly these small catfish under seven inches in length, did not, or rather were not afforded the opportunity to breed at least one time. Now, under this new regulation, the replenishment of the species is assured and a step forward in conservation of our natural resources has been made.

The new law has drawn much criticism and comment that it would ruin the catfish industry, but I feel it has preserved the future of the industry and people will come to find out that a seven, eight or nine-inch catfish is just as good eating as the little four or five-inch ones were. Legalwise, I feel assured my grandchildren will have the opportunity to enjoy a catfish dinner and won't have to ask the question, "What did catfish taste like?"

Como Tourney

Less than a month after the first invitations were in the mail, the 280-player field for the sixth annual Perry Como Amateur golf tournament has been filled.

The four-day, 72-hole tournament will be held Nov. 23-26 on the twin courses at St. Lucie Country Club. The 285 men will challenge the 7,010-yard Sinners and the 6,547-yard Saints courses twice each.

Four of the five previous winners have turned pro so will not be entered here. However, Marlene Streit, Toronto, Ontario, women's titlist the past two years, will be back. Her number one challenger is Dorsey Johnson, Michigan City, Ind., a three-handicapper. Marlene Streit is a scratch player.

The field is divided into flights before the tournament starts on the basis of registered handicaps. Men's flights are scratch to 4, championship; and 5-8, 9-11, 12-14, 15-17 and 18-up. The women's division is 0-15, championship; 16-21, 22-27, and 28-36.

Editor Tells Students How To Use Newspapers

By Richard Campbell, Jonnie Wall, Meri Jo Bruns, Kalaya Hunter, Laverne Hill, Susan Griffiths, Tommy Hendricks, Margaret Talbert, and Karen Brunelle. Photos by Larry Crary, Kenny Casturo, Ricki Barfield, Scott Neal, Ivory McKnight, Rick Freital and Ted Thompson.

The use of a newspaper in the classroom, and what a newspaper has to offer the youth of Martin County was explained in a serims of lectures to the civics classes of Murray 9th Grade last Friday, October 20, by Richard Campbell, editor and publisher of The Mirror. Campbell spoke to the civics classes of Mrs. Tom Crook and Mrs. Ray Lorenz in a marathon series of five lecture periods.

The classes use The Mirror each week to study local problems and news, government and editorial policy as a part of the regular cirriculum.

Each class took a part of each period to write a news story under the direction of Campbell, and two members of each class use The Mirror camera to take pictures as photographers. In each case, the class lecture was used as the subject of the story, using the "who-what-where-when-why" method of seeking the information for the news story.

The classes used the latest issue of The Mirror to follow the path of a news photographer to get the many pictures used in the newspaper each week, and one class researched the number of photos in The Mirror, adding up 119 different times in the photographs in the issue.

Discussions of government, and an emphasis upon the editorial policy of all newspapers was the primary interest of most of the classes, according to Campbell. Students were given an explanation of the different types of editorials in all newspapers and were urged by Campbell to use their right to write an editorial of their own by using the "letters to the editor" column.

Another emphasis point was the right of a citizen to advertise if the editor did not feel that the information submitted did not deserve to be printed.

Politics Rears In County Meet

The first real sign of partisan politics reared its head in the county commission this week as County Commissioner Bill Hussey took issue with the proposed resolution by County Commissioner Frank Wacha over home rule and relief of ad valorum taxes.

Wacha proposed that the elected representatives of Martin County, all Republicans, "who had run on a platform of lower ad valorum taxes and home rule for our county," be notified by resolution that the county wanted tax relief and home rule to be passed in the next special legislature. Hussey leaped to the challenge.

"I don't feel we are right, since our representatives were not the party in power," Hussey said, adding that the Republicans were the minority party in the House and Senate in the last legislature.

"This is not an affront to anybody," Wacha said, "We need home rule and tax relief." Hussey said that he thought that the resolution should be directed to the entire legislature, and "must be framed right."

"As far as I'm concerned, Mr. Hussey," Wacha said, "you can frame it, as long as we get tax relief and home rule."

BUYS PRESS- Howard Haid, right, became editor and publisher of The Indiantown Press on November 1, according to an announcement by Richard E. Campbell, left, editor of The Mirror and former owner of the western Martin County newspaper. Haid has been advertising manager of The Mirror for three years, and has, for the past two months, acted as editor of The Press. The sale consummated several months of negotiations by the two newspaper. Campbell said, "I believe that Haid can do a great deal for the people of Indiantown, who need a voice with local ties to operate their newspaper," Haid said he planned no change in The Press at present, asking that he will be assisted by his wife Neida, and Press reporter Shirley Todd in the operation of the newspaper.

Discuss Building

A workshop session of the Martin County school board will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the superintendent's office, according to Supt. of Schools James Navitsky. The school building program will be discussed.

A representative of Peabody College, a Nashville, Tenn., college making a survey of the school system, is expected to attend.

Navitsky said he expected to get planning under way for the addition of classrooms and an administrative unit slated for Port Salerno Elementary School.

Also to be discussed is the use of Pure Track funds to finance a bond issue if needed. Special legislation would be needed before this could be accomplished, Navitsky said.

POINTS OUT AREA- An area of 144 acres was pointed out to citizens attending the County Commission meeting Tuesday by Col. Robert DeMarcellus, Florida National Guard, and Capt. Gerald M. Tracy, staff training assistant, as military officials explained the new firing range to be constructed south of Stuart.

144 Acres

County Leases Rifle Range To Military

Martin County Commissioners and Florida National Guard officials signed a ten (10) year lease Tuesday on a 144-acre tract of land, six miles south of Stuart for use as a training site by the National Guard and other military organizations.

Major General Robert A. Ballard and Colonel Charles M. Gilchrist, Jr., represented the State Military Department at the meeting. According to plans presented by Captain Gerald M. Tracy, project officer for the National Guard training site, the facility is planned to include a rifle range, pistol and machine gun range, confidence course, bayonet course, model Viet Nam village, combat in cities training area, bivouac area, range house and vehicle parking lot.

The training area which will be capable of providing facilities for the training of a battalion of troops, will also have a recreation area with swimming facilities.

National Guard officers emphasized that the training area will be used by all military services in south Florida, as well as being open to civilian use when not used by the military. Civilian use will be coordinated through the Sheriff's department.

Plans for the site include the building of a rifle, pistol and machine gun range with a 30-foot embankment to protect against ricochet. There will also be a model Viet Nam city for training exercises, and an area for riot control training, also a bayonet training site.

Approximately 3,000 militiamen from all branches of the service will use the range.

General Ballard assured concerned citizens that the largest weapons used on the rifle range would be 45 caliber pistols and 30 caliber rifles.

General Ballard pointed out the outstanding cooperation of other military services with the National Guard in the project. Seabees from West Palm Beach represented at the meeting by Lt. Commander Donald Murphy and Russell Gilbert. Army Reserve Engineers were singled out by General Ballard for particular praise, along with members of the Seabees. The services have completed a topographical survey of the terrain, and construction of the training facilities is scheduled to begin immediately.

General Ballard commented that the facility was greatly needed by the military in the state and would be a great asset in maintaining south Florida National Guard units at peak combat readiness. He hoped that the facility would also be a benefit to many civic groups of Martin County.

National Guard units of the 160th Transportation Battalion, headquartered in West Palm Beach, have assisted the county in moving over 500 junked cars from Martin County communities. It is planned to use junked cars as a base for the Rifle range back-stop.

County Avoids Dump Showdown

The Martin County Commission avoided a showdown over the new Martin County dump this week as it tabled until the return of vacationing County Attorney Dean Tooker any consideration of the lease of the dump to Henry Grien, its pending sub-lessee to the Hansfield garbage interests, and avoided a frontal attack by Grien, who, through his attorneys, Elton Schwartz said the county was defaulting on the lease.

The subject came up when Commissioner Bill Hussey asked why Martin County dump trucks were not allowed to dump county garbage at the site of the new dump. Just west of Palm City on Martin Grade. "The truck was turned away," Hussey said.

It was then that Hussey announced that he opposed any transfer of the property leased for the dump to anyone. He stated that Grien was rejected as the lessee of the dump on the basis of his financial condition and his ability to complete the agreements with the county.

At this point, Elton Schwartz said that the commissioners turned away an expert because the county was allowing the dumps on Hobe Sound and Indiantown to receive public garbage from, he said the Hobe Sound dump was in violation of health department rules, and passed that fact across the table.

Hussey pointed out that it was his understanding that the agreement with Grien was to handle garbage in the mid-Martin area, except for the Hobe Sound and Indiantown areas, specifically. Elton Powers agreed, but Grien pointed out that commercial garbage was also dumping free at the two latter areas and therefore the county was breaking its agreements.

Schwartz indicated that if the county trucks would continue to be barred from the dump until the county closed the dump.

With County Attorney Dean Tooker on vacation, Commissioner Frank Wacha forestalled an resolution on the problem "until he comes to us with any rules on the lease," and moved that the Hobe Sound and Indiantown areas be designated. Elton Powers agreed, but Grien pointed out that the agreement on the dump between Grien and Hansfield, and that the commercial haulers, which had not been taken out by the operator of the dump.

Jensen Gates Smashed

By Dick Campbell

The railroad crossing gates at Lundberrial street in Jensen Beach were smashed this week by an unknown motorist. The accident happened about 9 a.m. this week, the sheriff's office in Stuart said but not been notified, and The Mirror's inquiry, before this a report for the gate's shatter.

The smashing of the gate was just one of the many incidents confusing and perplexing citizens and visitors in Jensen Beach as the result of the railroad crossing gates that were erected by the sheriff's department points up the confusion.

For a week, the gates have jumped up and down, and mostly remained down, the bells have banged during the day as workmen for the railroad toiled along the stretch from Commercial Street north and south.

Automobiles piled back from the intersection of Commercial street and the Florida East Coast Railroad, waiting for the gates to rise. Then cars would bunch out, pose a tender issue into the closed crossing, and ease across the grade, usually facing another car coming from the other direction, just as deliberately.

One of the many incidents that have been reported to the railroad officials in Fort Pierce, "so many times I can't count them," according to Sheriff Bob Baker, "I have called each time we had a complaint that the gates were down. They said they would take care of it, and said it very nicely, and that was all," he said.

Every day, motorists have attempted to cross the railroad tracks in safety, often racing across, watching for the peace officers, and at that have narrowly miss hitting another automobile going just as carefully.

One of twice during the week, especially when the equipment was working on the tracks near Commercial Street, a dangerous working developed. Stalled traffic across the tracks, but on once or twice. The rest of the time the crossing, slowed and dangerous, was unmanned.

The efforts of the sheriff to have the crossing gates operate properly apparently fell on deaf ears in the "ears ones!" P.U.C. officials in Fort Pierce. The railroad men working on the line, improving the roadbed of the railroad, but a great deal more damage to the already shattered public image of the Florida East Coast Railroad than they did good for the road bed.

We can only assume that the attitude of the Florida East Coast Railroad is one that doesn't give one hoot for the people of Jensen Beach, well that attitude can work two ways. The people of Jensen Beach expressed their views in the words of one citizen who, when told of the wrecking of the crossing gate, said, "So?" and walked away.

Tuesday afternoon, late, the crossing gate was repaired, ready to again defy the automobiles of Jensen Beach public roads to pass. Meanwhile, the workmen toil, oblivious to the clang, clang of the bell, and the honk, honk of irate motorists whose lives are daily endangered by the deadly crossing gates being down.

The only solution to the problem, a crossing watchman guard, awaits the possibility of a serious accident in the hide-go-seek game of the F.E.C. at Commercial Street.

School Asking 4 Mills

Members of the Martin County School Board have recommended that taxpayers voting on Nov. 7 retain the four mills which were approved for school taxes two years, even though less than two mills of the county-wide millage has been used, according to Superintendent of Schools James Navitsky. He says the county-wide millage is needed for the building program ahead.

Navitsky pointed out that the county-wide millage is important to the school program. If the district millage is not passed, he said, the building program will be curtailed to a point where Martin County could not match available state funds.

The board levied only 1,698 mills for the district in 1967-68, even though the voters approved the four mills two years ago. Navitsky said the district millage was a cushion for the board, which has not levied all the millage voted by the citizens.

Only actual taxpayers may vote, although a total of 7,540 freeholders are registered, according to Mrs. Isabel Evans Smith, supervisor of elections. Absentee ballots may be obtained at the superintendent's office through Nov. 6, she said, but the deadline for taxpayers to register for the election has passed.

Voters will have the privilege of voting for more or less than the recommended four mills.

They left Jensen Beach on June 15, heading for New York City. Spending a week in the port, they were joined by Dr. and Mrs. John Gunsolus, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Langford, and their daughter, Sandy. They then went up the Hudson River and through the Erie Canal, the first canal built in the United States, to the Great Lakes, heading for Montreal and Expo '67.

"I think that Expo was beautifully managed and arranged," said Evinrude as he reminisced in the salon of the Chanticleer. "It was as good as, if not better than, the New York World's Fair. We thought it was great."

Staying for three days in Montreal seeing the exposition, the party then left for northern Canadian waters on a fishing trip. They headed for a favorite spot in the Georgian Bay area where they caught small and large mouth bass, northern pike and yellow perch. "We caught as many as we wanted," Evinrude said with a smile. "We always had a larger fish."

After two weeks of fishing in the cool, blue waters of Georgian Bay, the Evinrudes and party headed for Milwaukee, the summer home of the Evinrude family, and the home offices of Outboard Marine Corporation. The Jim Langfords and Dr. and Mrs. Gunsolus then returned to Martin County as Mrs. Evinrude reopened the summer home. "I had to do quite a bit of work at the plant," Evinrude said, "and we had the time, so we invited the wives of all the married members of the crew to come to Milwaukee from Jensen Beach to spend the three weeks with their husbands."

After the three-weeks stay in Milwaukee, the Chanticleer headed back for another few weeks of fishing in the Canadian waters. The Evinrudes were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Roland Merrell of Stuart, and the group then returned to Chicago in time for the Chicago Boat Show at the end of September. It was after the show that the yacht was headed back for Jensen Beach. They followed the Illinois River to the Mississippi River and down to the Gulf of Mexico.

"Everyone says that the Mississippi is dangerous," said Evinrude, frowning slightly. "Well, this is our fifth time to travel down the Mississippi, and we have yet to run aground, or hit anything. We follow every safety rule, and find boating more enjoyable because we take the time to plan each move, leaving nothing to chance."

Several days were spent in New Orleans and then the party went on to Cedar Key. There they visited the Roland Merrells, who have a cottage on the Key. An interesting sidelight to the day spent there was their meeting a young couple through the mayor of the town. The couple wanted to get married, and had come to Cedar Key from Gainesville for their nuptials and honeymoon.

Bessie Gibbs, Cedar Key's mayor, introduced the couple to the Evinrudes, who immediately offered the afterdeck of the Chanticleer for the wedding ceremony.

"They were real nice kids, and we even gave them the stateroom for their first night of the honeymoon. The couple, now Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Dicks, are sure to remember the first day and night of their wedding aboard the Chanticleer," Evinrude said.

The yacht left Cedar Key last Tuesday, October 24, and visited at Tampa, Fort Myers and crossed the Okeechobee Waterway, returning to Jensen Beach on Saturday.

"It was a wonderful trip, but it is great to be back home in Jensen Beach," Evinrude said.

anticleer slipped into its berth at Frances ingler, the popular singing star, her husband, Fred, a five-month tour aboard the yacht. The eturn trip to Mrs. John Gonsalus and Mr. and WELCOME HOME—Arriving back in Jensen Beach after a five-month trip up north aboard their yacht, Chanticleer, were Outboard Marine chairman Ralph Evinrude and his wife, Frances Langford, with guests Mrs. John Gonsalus and Mr. and Mrs. Evans Crary, Sr. There to greet them at the Chanticleer's dock is Frances Langford's Outrigger Marina were, at right, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lawrence and Mrs. Anne Langford, mother of the singer. The trip took the Evinrudes all the way to the northern Canadian waters.

Notes On The Veterans

by John W. Keller

Veterans just released from active duty have 10 days to advise Selective Service of their address in person, or by mail. The Selective Service office is at 426 Ave. A, Insurance Building, Ft. Pierce.

Widows and children of Viet Nam veterans are eligible for death indemnity compensation and all other benefits to which widows and children of all wars are entitled, as a result of Public Law 90-77 enacted in 1967.

Over 50% of Veterans Administration foreclosures on GI home loans is taking place in Florida.

Q. I have just received my dividend check on my National Service Life Insurance policy. This surprised me because I have not paid premiums on this policy for the past nine months because a waiver of premium has been in force. This waiver was granted because I am considered to be totally disabled and unemployable. Has a mistake been made? Will I have to refund the dividend?

A. No. The payment of this dividend to you is proper. Dividends are payable even though the policy is on a waiver of premium.

Your Social Security

by Dick Freeman

Q. When I applied for medicare last year, I did not want to pay $3 per month for the optional doctor bill insurance. Will I be eligible to apply for this part of the insurance later?

A. You will have only one more chance to apply for the doctor bill (supplemental medical) insurance. You may apply between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31, 1967. If you do not apply during this time, you will not be eligible to enroll again.

Q. My father is being fitted for false teeth. I have been informed that this can be paid for by medicare. Right?

A. Wrong. Some of the items that cannot be paid for by medicare are false teeth, hearing aids, eye glasses and prescription drugs.

Q. I plan to retire soon but have no birth certificate on record. What records can be used to prove my age for social security purposes?

A. Many people find their birth is not on record. Other records such as the federal census records, early school records, or early voter records can be used to help establish the date of birth for social security purposes.

LIVE....and love it

by Dick Campbell

By Golly, A Democrat

Jennings gave a find speech. We hope everyone, Republican and Democrat, reads it. While it is not a call for unity, it is a call for action... any kind of action.

The loudest sound in the world is quiet.

Harry Jennings looked over the top of a coffee cup and grinned that elfin-cracker grin for which he has become famous. "I'm even going to write a new song, a parody of 'Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home', and entitle it 'Bill Murphin, Won't You Get Our Representative Come Home'," he said.

He was talking about a proposed speech he planned to make before the St. Lucie County Democratic Executive Committee. Well, this brave Democrat, a state party committeeman, made the speech, and kinda shook the dickens out of politics in that county, and I must say it was a good one.

Jennings tore into Kirk, calling the past nine months of Florida history the "Kirk Crisis", and seemed tongue-in-cheek pleased that, "...the governor no longer looks on teachers as 'The Educational Mafia' composed of 'educrats' in a 'closed shop union' practicing 'blackboard power' and building a 'schmaze wall'."

He had a few words for the Fort Pierce News Tribune, owned by Perry Newspapers, based in West Palm Beach. "...it goes without saying that the editorial espousings of the local paper have now been swallowed up and the Palm Beach Perryism that dominated their (sic) view have had their (sic) limb sawed off while swinging at the top of the governor's tree of favoritism..."

Harsh words of a Democrat who is facing a political year? Of course. The first. The harbinger of election year, coming not early, but very late.

The words might cause a little action among the St. Lucie County Democrats, scattered they haven't even removed or painted out some of their major campaign posters in Fort Pierce from the last election. Something should cause something to happen.

I believe that an active, vibrant, two party system can be a great help to the people. The system keeps everyone on his toes, and aids in better representative government. Until Governor Kirk was elected, the two party system was within the Democratic Party, with conservative and liberal elements doing their in-fighting in the primary election. Now, that has changed.

But, with two defeats under their belts, the Democrats of this area seem to have layed themselves down to rest. They haven't tried to tie together their state or local organizations for a broad base of popular support. Each elected official keeps his small group of backers together, and the defeated candidates go off in a corner to lick wounds.

The one sure sign of strength of unity of any party is the primary election. The number of strong candidates contending for a single office usually indicates the strength of a party and is reflected in the vote of the party in the general election.

I wonder how many Democrats will be challenged from within the party this time?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

I am enclosing check to take advantage of your October offer of a year's subscription to The Mirror for $2.00. I almost feel guilty in paying half price for something I believe to be worth double the price. I have just finished reading the October 19 issue and I feel as if I had been right there in Jensen Beach visiting with you. I've enjoyed news and pictures of my friends. I have been well advised about what is going on in civic, church, political, social, building and business circles, as well as fishing and the many other sporting activities covered in your paper....and if I smoked a pipe I would know how to clean it!

And would you believe---my husband and I talk so much about Jensen Beach that our neighbors come in to read The Mirror because they find it so interesting. They don't know a soul they read about but they already like Jensen Beach and several plan to visit there this winter.

Gus and I will be seeing all you nice people in a couple more weeks.

Sincerely,
Mike Friedrichs
St. Leonard, Md.

To The Editor:

Congratulations on your sixth anniversary!

It is amazing the progress you have made since those first mimeographed papers. It is a pleasure to read your paper with the clear print and splendid photography.

I am taking advantage of your special offer to RENEW my subscription to The Mirror for half price, and am enclosing my check for $2.00.

Congratulations also for the many honors you have received on your excellent newspaper.

All good wishes for continued progress and success.

Sincerely,
Mary Lolene Stokes
(Mrs. John W. Stokes)

To The Editor:

I, as a parent, would be remiss, if I did not thank you, Ces, and your MIRROR crew for putting together, printing, and distributing the special edition of MARTIN COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL Homecoming Candidates paper.

This example of your dedicated public service, without fanfare, is another example of why JENSEN BEACH is growing to be the home of really nice, unselfish, and public-interested citizens.

Sincerely,
Philip M. Baker

YOUTHS HANDLE YOUNG– Members of the Junior Conservation Club of Martin County have been caring for a nest of green turtles at the Stuart Youth Center. It has taken 70 days for the nest of 74 eggs to hatch. The green turtles, three of which are shown above with Gary Garrall, David Brusen and James Cunningham, are being turned over to the Nature of Refuge where they will be raised for a year before being released. This project is possible through a state permit issued by the Florida Board of Conservation, supervised by its personnel, according to Jim McMahon, advisor to the club. Any person attempting to remove eggs and/or turtles from the beach without such a permit is liable to arrest.

School Audit Charges Overpayment Of Architects

It may be several weeks before the state attorney general's office will rule on the validity of claims made by the state auditor that Martin County school architects were overpaid more than $7,000 for work done during the four-year period.

The two architects involved, Richard Pryor and Donald Armstrong, have denied overpayment. They did work as requested by past school boards, they say, and billed for it. The state auditor claims there were no contracts, invoices or awards to back up the claims.

The situation has been presented to two attorneys for the State Department of Education at Tallahassee by James Littman, school board attorney; Pryor, and Frank DeStefano, senior member of the school board.

The interviews in Tallahassee were arranged by Superintendent of Schools, Jim Navitsky, to obtain opinions on the state level. The situation will be taken up with the attorney general, Navitsky said.

Sales Soar

Multiple Listing home sales are running about 10% ahead of last year, according to Dwight L. Clemens, chairman of the MLS of the Stuart Board of Realtors. Total amount of sales, as of October 25, has now gone over the million dollar mark, he announced.

MLS, cooperating the efforts of all Realtors, was started by the Stuart Board of Realtors in October of 1958.

Homecoming Crowd Pleased

Tigers Trounce Leonard 28-0 On Ground Game

Martin County High School Tigers had little trouble pleasing the Homecoming fans Friday night at Long Field. The local football team garnered its second straight 28-0 victory and third consecutive shutout against John L. Leonard High School of Lake Worth, now 2-6.

The Tigers picked up 243 yards in a brutaling ground game, rolling up a 20-0 halftime lead. The second half saw mainly Tiger reserves on the field.

Following a missed 26-yard field goal attempt by Leonard's Lancers in the first quarter, the Tigers marched 80 yards in 18 plays, with Jim Dragseth, quarterback, going over for the first score from the three. In the second quarter, halfback Jeff Bruner scored from the four. The third touchdown was set up by a Leonard fumble, recovered by the Tigers on the 29. Dragseth's nine-yard pass to Bruner racked up another six points for the local team.

Eight points were scored in the third quarter when Bruce Stiller blocked a punt which went through the end zone for a safety, and reserve quarterback Jim Naylor connected with Ray Meuse for a touchdown pass from the seven.

Leonard @ za on the Tigers' seven-yard line when the final whistle blew, and end Dave Sellers intercepted three M.C. passes during the Homecoming game. The Lancers had 114 yards rushing and eight first downs to the Tigers' 243 and 16.

MISSED IT--Speedy David Lowe just couldn't get there fast enough to spear the touchdown pass, but he had his man beat, just as Martin County High's Tigers did most of the game Friday night at Homecoming. The 28-0 defeat of John Leonard High gave the Tigers a 5-1 record for the year. Friday night they play tough Vero Beach at Vero.

DRIVING- MCHS quarterback Jim Dragseth tries to shake off a Lancer tackle (and did) as he sweeps around end on one of the many ground-gaining plays of the 28-0 romp over John Leonard High Friday night.

POWER--This is what the football players of John L. Leonard high school saw last Friday night as they absorbed a 28-0 defeat at the hands of Martin County High's Tigers. Jeff Bruner smashes through a hole in the line, heading for a score. Bruce Stiller heads for a block as quarterback Jim Dragseth watches his handiwork.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips by Howard Lee Haid

Meanest Critter In The Sea

Bluefish are about the meanest and most vicious critters to inhabit our local salt water areas, and the time for the mass migration of large schools from the north is drawing near.

Anyone who has done his share of bluefishing will have stories to tell about the nasty bite they received from one of the bliss devils. These fish see almost as well out of the water as they do in it, and as a result many an angler has received a severe bite through careless handling.

In the way of a tip for any newcomers to bluefishing, use extreme care in handling these critters. A pair of heavy work gloves will generally serve the purpose when removing them from the hook and will prevent a serious bite. Also remember this particular fish is quite aggressive and even after being removed from a hook it will snap at almost anything that passes within range while its strength lasts.

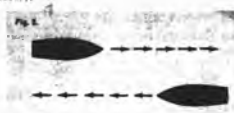
While my thinking runs along these lines, it is also interesting to note some of the other dangers the novice may encounter at his first attempt at salt water fishing, especially from a finny populus.

Most any of the salt water variety of fish can inflict painful and sometimes serious wounds to the unwary. High on this list is the sail water catfish, better known as Oscar the Terrible. This fish will, like the bluefish, deliberately try to injure you. The horns or spines of the catfish are covered with a light film which remains within the wound. This film is the culprit guilty of agravating pain and creating possible infection. Several other varieties commonly caught locally are the blowfish, sheepshead and snook, and all of these will get you if you don't watch them carefully. The blowfish and sheepshead are equipped with sets of teeth quite like that of a human and many a finger has fell the pain from their powerful jaws as they clamped down while the hook was being extracted. As for the snook, not being dangerous as a biting fish, he is equipped with razor-sharp gills. The razors are located on both sides of the head, and I can recall one friend of mine who required sight stitches to close the wound caused by one of these monsters.

The best advice I can offer is to use care with all varieties of the salt water fish and you may save yourself from experiencing a painful time. The greatest hazard to man is generally carelessness itself.

Rules Of The Road

In the interest of better boating, The Mirror presents the second of a series of articles for sail and power boat owners. The series will cover common nautical terms, rules of the road, equipment and government regulations, aids to navigation, cause of accidents, in case of accidents, distress signals, weather; knots, bends and hitches; making fast at dock, anchoring, charts, common sense afloat and a nautical glossary.



BOATS ON OPPOSITE PARALLEL COURSES

Two boats when on opposite parallel courses (heading in opposite directions) and far to the starboard of each other will exchange two blasts of the whistle to signify passing starboard to starboard. Both vessels will hold course and pass clear of each other. (See Fig. 3)

OVERTAKING

A boat is considered to be overtaking another boat when she is approaching the leading boat from more than two points abaft the beam of the leading boat. In this case, the leading boat is the privileged vessel and the overtaking boat is the burdened vessel. (See Fig. 4)

Tied For A-7 Lead

Martin County Tigers are tied in the race for Class A District 7 berth in the state playoffs, after beating John L. Leonard High School Lancers 28-0 Friday night. The Tigers' tie-mate is Merritt Island, following the Mustangs' shutout 18-0 by Daytona Beach Seabreeze last week. Both teams have 5-1 records for the 50 points in the standings.

The Tigers will meet Vero Beach at Vero Friday, Nov. 3, to meet the Indians who are riding high with three consecutive wins. Next Friday, Nov. 10, M.C. will meet Belle Glade, away, a team currently tied with the local Tigers for first place in the Suncoast Conference Western Division. Belle Glade smothered Jupiter 40-0.

Jensen Chamber To Form Retail Merchants Group

A retail merchants' division of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce will be formed, "if there is interest on the part of local businessmen", according to Richard E. Campbell, Mirror editor and director of the Chamber. Campbell was named to look into organizing the merchants group last Monday night at the Chamber directors' meeting to look into organizing a merchants' group, last Monday night.

The group will be formed around the nucleus of Commercial Street businessmen who banded together in the past few weeks to install Christmas lights on the Commercial Street, Campbell said. He added that the Commercial Street businessmen had donated $400 to put lights in the one-block-long business district. Each business on the block, with few exceptions, gave $25 to the fund. The Jensen Beach Bank and First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County each donated $50 to the fund.

The lights will be put up to be lighted on Saturday, Dec. 16. Boy Scouts of Jensen Beach Troop 401 are meeting Wednesday night (tonight) at The Mirror to put the lights and wires together under the direction of Jimmy Leonard and Campbell. Fifteen hundred feet of lights will be placed 20 feet above the street for the one-block area.

Leonard agreed to serve with Campbell on the organization of the merchants and said that the full organization of the merchants group would have to be delayed until the Florida Press Association Convention, of which Campbell is chairman and The Mirror is a host newspaper is ended.

Several attempts to form such a group in the past failed, five years ago an effort at a luncheon club, begun by local businessmen, failed after three months of meetings. Other attempts at organizing businessmen into an effective economic unit also failed. This is the first time that the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has sponsored the organization of such a group.

JENSEN BEACH MAN– The new executive secretary of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce is Jon Power, pictured above, of Castle Hill, Jewell's Point Rd., Jensen Beach. Power, who has lived in the area eight months, is replacing Reg Walker who has resigned after almost eight years with the Chamber. Born in Pittsfield, Mass., Power is a graduate of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., and of Oxford University, England. He retired in 1963 from national advertising business and traveled the States, Mexico and the Islands looking for his Shangri-la, which he says he has found in Jensen Beach. The new executive secretary has a son in New York, a two and a half year old grandson and a six-months old granddaughter.

U.S. Secretary Of Commerce To Address Florida Newsmen

Alexander B. Trowbridge, U.S. Secretary of Commerce, will be the featured speaker at the Florida Press Association's 88th annual convention at St. Lucie Country Club next week, according to Richard E. Campbell, chairman of the convention and publisher of The Mirror.

Trowbridge confirmed the speaking engagement Tuesday afternoon. He will speak to the assembled publishers and editors of Florida's daily and weekly newspapers on Saturday night at a banquet in the Great Hall of SLCC.

Also featured at the convention will be Governor Claude Kirk, who will speak Friday night in a first-year report to newspapermen. Kirk promised the Press Association that he would speak on his first year at the 87th convention, last year in Cocoa Beach, following his election as Florida's first Republican governor.

Speaker for the Friday luncheon of the convention will be Congressman Paul Rogers, who visited in Martin County Tuesday to discuss arrangements for the convention talks with the convention chairman. Rogers' wife, Becky, will be guest speaker at wives and society editors of the association members on Saturday morning.

The convention will be a four-day affair, starting on Thursday afternoon with the first PPA Golf Tournament. Thursday evening there will be a dinner meeting of the board of directors of the association in the Great Hall of SLCC.

On Friday there will be a full day of activity, with meetings throughout the day. In the afternoon, Henry A. Huettner, regional director of the U.S. Department of Labor, Wages and Hours Division, will speak to the publishers as their wives and women's editors are feted with a fashion show and tea at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant. Latest Italian imports will be shown by the Outrigger Fashion and Gift Shop in a preview of the season's showing.

Back at St. Lucie Country Club, the editors will be hearing from Frank Bacon, a former weekly newspaperman and member of the faculty of the University of Florida, and Price A. H. Daniel, Jr., general manager of the St. Augustine Record and legislative chairman of the association.

A cocktail party hosted by the Fort Pierce News-Tribune and the Palm Beach Post-Times will precede the evening banquet, a Florida seafood dinner prepared by the Department of Conservation. Governor Kirk will speak at the banquet.

Past presidents of the association will meet Saturday morning, the new master and new officers of the association will be elected in the Saturday morning business session.

A breakfast for the ladies of the convention will be held Saturday morning at which Mrs. Rogers will be the speaker. Following the talk by Mrs. Rogers, there will be a hair-styling and wig fashion show presented by Miss Beauty Salon and His and Hers Sportswear of Stuart.

The men luncheon on Saturday will be the annual awards presentation luncheon of the FPA weekly division, at which newspapermen will receive awards in the "better newspaper contest" for Florida weeklies. Afternoon sessions of the association will center around a semi-trade equipment dealers, and a show of newspaper equipment.

Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation of Stuart is host to the publishers for a cocktail party preceding the banquet at which Secretary Trowbridge will speak. Following the banquet, a floor show of Florida Press talent will be held in the Great Hall.

On Sunday, the new board of FPA will meet to organize, and the golf tournament will be concluded.

The convention is hosted by The Stuart News and The Mirror.

Legion Activities

Members of the American Legion Post #126, Jensen Beach, and Auxiliary have a full schedule planned for the next few weeks.

On Sunday, Nov. 12, all veterans organizations will attend 11 a.m. services at Trinity Methodist Church in Jensen Beach. Each organization will bring its colors and members will wear hats and, or white dresses.

A Post Everlasting ceremony will be held Nov. 13, prior to the regular meeting.

New members welcomed into the Auxiliary recently are Peggy Williams, Joan Masters and Belle Sweetman.

Bingo parties are being held Thursday nights, with Lorraine Middleton and Emma McCue in charge.

Kitty Robertson and Dorothy Smouse are collecting stamp books which are needed for a second coffee urn.

Approves Funds For Ambulance

A federal matching-fund allowance for Martin County's share of the Baird Ambulance Service annual fund has been approved by Gov. Claude R. Kirk, according to papers signed Friday, Federal approval is expected to follow Kirk's recommendation. The action was taken by Kirk after County Commission Chairman Jack F. Saunderson and County Commissioner Bill Hussey spoke in Tallahassee to personnel in the state treasurer's office about matching funds.

The county has been paying on a monthly basis $9000 of the $12,000 annual public contribution toward the ambulance service. The City of Stuart contributes the balance.

The expected $4,500 will go to the county for monthly distribution to the ambulance service. An additional $1,500 might have been available, according to spokesmen in Tallahassee, if the city had applied for matching funds.

Mail Early

The Post Office Department breaks records for mail volume every Christmas, and 1967 is expected to break more records than any previous year, according to Mrs. Charlotte Rynski, Clerk-In-Charge of the Jensen Beach Post Office.

Mrs. Rynski urges that the following dates be observed for domestic surface mail: gifts to distant states, Dec. 4; greeting cards to distant states, Dec. 10; gifts and greeting cards to nearby areas, Dec. 18; gifts and cards by domestic airmail, by Dec. 19.

Sailfish, Ho! Inlet Or No

The Stuart Sailfish Tournament, scheduled for the weekend of Dec. 9, will go on as scheduled, whether or not the St. Lucie Inlet is dredged by then, according to club president Bill Simpkin.

At last week's annual club dinner, Simpkin urged members to send telegrams to Cong. Paul G. Rogers asking for immediate action. He pointed out that Rogers had been very cooperative in the past in having work done on the inlet.

Sandbars, hazardous to boat traffic, have formed in the inlet again, as shown by a survey by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Simpkin suggested that the side-casting dredge Merritt be sent to this area for emergency action if the corps is unable to clear the inlet prior to the tournament. The Merritt has cleared away the sand in the St. Lucie Inlet twice during the past year.

The tournament was postponed last year because of the unsafe inlet and was held in January.

This month bids for clearing the inlet probably will be awarded, following proper easements provided by the county to the Corps, according to Commission Chairman Jack Saunderson.

A safe inlet is the key to the development and economy of the county, Simpkin said.

Women Get Four Kiplinger Acres

The Jensen Beach Academy Association voted to accept a donation of four acres of land on Sugar Hill Road from the Kiplinger Association at its meeting on Monday, according to information received Wednesday week. The gift, over a year in the negotiation stage, is from the Kiplinger Trust Fund.

The land is on both sides of Sugar Hill Road and includes 1200 feet west of the Jensen Cutoff Road, a mile west of the Indian River.

Negotiations are now under seal to transfer the land to the Academy Association. The site could be the future home of the Academy Association, but that could not be confirmed at this time, Mrs. Edwin Miller, president of the club, refused to speculate on the future use of the land, but did acknowledge that the land had been offered to the club. Elevation of the prime acreage is from 25 to 30 feet above sea level.

Schools 4 Mills

The school board-backed request for four mills got an okay from the sparse 1,683 voters who took the time to go to the polls Tuesday, as 993 cast their votes in favor of four, and 690 voters picked anything from zero to ten mills.

Of the 690 voters who picked something other than the four suggested mills, 299 voted zero, with Jensen Beach's Precinct One casting fifty of the ballots for no school millage, for the highest response in the county. One hundred and forty-five of the 258 Jensen Beach voters cast a ballot of four mills.

Tanners Arrive With New Travel Trailer

Willis and Lulu Tanner arrived at their trailer-cabana on Seventh, October 29, with a new Norris travel trailer to replace the one lost in the traffic last July at Kittyhawk, N.C. At the time of the accident they were travelling in a sixlane highway when another car struck their trailer violently in the rear. The impact was so great that the spring bars of the trailer hitch were sckled and the trailer was ushed into the rear of the ..ar, doing five hundred dollars worth of damage to the car. The trailer itself was a total wreck. It was fortunate that no one was hurt. Willis said the damage was paid for in full, and cheerfully so, by the other party.

They returned by way of the Blue Ridge Skyline Parkway and thoroughly enjoyed the fall foliage although it was a bit late for some of it. The scarlet leafed oaks contrasted with the yellows of the basswood trees to make a pretty picture. Willis is of the opinion that October 15 would be the ideal time for best color most years.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hulbert are spending two weeks with us. They have rented the Leon Ecklund trailer on Pepper.

Mrs. Hattie Adrean heard from the Carl Hynds of Cosomo, Indiana, that Mrs. Hynds had suffered a heart attack some time ago. She is now out of the hospital and doing nicely. They will be down as soon as she is well enough to travel.

Shufflers Organize

A meeting to organize the Shuffleboard Club for the 1967-8 season was held in Clement Hall the morning of November 6. The interest people show in this meeting was demonstrated by a full house. The officers for the present season are:- President, Nae Calder; Vice President, Bob Robinson; Secretary Treasurer, Charles Lord (not present); District Delegate, Sam Koslow; Delegates to Indian River League, Bill Krowarz and Harvey Hill; Round Robin manager, Are Lewis; Instructor, Archie Faille; Refreshment committee; Mary Wall and Jan Koslow.

The Daley trailer immediately north of the shuffle courts has been sold and we understand the new owners are expected to arrive about November 15.

Tuckers Tour In Trailer Cavalcade

We joined our thrid and last cavalcade at Calgary, Alberta. It was a standstill time and occupants of 80 Avions took in this famous spectacle. All Calgary is in holiday spirit during Stampede week. From Calgary the cavalcade travelled to Banff, the Columbia Ice Fields where we had a ride in a snowmobile upon this big glacier. Then back to Lake Louise and down the lake studded Windermere Valley where the mighty Columbia River has its source. We camped at Grand Forks, a little town almost on the International boundary, then on west to Nelson, Coukhobor country. It was in this neighborhood that a sect of the Doukhobors gave so much trouble years ago in burning schools and highest pass in British Columbia. We had to travel in low gear 6,000 feet up and the same down again. The Nelson Chamber of Commerce put on a square dance for us and a show for our entertainment.

We travelled up the scenic Okanagon Valley where most of Western Canada's fruit is grown through Penticton, and Vernon to Kamloops. It was at this place that we had a rather exciting and somewhat amusing experience. Our cavalcade arranged for four busses to take us to a chair-lift. This is a very long ride, taking over three hours for the round trip. Each chair had a safety bar which when snapped into place, makes it impossible for the passenger to fall out. On completing the round trip, as each chair reaches the platform, the passenger having raised the bar, steps out while the chair is in motion. One lady evidently got panicky and failed to raise the bar properly and didn't manage to get off. The chairlift was stopped, but there was no way to back it up, so some way of rescuing the lady had to be found. The lady and her chair were about 30 feet from the ground. Eventually someone suggested tying ladders together; so three ladders were tied securely together to make one long ladder to reach the chair. Next a "Hero" had to be found who would do the rescuing. A big husky young man volunteered. He climbed the ladder, tied the top securely and coaxed the lady down the ladder guiding her and talking to her all the way down.

In the meantime, there was I and the balance of our party, suspended in our chairs, far from the ground, with nothing to do for an hour or more but to think of the nice ice rooms we had failed to patronize before starting on this trip. The situation was becoming quite serious when with a sigh of relief we felt the chairs begin to move again. It was late when we arrived at the camp but not so late as it would have been if we had waited for that lady to make her solo 3 hour trip around.

At Hope we stopped to see where the earthquake of 1965 had shaken and started a landslide of millions of tons of rock and earth which filled the valley and buried four persons. The slide was about eight miles south of the town.

At Vancouver the cavalcade disbanded and we said goodbye to the many good friends we had made during our travels. We made a short trip to Victoria on Vancouver Island and visited Bucharts Gardens. We found these gardens even more beautiful than we had been told they were. After returning to the Mainland, August 13, we booked up to our trailer home again and hit straight for our home at Flint, Michigan, 2,600 miles by our mileage meter."

The End

Note: Before Ralph Tucker retired in 1963 we worked for many years in the Buick Engineering Department at Flint, Michigan. One would think that after all the travelling they did this year, some 30,000 miles, the Tuckers would be glad to take it easy for a time, but not them. They are already making plans for a Hawaiian cavalcade tour for next summer.

At St. Lucie Country Club

Florida Newspapermen's Convention This Week

--FPA--

Active Business Sessions Will Be In Four Day Meet

--FPA--

'Better Newspapers' Contest Will Be Convention Highlight

Congressman Paul Rogers will address newspapermen Friday at noon.

Mrs. Paul Rogers, 'Becky', will address FPA ladies at a Saturday morning breakfast and wig-hair fashion style show.

Three speakers of national note will be on the rostrum of the Florida Press Association's 88th annual convention at St. Lucie Country Club this Thursday through Saturday, offering a complete cross-section of political society to the weekly and daily newspapermen of this state.

The program will feature Congressman Paul Rogers Friday at noon, Governor Claude Kirk at a Friday night banquet, and U.S. Secretary of Commerce Alexander Trowbridge at the Saturday night banquet. All events will be in the Great Hall of the country club.

The convention will get under way Thursday afternoon with the beginning of the Florida Press Association Golf Tournament, open to newspapermen in the 'working press' levels of the fourth estate. Thursday evening there will be a dinner meeting of the board of directors of the association. Chairman of the convention is Dick Campbell, editor of The Mirror, and a member of the board of the FPA.

One of the highlights of the convention will be 2 private hospitality house for the private discussions of the newspapermen. The house will be hosted by Florida Power & Light Company and will be open to the newspapermen when the convention is not in session.

Meetings will be held Friday throughout the day. In the afternoon, Henry A. Huettner, regional director of the U.S. Department of Labor, Wages and Hours Division, will speak to the publishers, as their wives and women's editors are feted with a fashion show and tea at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant. Latest Italian imports will be shown by the Outrigger Fashion and Gift Shop in a preview showing of the season.

Back at St. Lucie Country Club, the editors will hear from Frank Hash, former weekly newspaperman and member of the faculty of the University of Florida, and from A. H. Telsaint, Jr., general manager of the St. Augustine Record and legislative chairman of the association.

Fort Pierce News Tribune and Palm Beach Post Times will host a cocktail party preceding Friday's banquet, a Florida seafood dinner prepared by the Department of Conservation.

Past presidents of the association will meet at breakfast Saturday morning, and new officers of the association will be elected at the morning business session.

The ladies will meet for breakfast Saturday morning with Mrs. Paul Rogers as the speaker. Following her talk there will be a hair-styling, wig and fashion show presented by Elka Beauty Salon and Nik and Nets Sportswear of Stuart.

The annual awards luncheon of the FPA weekly division will be held Saturday at noon. At this time newspapermen will receive awards in the "better newspaper contest" for Florida weeklies. Afternoon sessions of the association will center around a seminar by equipment dealers, and a show of newspaper equipment.

Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corporation of Stuart will be host to the publishers for a cocktail party preceding the banquet at which Secretary Trowbridge will speak. A floor show of Florida Press talent will be held in the Great Hall following the dinner.

The new board of FPA will meet to organize on Sunday, and the golf tournament will be concluded.

U. S. Secretary of Commerce Alexander Trowbridge is the Saturday speaker.

The annual 'better newspapers' contest of the Florida Press Association will be one of the highlights of the four-day convention of the association of weekly and daily newspapers in this area this week. The contest draws together all the newspapers in the weekly field in Florida in common competition in all areas of journalistic achievement.

At the Saturday luncheon, the annual awards will be presented to the winning newspapers. The contest entries of the many newspapers are judged by national prizewinning newspapermen outside of Florida. Only the secretary-manager of the association knows who the winners are until the luncheon.

A crowd of some 400 to 500 newspaper people from throughout Florida will fill the Great Hall of St. Lucie Country Club for the awards luncheon. Chairman of the better newspapers contest is "Sonny" Stalls, managing editor of the Clewiston News. He will present the awards to the winning newspapers.

There will be twenty first-place plaques presented in as many divisions of the contest. Also, sixty second, third and honorable mention certificates will be awarded to the competitors. Word has already been received that The Mirror and Stuart News will be among the winners, though no one yet knows in what divisions they have been awarded recognition. Last year The Mirror won nine awards and the News five. The two newspapers are co-sponsors of the convention.

Following the awards banquet, the various winning entries will be on display for the conventioneers to see.

News Coverage

Complete news coverage of the convention is being handled by a pool of local newspapermen. Representatives of The News Tribune, Miami Herald and local newspapers will photograph and write about each event of the day, making mimeograph copies of their stories for all newspapers desiring coverage. Also, a complete darkroom will be set up to permit the team of photographers to give one-hour service of photos of convention activities to statewide newspapers. The plans of convention chairman Dick Campbell are to provide the fullest coverage of all events to all concerned in the history of FPA conventions.

Governor Claude Kirk will address newsmen at a Friday night banquet.

James Jesse, president of FPA, will preside at the convention this weekend.

Robert R. Feagin, vice president of FPA, is in line to succeed Jesse at convention.

Retires After 8 Years

Over 100 Remember 'Reg' At Testimonial Banquet

Reg Walker retired from eight years as secretary-manager of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce amid tumultuous applause of over 200 Chamber members last Monday night at a testimonial banquet in his honor at St. Lucie Country Club.

When he was presented with a plaque, designed in the shape of the State of Florida, and engraved with remembrance of his eight years with the Chamber and making him an "honorary manager for life", Walker became so choked up in an emotional attempt to speak he had to sit down.

"I hope you'll excuse me," Walker tearfully said, after having described himself as only "the reminder" to the people "who did all the work".

Master of ceremonies for the testimonial was Frank Wacha, county commissioner, himself a past-president of the Chamber. He introduced three other past-presidents, Dorothy Artt, Richard Campbell and Albert Palmer, who talked of their experiences as presidents when Walker was manager. He also introduced Frank Forsberg, president of the Chamber and a past-president, who made the presentation of the plaque to Walker and praised him for his years of hard-working dedication.

Chamber members were lavish in their ovation for the popular manager, standing for a full five minutes to applaud the man who was the backbone of the organization in the past eight years. Some were tearful during the moments of Walker's attempts to speak. Walker's wife, Grace, sat at the head table, proud of the recognition given her husband.

Wacha introduced the new Chamber manager, John Power, who said he would do the best he could for the Chamber, adding that he would need the help of all Chamber members in his work.

WE THANK YOU, REG--More than 100 persons attended the testimonial dinner Monday night held at St. Lucie Country Club for Reg Walker, retiring after eight years as executive secretary and manager of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce. Frank Forsberg, left, president of the Chamber, presented a plaque in the shape of the State of Florida to Walker, right, who accepted it with deep emotion.

City, County Share Bridge Survey Cost

At Monday night's meeting, the City of Stuart:

Agreed to pay half the county's cost for the engineering survey to widen the Poppleton Creek Bridge, over objections by City Commissioner Jack Hartman.

Heard County Commission Chairman Jack Saunderson, who attended the meeting with Vice-chairman Herb Bruner, ask the city to contribute $500 to the cost of the engineering survey. Bruner said the centre cost of widening the bridge would come to about $10,000 to $12,000, widening it from 16 to 20 feet, and widening the road within 200 feet of the bridge from 18 to 20 feet.

The city agreed to the request.

Eight Being Considered For Jensen Postmaster

The U.S. Civil Service Commission is currently conducting an investigation of applicants for the position of postmaster at the Jensen Beach Post Office.

The eight local applicants are: Clarence A. Allen, Jr., Robert H. Cruse, Joseph A. Kling, Raymond J. Lorenz, Osmond S. Newsam, Ralph A. Norkin, Charlotte B. Hynski and Harold C. Sulzer.

Following the investigation, a certificate of eligibles will be sent to the Post Office Department containing the names of the three highest applicants, according to a notice received by The Mirror from John B. Sanchez, investigator for the U.S. Civil Service.

The appointment, expected the early part of 1968, is made formally by the President and must be confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

Thanksgiving Services Set

Union Thanksgiving Service will be held Nov. 23 at 10 A.m. at Trinity Methodist Church, Arch St., Jensen Beach. Participating churches include Baptist, Christian and Community.

State-Federal War On Mosquitoes

Mosquito control agents representing state and federal interests are battling the deadly Aedes Aegypti mosquito in Martin County, according to Bill Hussey, County Commissioner. This mosquito transmits yellow fever to man, and this county has one of the highest counts of this type mosquito in Florida.

The move is part of a comprehensive program directed at eliminating this mosquito from the Western Hemisphere and will be done at no cost to the taxpayers of Martin County, Hussey said. In this county 73 of the Aedes Aegypti have been found out of 4,500 trapped, he added.

Sprayings and trappings will continue for about 10 days, with concentrations on the breeding places, open water in cans and jars, and drainage ditches and the like.

Fogging was suggested as the best way to combat the mosquito and is used almost exclusively now in this locale, according to Hussey, who said the county does not use any appreciable amount of DET in the fog.

ELEVENTH HOUR--A stirring message by 92-year young Capt. Francis Adams, a veteran of the Spanish-American War and Martin County's patriotic firebrand, as he told a Veterans' Day gathering in Jensen Beach, "This is my country, so say we, all of us." Adams urged greater feeling for Americanism in a short, but very spirited speech, saying, "We have lived in the eleventh hour ever since Armistice Day in World War One."

Tigers, Rams Battle To Scoreless Tie

Martin County's Tigers and Belle Glade's Rams, both unbeaten in Suncoast Conference Western Division, battled to a scoreless tie Friday night at Belle Glade.

The Tigers led in first downs, 12-6, and racked up 155 yards rushing against 53 yards for the Belle Glade team. Martin County executed more than twice as many offensive plays and led 55-44 in aerial yardage.

The Tigers achieved two scoring opportunities in the first quarter, once on the 5 and once on Belle Glade's 20. Belle Glade reached the Tiger 32 after taking the opening kickoff, which was as close as they came to pay dirt.

In the second half, only once did either team cross the midfield stripe. With a first down on the 50, Jim Dragseth of the Tigers ran for five yards, losing that on the next play. Belle Glade recorded only one first down in the second half.

Friday night's game was the second tie 26 matches between these two teams, with Belle Glade leading 14-8 in the competition.

On Friday, Nov. 17, Martin County goes to Okeechobee for a game, and on Saturday, Nov. 22, will play Jupiter at Long Field Stadium.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips by Howard Lee Haid

Our Ingenious Young

The ability of youth to cope with every day situations never ceases to amaze me. They seem to be equipped with some uncanny sense in solving problems some of us older folks find almost unsolvable.

A short time ago I watched two small boys trying their luck at the noble art of fishing, and they were doing quite well while the bait lasted. Having no money the two youngsters looked for other things they could use as bait and finding no natural baits available, like enterprising youngster unlaced one of his shoes, removed the lace, cut a strip from it, attached a hook and each boy began to cast and proceed to catch fish consistently.

Analyzing this ability to cope with the situation as such we determined that it is reasonable to understand how and if adults show lack would of would lack like a tempting worm to the hungry fish. It is an idea I'm sharing in the face of my mind for the day when all else fails, I'll try the old Huck Lace trick to find out.

Another time the ability of youth amazed me was this past summer while I was here living in the summer part of a pair of youngsters, plus other assorted adults. The hottest season had just begun and I with my usual gardening was out in the heat of the spines lexils. Two of my grandchildren had driven us over, which calls the subject without the front side of the family and, of course the youngsters didn't need gloves cause they couldn't stand their stickers. I entered awhile by one of these young fellows for the loan of a glove, I relinquished one of mine to him and smiled, thinking he would learn the hard way. On his first dive after one of them spiney creatures the youngster emerged with a good size one in hand and said, "See I told you I could catch one."

So...alright, already...I know when I have been had, but on occassions like these I don't mind it a bit, for I think there is nothing finer to witness than the ability of youth to cope with the situation. The youth of today is the Adults of tomorrow and by encouraging them to use their abilities should provide us with a better world in which to live...

Rules Of The Road

In the interest of better boating, The Mirror presents the fourth in a set on of articles for sail and power boat owners. The articles covers operation rules of the road, equipment and government regulations, aids to navigation, cause of accidents. In case of accidents, distress signals, weather; knots, bends and hitches; making fast at dock, anchoring, charts, common sense afloat and a nautical glossary.

RIGHT OF WAY -- SAILING VESSELS

The right of way between two sailing vessels is determined by the direction of the wind in reference to the boats direction at the time. The present rule is that a vessel running free must give way to a close-hauled vessel. However, effective September 1, 1965, the New International Rules of the Road are revised to give right of way to the vessel on the starboard tack (having wind over her starboard side), regardless of the point of sailing. If two vessels are on the same tack, the leeward boat is privileged. (See Fig. 5)

Sailing vessels do not exchange whistle signals. A sailing vessel when under sail and auxiliary motor (motor running) is considered to be a motor vessel and does not have any right of way other than that of a motor vessel.

Scofields Travel With Airstream Trailer

Harold and Mabel Scofield arrived at their home on Ocean Breeze Drive with their Airstream travel trailer Thursday November 2 after a summer of traveling, during which they covered 9,500 miles of earth. They left their home at Willard, Ohio, on June 9, and headed for California where they attended the Airstream Rally at Santa Rosa from June 22 to July 5. After the rally they headed south.

Vancouver, Canada, Victoria, Lake Louise and Banff, leaving the mountains they traversed the prairie provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Northern Ontario. They crossed into Michigan at the Soo and after about three months in the north they headed for home where at time of writing it is on their lot in the process of being unloaded. Harold says their trailer is self contained and is very satisfactory in every way.

Harold worked in the J. C. Penney store in Buffalo, Wyoming for 20 years and was manager of the store when he quit in 1964. He then went into business for himself, handling pretty much the same line of goods that he had been used to, in the town of Willard, Ohio.

Thank You

I wish to thank my friends for their letters and cards and those who visited me during my 22 days stay in the Martin Memorial Hospital and for other kindly gestures. I am glad to say I am well on the way to complete recovery.

Don Houchin's Art Class

Don and Agness Houchin are back at their mobile home on Melaleuca Drive after spending the summer at their home at Scarborough, Toronto, Canada. Don says they were at home most of the time except for the two weeks when they visited Carl and Bessie Theilig at their home in Minneapolis. The Theiligs are old friends of the Houchins and they had a fine time together.

Regarding the Art Class; Don says a meeting is planned for Tuesday November 14, to organize for the season, but Don thinks it is quite safe to say the Art Class will be held every Tuesday, beginning next Tuesday.

Schumanns Write

Nixon Trailer Wrecked

Jim and Ellen Nixon accompanied Ellen's mother Mrs. Allen as far as the park after spending the summer in the north. The Nixon's headquarter were Middletown, Ohio, the home of the Coleman Bros. Shows on their route that carried them through the states of Connecticut and New York. Jim says they had a good summer and met a lot of Ocean Breeze friends on their travels.

At the season's end they went to New York City as then (really X and took in two very good shows, after which they drove to Millbridge, Maine and picked up Ellen's mother and started south for Ocean Breeze. All went well till they were near Trenton on the Jersey Turnpike. The Nixon car and trailer were in the outside lane of a six lane highway. A truck trailer was following behind them when another truck-trailer changed lanes to pass the other truck-trailer. The driver of the passing truck after passing the other truck swung back into the right hand lane evidently without looking and crashed into the Nixon trailer, completely demolishing it, then side-swiped the car, ripping about a thousand dollars worth of damage to it.

Jim Nixon, who was driving, had crept into the rear of the driving mirror carefully, to keep out of all trailer, upright and bracing them in a step on the shoulder of the road. The truck driver also stopped and came back to see if anyone was hurt. Luckily, everyone was hurt except for a few bruises, thanks to Jim's good handling of his car.

Jim managed to rent a U-Haul truck in which he put all the top and trailer's contents and drove the rest of the way in that manner. It was a hard and tiring trip for Jim and Ellen and they are very thankful that none of them got hurt.

BLYTHE'S CASSIA BUSH- Jim and Mary Blythe returned to their nicely landscaped home on Melaleuca last week to find their yard well cared for during their absence. The parties particularly enjoyed their Cassia bush which was in full bloom when they arrived. Mary said they had a cloud economy at Plymouth, Maine, and they can really appreciate the Florida sun and warmth all...

Olingers Visit Yukon Territory

Jim and Stella Olinger returned to their mobile home on Ocean Breeze Drive last week, the were on their way back from Alaska and the Yukon Territory where they had spent the summer and most of the spring prior to that. They left Florida in the early spring, and headed for Cleveland, Ohio, where they visited friends and relatives for a few days before continuing on their way to Alaska.

While driving through Canada they visited many points of interest, including Niagara Falls, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton, Dawson Creek, Fort St. John, Fort Nelson, Watson Lake, Whitehorse, Carcross, Skagway, Juneau, Ketchikan, Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo, Parksville, Qualicum Beach, Courtenay, Campbell River, Port Hardy, Prince George, Quesnel, Williams Lake, Cache Creek, Kamloops, Chase, Salmon Arm, Revelstoke, Golden, Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper.

Jim says, "We had a wonderful trip and enjoyed every minute of it. We saw some of the largest bears we have ever seen, on this coast, too, and also Dall sheep, goats, caribou, moose, buffalo, deer, elk, and many other forms of wild life.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith received a letter from Doris Ifrelle in which she says she is not completely well since the car accident early last summer. The bone specialist suspects some permanent injury and recommends Florida sunshine for the winter and is expert hard to him in the spring. She concludes, "We plan to be with my four grand-children in Jersey for Thanksgiving and should be in Ocean Breeze by December 1st."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dibling have taken up residence on Key Lime for the winter. They are from Hastings, Michigan, where Charles was a salesman until he retired. The Diblings attend the St. Joseph Catholic Church and as they have sold their house in Michigan, they will be making Ocean Breeze their home.

The flag which we see waving at the home of Florence and Henry LaDuc is a sure sign that the LaDucs have returned. They spent the summer in their cottage on Lake Huron, about 10 miles south of Tawas City, Michigan. Henry says it was not the best of summers to spend at a lake. They drove down, stopping for a day or two at Wyandotte, near Detroit, to visit a very good friend, Miss Katherine Woodward.

Mrs. Doris Malmstedt arrived this morning, November 3, with her trusty companion at the helm of their car at the close of Canada and Bermuda. When I asked if she had traveled all alone, she replied, "No, I had my little pal, Trigger, with me." Trigger looking out of the car window confirmed this information with a "Bow Wow." Doris says she spent the summer on the south shore of Lake Erie where she has a larger trailer at Ashtabula, Ohio. As for Canada and Bermuda, Doris added, "It is safe nice to get back to this same warm Florida air again."

Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Wyant have returned to their mobile home on Indian River Drive after spending the summer at Kalamazoo, Michigan. Marlin says he was kept busy re-decorating the house last summer.

Jim and Eva Rice from Marmora, Ontario, arrived on their mobile home on Melaleuca Drive last week with a new 4 door car with a dented fender acquired in an accident at Sumter, South Carolina. This caused a delay of a day. Otherwise they enjoyed the trip down. Jim said the temperature the morning they left was 20 degrees but luckily they crossed New York state just ahead of the record bad snow storm.

Madteses Go Ruby Mining

Clarence and Caroline Madtes of Kumquat and Third tell us of an interesting six weeks spent in North Carolina. They left Ocean Breeze the first week in August for Franklin, N. C. where they have friends and with whom they stayed till mid-September. They tell us that about four miles east of the town is a deposit of ruby bearing clay. Many small farmers in this area have found it profitable to invite people to try their luck in digging for rubies. The story of the boy who discovered an 800 carat ruby, worth eight thousand dollars in the rough, in this Cowee Valley, added to the enthusiasm of rock hounds and would be fortune hunters, two of which were Clarence and Caroline Madtes.

The Madteses say they found it very facinating work. Of the many farmers who own some of this clay one was named Hoge Johnson. The first name of this man struck them as an omen of good luck so they paid their money, $2.00 for men and $1.00 for the women, and joined the other 15 or 20 diggers. Pails, shovels and a sluice were provided and wearing their oldest clothing they went to work and were soon as red as the soil they were sifting. After three days and three pails of gravel it was then had a few small rubies and one small sapphire to show for their efforts.

Clarence and Caroline say they spent a very enjoyable six weeks in Franklin and are hoping to get 21st times to Cowee Bottom till it is available.

Peter Davis of 21 Key Lime Drive passed away Saturday, October 28, in the Martin Memorial Hospital. The funeral services were held in Yates Funeral Home, Tuesday, October 31, at 2 P.M. and burial took place in All Saints Cemetery, Father Cook officiating. Present were daughter, Mrs. Michael Zimmerman of Salem, Ohio; brother, Alfred Davis and his wife, and granddaughter Mrs. Ellen Sweet and her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Nicholas of Brockton, Mass., have been spending the past couple weeks with Mrs. Nicholas's mother, Mrs. Fred Nolting.

Harry and Ann Barth arrived last week and are now established in their mobile home on Cypress the front of Schroeder trailer.

Bill and Florence Mausert are here again for another winter season. They spent the summer at their home in Clarksburg, Mass., which is situated at the entrance of the beautiful Clarksburg State Park, but in the rainy summer a spring bolled up under their basement floor and flooded it. Their neighbor below them had a swimming pool which needed filling so he took care of the Mausert's surplus water for them. Bill tells me the basement floor is fixed and he has a shuffleboard court down there and he invited us for a game.

BRAMMERS ARRIVE-- Lawrence and Minnie Brammer have arrived. Lawrence was supposed to be working at unloading their travel-trailer, but he'll always take time out to chat with a neighbor such as Shaffer Williams. The Brammers' arrival is a sure indication winter is here. Lawrence has spent his life on his farm at Eaton, Ind., where he has 500 acres under cultivation and also raises considerable livestock. He says their area was dry this year so the crops were not as heavy as usual. The Brammers first came to Ocean Breeze in 1947 and since that time they took less interest in the farm each year and their son-in-law, Jack Moore, took over. July 22 this year they celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary and they are both still young looking, which speaks well for the country life they have lived.

National Geographic photographers had a field day in Jensen Beach last Saturday night as they spent hours at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant, taking pictures of the concoctions of chef Bill Chen. The photographs were of lobster prepared by Chen for the Kalev Evinrude party that night in which Chen created a centerpiece using the Florida lobster.

The article will appear in National Geographic within two years, according to the photographers.

Mirror Wins Eight

Editor Elected Florida Press Vice-President

Richard E. Campbell, editor and publisher of The Mirror, was elected vice-president of the Florida Press Association last weekend as the FPA held its 88th annual state convention at St. Lucie Country Club. The new president of the association is Robert Feagin, publisher of the Florida Times-Union and Jacksonville Journal.

In the annual "better newspapers contest" of the weekly division of the FPA, The Mirror continued its winning ways, garnering eight awards for journalistic excellence.

The Mirror won two first-place awards, for best newspaper promotion and best advertising idea. Second-place awards were won for best outdoor writing and best use of color. A third-place award was for a feature story. Honorable mention awards were won in community service, advertising promotion and typography and makeup.

Campbell was chairman of the convention, and has been working five years to get the convention to this area. He has been a director in the Florida Press Association, representing the daily and weekly newspapers in Florida, for the past five years.

"It is quite an honor to be elected vice-president of this association," Campbell said, after being nominated by the committee of past presidents of the group, and elected in the Saturday morning business session. He also serves on the "freedom of information committee" of the National Newspaper Association.

Martin County was well represented in the better newspapers contest. The Stuart News, co-hosts of the convention, won seven awards, including two firsts, in best column and best classified page, second in best women's news, and four honorable mentions in typography and makeup, outdoor writing, newspaper promotion, and advertising idea.

The Indiantown Press won an honorable mention in best agriculture news.

In Jupiter, The Beacon News won a third-place award for general excellence for newspapers under 2,000 circulation, and for typography and make up and a second-place award for safety editorial.

Martin County came out ahead in the contest, as local newspapers, The Mirror, News and Press, won a total of 16 awards, or 13% of the total awards given in the contest.

NEW FPA OFFICERS--Dick Campbell, Mirror editor and newly-elected vice-president of the Florida Press Association, makes a point to Robert Feagin, publisher of the Florida Times Union and Jacksonville Journal, and newly-elected president of the FPA following the election of officers of the association last Saturday at the 88th annual FPA convention at St. Lucie Country Club.

Christmas Colorful

Merchants Light Street For Holiday Season Here

The merchants of Commercial Street, banding together to form a merchant promotion association, have brought new light to the downtown shopping center. Christmas lights blazed through the downtown area Tuesday night as all lights were tied into the street-lighting system.

The Christmas lights were purchased by the merchants, who all donated $25 per business for the cost of the lights. Jensen Beach Bank and First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County each donated $50 toward the $500 goal of the cost of lighting the street.

The merchants also set a meeting of the businesses on the street for 1 p.m. on Saturday to discuss the possibility of having a Christmas opening promotion in Jensen Beach. The meeting will be held in the office of The Mirror.

Dick Campbell, finance committee chairman of the group, reported that the fund for the Christmas lighting was "about $100 short of the goal to pay for the lights," adding, "but we hope to have that amount in the next few days to pay for the rest of the job."

Local residents marveled at the lighted street on Tuesday night as many came down to Commercial Street to see the lights. Twenty-two strands of lights, with each strand carrying lights two feet apart, are strung from Hwy. 707 to the F.E.C. Railroad tracks.

Lighting Contest Is Planned

A "Christmas Lighting" contest will be sponsored by the Jensen Beach Garden Club again this year. Judges will be Mesdames William Weiss, Basil Vincent and George Preston, who suggest that home-owners start making plans to enter. Information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Weiss at 287-2748.

A workshop will be held Nov. 29, Wednesday, at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Leon Older, president, to make corsages. Those attending are asked to bring a sandwich, beverage will be provided. The corsages will be among the table prizes for the "Coffee-Cards Party" to be held Dec. 7 at 9:30 a.m. at the Jensen Beach Community Center. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Older at 287-1854.

The seven members and two guests, Mrs. Hannah Dryman, Ontario, and Mrs. Sally Wade, Jensen Beach, attended the recent meeting at Mrs. Older's home.

Mrs. Harry Jennings made "Seasonal Arrangements", working with locally-grown materials. Hostesses were Mesdames Zeff Anderson, C. V. Gardiner and Carl Heisig.

UP IN THE AIR--Jim Deloach, volunteer Florida Power and Light Company lineman, put the finishing touches on the new Christmas lights across Commercial Street in Jensen Beach late Tuesday afternoon. Deloach helped to design the lighting of the street for the holidays, a first for Jensen Beach.

Fishing Is Fantastic!

Offshore fishing is excellent, with one charter boat reporting eight sails up, two keepers for mounts; six big kings, two big dolphin, false albacore and more.

Inshore fishing, from the inlet to the first line of offshore reefs, is excellent, also, with Spanish mackerel predominating. In the same area are plenty of big jacks, blues, false albacore and some big kings.

Inlet fishing: jacks, blues, some Spanish mackerel, blue runners, and an occasional king. Inside the inlet area, ladyfish, mangrove snappers, redfish (channel bass) and plenty of snook, about 10 lb. each.

Plenty of spotted sea trout, snook, jacks, croaker and snapper in the Indian River. Croaker, weakfish, some snook in the St. Lucie River, downstream, North and South Forks, snook, tarpon and some weaks; bottom fishermen are getting sheepshead as well.

Appreciation Set

Industrial Park To Be Revealed At RDB Banquet

A 22,000 acre industrial park in Martin County will be unveiled at the December industry appreciation banquet of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce and Development Board in Stuart, according to Evans Crary, Sr., chairman of the steering committee.

Crary revealed to the steering committee that the announcement would be made by "one of the principals" in the planned park. Crary also said that the park had reached the stage of actual engineering and establishment of a drainage plan. The officials of the park will build industrial buildings and lease them to industrialists moving to Florida.

Recently, the chairman of the Florida Development Commission told a Stuart Chamber of Commerce meeting that the establishment of an industrial park was one of the prerequisites of getting industry.

Crary also said that an "outstanding speaker" will be featured at the banquet.

Chairman of the banquet committee is Richard Campbell, editor of The Mirror, who announced that tickets for the dinner were being sent out to a list of local residents. The tickets are limited to only 150 couples for the dinner, which will cost $5 per person. Campbell said that Crary had agreed that the first 150 couples who reserve their places will have preference to the dinner.

A hospitality hour is planned before the dinner, hosted by a local business.

Crary said that the reservations for the dinner could be made through the MCRDB office in Stuart.

Incorrect Addresses Delay Military Mail

Charlotte Rynasi, clerk-in-charge of Jensen Beach Post Office, urges citizens of Jensen Beach area to be sure to use the correct addresses on their letters and packages going to servicemen overseas to avoid delays in delivery.

Mrs. Rynasi reported that millions of letters and packages going overseas have been delayed because they were insufficiently addressed. One of the biggest problems has been the failure of persons to include the very important five-digit APO or FPO number in the address. This improperly addressed mail had to be sent to a military locator directory where time-consuming searches were made to determine the proper addresses.

There are four essential elements to an overseas military address:

1. The serviceman's identity, grade, full name and service number.

2. His military unit - complete.

3. Gateway post office - New York, San Francisco or Seattle.

4. APO or FPO - a five-digit number.

Island Included In County Zoning

Hutchinson Island zoning was passed and included in the master plan of Martin County last Thursday night when members of the Martin County Planning and Zoning Board met. Acceptance of the island into county-wide zoning culminated several months of study by the board and a special committee.

Port Sewall area is next on the list for study, to be included in the master zoning plan, according to Howard Haid, chairman. At the December meeting, the board will change the area now classified interim zoning to agricultural.

In other action, the board approved zoning of a 1 100 foot strip to B-1 (business) along SR-76 from Monterey Road south to about 250 feet of Martin County High school property, about 200 feet deep. The remaining portion of that tract of land owned by Mrs. Blanche Craig, remains in R-3A, multiple dwelling zoning.

The board also amended B-1 to include veterinary hospitals.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips by Howard Lee Haid

Cooperation Needed

Talking with some of these land owners recently, I put the question to them. Why do we post your land and not allow hunting even by those that seek permission? Some of their answers were rather startling.

One man recalled, when he did permit hunting on his land, that numerous cattle, two mixed horses, plus the fear of leaving the sanctuary of his house, suffered at the hands of the so-called sportsman. Many of the others told similar tales of vandalism damage and destruction caused by hunters maintaining through carelessness, or the (meaning the hunters) seem to have no concern for property, livestock or human life and there is no sense in abetting this type of individual." was the general comment.

This type of feeling from a good many land owners should serve as a warning to all sportsmen that the future looks bleak for unrestricted hunting. Most of this is due to a few careless hunters and the multitude shall suffer. I'm not sure what the answer to the problem should be, or if the past can be overcome, but I do feel that cooperation is a vital key to any future success for the sportsman.

Many hunters, fed up with the vast amount of posted lands, pay no heed to the signs and take their chances by entering the property anyhow. This practice certainly does nothing towards gaining an agreement for possible managed game hunts on some of these posted prime hunting lands. With more and more hunters taking the fields each year the need for more hunting land is a necessity and I am sure the public hunting preserves cannot accommodate everyone, thus a need to cooperate with private land owners for managed game hunts is becoming a prime factor in providing the necessary area.

A little cooperation between sportsmen, their clubs and the private land owners can go a long way towards preserving a place to hunt in the future years.

Win Wed. Means Trophy

Tigers Maul 'Chobee 56-0

Martin County High School Tigers fought their way into first place in the western division of the Suncoast Conference Friday night by downing the Brahmans 56-0 at Okeechobee.

The Tigers have now won their fourth in division action to match Belle Glade and pass the Rams. Belle Glade and Pahokee battled Friday night to a tie, the second for Belle Glade.

MCHS will meet, and they expect to beat, Jupiter (3-6) tonight (Wednesday), for a windup of their successful season. A tie with Jupiter would mean a tie for the title; a loss to Jupiter would hand the pennant to Belle Glade; but expected win will bring the trophy to MCHS.

Friday's 56-0 victory was the highest score racked up by the Tigers since 1951 at which time they topped the Brahmans 64-13, and was the fourth highest in the Tigers' 42 football seasons.

Okeechobee never crossed the 50 except for a final play, and made only three first downs to Stuart's 14. Three times Jim Dragseth, Tiger quarterback, passed to Jeff Bruner for touchdowns; three times the Brahmans' passes were intercepted, resulting in Tiger scores.

Martin County rushed 119 yards to 'Chobee's 81, and 178 yards in passing against 16 for the Brahmans.

Wednesday night's game against Jupiter will be played at Long Field, Stuart.

Rules Of The Road

In the interest of better boating, The Mirror presents the fourth in a series of articles for sail and power boat owners. The series covers common nautical terms, rules of the road, equipment and government regulations, aids to navigation, cause of accidents, in case of accidents, distress signals, weather; knots, bends and hitches; making fast at dock, anchoring, charts, common sense afloat and a nautical glossary.

SOUND SIGNALS FOR FOG-INLAND RULES

When underway, motor-driven vessels shall sound their signal on the fog horn. The words "prolonged blast" used below shall mean a blast of from four to six seconds duration. In fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rain storms, whether by day or night the signals described shall be used as follows:

A motor vessel under way shall sound, at intervals of not more than one minute, a prolonged blast.

A sailing vessel under way shall sound, at intervals of not more than one minute, when on the starboard tack, one blast; when on the port tack, two blasts in succession, and when with the wind abaft the beam, three blasts in succession.

VESSEL AT ANCHOR

A vessel when at anchor shall, at intervals of not more than one minute, ring the bell rapidly for about five seconds.

SPEED IN FOG

Every vessel, in a fog, should be able to stop within 1/2 the distance of visibility.

DEPARTURE FROM RULES

Congress has adopted the following rules to prevent collisions, under special circumstances.

"In obeying and and construing these rules, due regard shall be had to all dangers of navigation and collision and to any special circumstances which may render a departure from the rules necessary in order to avoid immediate danger."

"When, in consequence of thick weather or other causes, the vessel which has the right of way finds herself so close that a collision cannot be avoided by the action of the giving way vessel alone, she also shall take such action as will best aid to avert collision."

400 Expected For Como Tourney

More than $600,000 in additions and improvements will greet close to 400 contestants in the sixth annual Perry Como Amateur Golf Tournament which opens on Thanksgiving Day at St. Lucie Country Club.

A new convention hall accounts for most of this figure. Nearly completed, adjacent to the main clubhouse, the convention will seat 1,000 auditorium style and about 600 for dining, according to Robert E. Yoxall, general manager of the lush golf resort.

The 72-hole tournament will be held Nov. 23-26 on the twin courses, the 7,010-yard Sinners and the 6,547-yard Saints. Each is a par 72. Golfers will play each layout twice during the four-day event.

The men's division is expected to be a real "horse race", with four scratch golfers in the field, nine with handicaps of one, eight two-handicappers, and five with threes.

The field is divided into flights based on handicaps. The men's division breaks down into seven championship flights, 1-3, 4-6, 7-9, 10-11, 12-14, 15-17 and 18 up. In the women's division, the championship flight goes from zero to 15; others, 16-21, 22-27, and 28-36.

The sponsor, Perry Como, will be on hand throughout the weekend though he will not play in the tournament. Other entertainers planning to take part in the big show Saturday night are Boots Randolph, Chet Atkins, Archie Campbell and Floyd Cramer.

Women Bowlers Meet Dec. 3

The Woman's Bowling Association will hold an open meeting on Sunday, Dec. 3, at 2:30 p.m. at the St. Lucie Country Club Port St. Lucie.

Dates and a site will be selected for the annual City Association Tournament. All members are urged to attend.

Chips, Divots And Tips by Matt Moore

Four players from Martin County played in the West Palm Beach Open last weekend. Matt Moore shot 152, Kells Childs 161, Dr. Dent Hinaldi 159, Paul Hardcastle 166. A good time was had by all.

Esther Fenton defeated Olive Barth 4 & 2 for the Ladies' Handicap Championship.

Nick Bursania holed a pitch wedge shot at #10 for an Eagle 2.

The Blitz winning team Saturday was Gene Wilchester, Red Fleming, Joe Fritts and Ray Unsel with 17 under par 125.

Merchants Set Evening Hours For Shopping

Most Commercial Street stores will be open until 8:30 p.m. through the Christmas shopping weeks to come, according to action taken at a meeting of the merchants at the office of The Mirror last Saturday afternoon.

Also decided at the meeting was the interior decoration of shops along the one-block commercial district, eliminating decoration outside, and the establishment of a committee to install loudspeakers atop the Jensen Beach Bank to amplify Christmas music up and down the street. The music will be played during the hours the businesses are open.

Present at the meeting were representatives of Helen's Dress Shop, Swing & Door Gift Shop, Jensen Beach Bank, Jensen 8 & 10, Jim Stewart Jewelers, Jensen Beach Grill, and the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The group discussed the naming of the area, but no action was taken. The most recent action of the group, newly-formed to stimulate business in Jensen Beach, was the installation of Christmas street lighting the length of the street, from Indian River Drive to the FEC Railroad tracks.

R & DB Cancels Annual Banquet

The annual Industry Appreciation dinner of the Martin County Resources and Development Board was postponed Monday night at a special meeting of the Steering Committee, according to Walter Crowell, vice-chairman of the group.

Crowell cited the sudden illness of the board chairman, Sen. Evans Crary, Sr., as the reason for the postponement.

Crary, taken ill last Saturday, is in Good Samaritan Hospital in West Palm Beach.

A letter being sent to the members of the R & DB reads, "Due to the illness of our chairman, Sen. Evans Crary, Sr., the Resources and Development Board has postponed the industries appreciation banquet announced for Dec. 1.

"In the event that you have sent money for tickets, a refund will be sent to you in an early mail.

"You will be informed of the new date for the appreciation banquet, and your continued support will be appreciated." The letter was signed by Crowell.

Crowell said that no date has been set for the banquet in the future, but added that it would be following the holiday season.

Tierra Verde Opens First Condominium This Week

Tierra Verde, a $2.5 million condominium development located between State Road 76 and Palm City Road just outside the city limits of Stuart, begins selling from the first completed structure this week, according to George Apostolopoulos, president of the developing company. The unit will include ten buildings with 160 apartments.

Three of the ten buildings are now under construction; one is complete. The master plan of the condominium is shown on the special table in one of the offices in the recreation building.

Apostolopoulos, developer of the complex, said, "We have here a very high quality condominium that will offer just about everything to the people who buy. The apartments are spacious, equal to the highest residence requirements in the county. The prices range from approximately $14,000 for a one-bedroom, one-bath standard, to $17,000 for a two-bedroom, two-bath deluxe apartment."

The master plan shows the ten buildings laid out in angles designed to take advantage of the view to the west of the St. Lucie River, one block away. There are shuffleboard courts located in garden areas in the back of the condominium, and one major shuffleboard court in the central recreation area.

A large auditorium, game rooms, and swimming pool are now being completed, and bicycle and walking trails, four huts for cookouts and private get-togethers, and two nine-hole putting greens will be started soon.

The site takes in over ten acres and is 6.10 of a mile from the shopping center on U.S. #1, it is 9.09 outside the city limits of Stuart and 2/10 of a mile from the new Palm City Bridge. The first unit is fully landscaped.

Of the 160 units, 40 will be deluxe two-bedroom, two-bath; 80 apartments will be two-bedroom, two-bath, standard units; 20 will be one-bedroom, one-bath deluxe and the remaining 20 units will be standard one-bedroom, one-bath.

Monthly maintenance charges include city water, city sewage, maintenance of all recreation facilities, landscaping, outdoor lighting, lawns, exterior building care, garbage collection and insurance.

"Local people are putting this program together," said Apostolopoulos, himself a local contractor. "We are using all local sub-contractors and suppliers. Our financing is through and with the cooperation of First Fed-

Looking Toward I-95 Route

Indiantown's Chamber of Commerce is checking the possibility of routing Interstate 95 through the western part of Martin County, according to Roger League, president of the Chamber.

Letters have been sent to the State Road Department, asking about the routing of I-95 through the Indiantown area. League said, adding that by constructing the road in that area, it would not run through prime residential areas, nor would it cut through Jonathan Dickinson State Park.

A route proposed during the last few months saw the road slashing through the eastern, urban sections of the county, and cutting through, or near Jonathan Dickinson State Park.

Words To Make Your Life Better

THE EVERYDAY CARES and duties, which we call drudgery, are the weights and counterpoises of the clock of time, giving its pendulum a true vibration, and its hands a regular motion; and when they cease to hang upon the wheels, the pendulum no longer swings, the hands no longer move, and the clock stands still.

Lobsters Tagged In Migratory Search

The Florida Board of Conservation Marine Laboratory, Key West, has recently initiated a spiny lobster (crawfish) tagging program in an effort to learn more about the migratory habits of this animal.

Groups of spiny lobsters have been tagged and released at representative areas throughout the Florida Keys. A reward of $1.00 is offered for the return of the lobster with the tag in place. After the lobster has been measured and the tag removed, the lobster will be returned to the finder.

When capturing a tagged lobster, record the date and location of capture as near and precisely as possible; contact any Florida Board of Conservation Agent" or laboratory personnel upon return to dock. The lobster will then be measured, tag removed, and lobster returned to fisherman; a reward of $1.00 will be mailed when tag data reaches the Marine Laboratory.

Rose Witham, local project lender of the spiny lobster program, may be contacted at his headquarters on Jensen Beach Causeway.

VIDA CONSTRUCTION CO.

A DREAM CAME TRUE

In my twenty - one years in the building business in Stuart, I have had the good fortune to build hundreds of houses; small, inexpensive retirement homes, seasonal beach cottages, and large custom estates.

The increasing problem of the prospective home buyer, to select a quality location, was only the beginning of a series of compromises he had to make to build a home.

The success of the new condominium concept to the south was investigated as a possible answer for Martin County. This method of home ownership afforded a builder an opportunity to offer a residence and private recreation facilities for the homebuyer at a reasonable cost and maintenance.

In January of this year we selected the perfect property; ten acres of rolling hills, 500 feet from the city limits, 6/10 mile from shopping and banking center; ideal in every way.

Now for the concept, to yield the full advantage of sunshine, relaxed living. The residences must be large and comfortable, with all the luxuries built in (not as an extra to be added later at greater expense), plus a full and complete recreation program.

In March, we started the team to work; planners, surveyors, engineers, architects, sub-contractors, and suppliers were given the challenge: 'GIVE YOUR BEST TO PRODUCE A TRULY DELUXE ADULT CONDOMINIUM COMMUNITY.'

The first building is complete for you to judge. We offer no 'ifs, ands or buts.' This is our best in planning, design, construction and craftsmanship.

I could point to the many conveniences in planning for your comfort of living; to a dozen items of unique design; a hundred ideals to give you the very best of Florida outdoor living, and a thousand details of quality construction. Look at the smallest item of craftsmanship; WE DID! WE DEMANDED the best.

If it sounds like I'm happy and proud of TIERRA VERDE, it is because I am! and I hope that you will come out and let me show you why.

William P. Williams, 76, of 812 S.W. Lake Court, Jensen Beach, died at Martin Memorial Hospital Nov. 21. He was a former resident of Collingdale, Pa., and had lived here 11 years.

He was a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Jensen Beach and was a life member of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of N.A., Local #198 of Phila., Pa.

He is survived by his wife, Elsie K., of Jensen Beach; five daughters including Mrs. Ethel Dempster, Stuart; three sons, 16 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Memorial services were held at All Saints' Episcopal Church Saturday, with Rev. Willard Lynn, rector, officiating. Further services and burial will be in Norwood, Pa., with Johns Funeral Home in charge of local arrangements.

BUYING IN- Charles MacMahon, center above, largest camping and travel trailer dealer in the United States, recently purchased several lots at Holiday Out on Hutchinson Island, just north of Jensen Beach. MacMahon is the owner of Koc TIKI Park, St. Augustine, and will send campers to this area for the winter. At left is Hasan Kreis and at right, Randall Henderson, officials of Holiday Out. Also purchasing a lot at Holiday Out was Chet Atkins, not shown, who frequently golfs at Ft. Lauderdale Country Club. Atkins will use his new quarters for golf trips and for investment in the area, keeping a set of clubs here and having a place to stay if the Country Club is filled during the winter. MacMahon owns the Melrose Camping Center in Nashville.

Susan B. Bailey

Mrs. Susan B. Bailey, 89, of 7 Skipper Drive, Ocean Breeze Park, died Nov. 23 at Martin Memorial Hospital. A native of Carleton, Mich., she had been a resident here for 14 years.

She is survived by two sons, Volney P. Bailey, of Stuart, and Frank J., of Orchard Lake, Mich.; a sister, Mrs. Margaret Kramer of Ocean Breeze Park; one brother and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday at Johns Funeral Home Chapel, with Rev. A. Sidney Lowery, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Stuart, officiating. Burial was in All Saints' Cemetery, Jensen Beach.

"Outdoors, USA" Is Informative New Yearbook

by Lee Cason, Jr.

More than 200 guests, representing Congress, government agencies, conservation organizations and the press, recently joined Agriculture Secretary Freeman in a preview of the 1967 yearbook, "Outdoors, U.S.A." The reception was held at the National Wildlife Federation Office in Washington, D.C., and was sponsored by the National Resources Council of America.

The new, illustrated yearbook contains information for farmers, conservationists and outdoors people. There are 408 pages of text, over 320 black and white photographs, and a section with 48 color photos. There are 106 chapters under headings of the big woods, water, beautification, countryside, and others.

Chapters are written by university faculty members, outdoor writers, officials of government agencies and the Department of Agriculture, also some from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Senators and Congressman have limited numbers of yearbooks for their constituents. Additional copies may be obtained for $2.75 from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., 20402.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued "A Guide to Natural Beauty", designed to be of use to persons and groups beautifying homes, communities and countrysides.

The brochure, illustrated by 36 color photos, tells "How To Do It." A copy may be viewed in your Soil & Water Conservation District Office, as may be the yearbook, and can be ordered from the Government Printing Office.

eral Savings and Loan Association of Martin County."

All apartments in the buildings will be soundproofed, and the air-conditioning has been specially designed for quietness; economical to operate, yet with individual control systems.

There are 16 apartments in the first building. Each is large, offering what Apostolopoulos said, "is the open space of true Florida living." The typical two-bedroom, two-bath apartment has 1008 square feet of living space plus 224 square feet of screened porch, or 1232 square feet of living area. "This is comparable to the apartment zoning on Hutchinson Island where the requirements are the highest in the county," he said.

The living room is 12 feet eight inches by 24 feet long. The kitchens are eight feet six inches by 10 feet six inches. The master bedrooms are 12 x 15', opening onto the screened porch, as does the living room.

All rooms, with the exception of the kitchen and bath, have wall-to-wall carpeting, even in the closets.

The kitchens have Armstrong vinyl Corlon flooring, all-Formica counter tops and cabinet surfaces, garbage disposal, drop-in range and oven, no-frost refrigerator-freezer, luminous ceiling, ductless range hood, double sink, pass-through window into the living-dining area, and are professionally decorated, harmonized by Armstrong Cork Co.

The living rooms have U.S. Plywood Paliswan paneling, decorator colors, pre-finished molding to eliminate maintenance. The baths have the luminous ceilings, ceramic tile and vinyl wall coverings.

One unique touch to the apartments is the foyer entrance. Floors covering in this area are Spanish vinyl tile by Armstrong.

In keeping with the look of Florida openness, all phone and electric lines are underground, and each apartment is being pre-wired for Cablevision, eliminating unsightly antennas and telephone poles.

Apostolopoulos said there is a sales office opening with personnel on duty from 9 to 5 p.m.

W.P. Todt Is Re-Elected

William P. Todt, incumbent vice-mayor of the City of Stuart, won re-election for two years at Tuesday's primary, for Group 3 seat.

Beating his three opponents, Todt garnered 343 of the 549 votes recorded at the only voting place, Stuart Youth Center. Eligible to vote were 1700 citizens.

In second place was Kenneth R. Skimmell, former commissioner and mayor, with 136 votes.

Two others competed for Group 3 seat on Tuesday; Lewis Brown, former fireman, who had 36 votes, and George Haas, volunteer fireman, just one behind with 35 votes.

Todt has held the post for three full two-year terms, plus a portion of another as the result of an appointment.

Group 1 and 3 seats are being contested on the Dec. 12 ballot. Incumbent Mayor Arthur E. Sims and Commissioner Jack M. Hartman will face Robert Hall and Felix Williams.

Public hearings are slated by the county for proposed zoning changes of a five-acre tract of land in Jensen Beach, north of the Cut-off Road (SR-707A) and west of Savana Road.

The proposed change is from R-2, residential, to R-3T, which permits trailers for a limited number of years prior to the building of houses.

A Christmas lighting contest is being sponsored again this year by Jensen Beach Garden Club. Judges will be Mesdames William Weiss, Basil Vincent and George Preston.

Call Mrs. Weiss, 287-2766 for details.

A check for $11,602 was paid to Alvis Andrews, tax collector of Martin County, on Monday, by St. Lucie-Jupiter Co., but not without protest. The company, which owns 280 acres of land on Jupiter Island, is suing the county for its new assessment on the property.

This year the land is assessed at $750,000; last year the assessment amounted to $125,000. The increase was passed by the County Commission, sitting as the Board of Equalization.

Last year's taxes were about $2,000. A date has not been set for the trial.

Some of the activities suggested for the schedule included movies, cards and games, dances (square and round), hobbies and crafts, including instruction and demonstrations, flower arrangements, and talent shows.

Mrs. Rice asked that anyone interested in taking any phase of planning or work on the various activities contact her at 11 Tween Waters Mobile Park. The Chamber will sponsor the events.

W. B. Tilton, president of the Community Center Association was pleased with the report of planned events at the center, but said, "We will have to approve each event as it is held, and cannot allow those events so that there is no conflict of times the center is in use." BUSTED PIPES- This piece of pipe was an exhibit of plumbing board member R. C. Lindsey in his successful support of the building code requiring copper piping in new construction. The piece showed a great deal of deposits and rust or its interior, after having been used for 10 years in Martin County area. The variance for use of galvanized pipe was not allowed at the new St. Joseph dormitories, by action of the County Commission Tuesday.

Six-Weeks' Delay Seen In Finish Of Dormitory

A six-weeks' delay in the completion of the new St. Joseph College dormitory was seen by representatives of Frank J. Rooney Construction Company as a result of the refusal of the county to allow a variance in the building code on Tuesday.

The delay will put occupancy of the building back to the latter part of January. Tentative plans for completion were Dec. 15.

County commissioners refused to allow a variance which would have permitted the plumbing contractor to use galvanized pipe in violation of the building code, where copper pipe is specified. The contractor had already installed the pipe, and now has to remove it and replace it with copper.

The county fathers were walking on eggs as they expressed sympathy with the problems of St. Joseph College, but could not allow the violation by the plumbing contractor. As Commissioner Frank Wacha said, "I believe in the college and want to see it go, but I believe that one exception should be made. The plumbing code should be followed." Wacha added that all are responsible for reading the codes and regulations and said, "If a $750,000 building can waive the regulations, some poor joker building an $8,000 home should be able to waive the rule."

Allen Gillette, vice-president of a plumbing firm, and an expert in pipe metals, admitted as plumbing contractor that he was at fault, "Money is not the object; time is the object," Gillette said, the item launched into a detailed explanation of pipe.

R. C. Lindsey, a member of the plumbing board, gave several examples of galvanized pipe to the commissioners. They were half-clogged with rust and deposits. He said that the galvanized pipe would appear more than he could say. He added that the pipe had been in the ground "for about ten years."

County Attorney Dean Tooker added that the commissioners "owe an obligation to the people of Martin County. The code was developed to protect the innocent. The code, if it is fair, should be enforced."

The commissioners then defied the variance and ruled that the galvanized pipe already installed in the three-story dormitory be replaced with copper pipe.

The delay will work a hardship on the Pelican Hotel and Exhibit Court, where the students are staying. The two businesses had planned to be ready for seasonal occupancy on the first of January.

Three Months In Europe

Douglas and Rose Blyth returned to their trailer-cabana home on South Fifth, November 17, after spending a large part of the summer in Great Britain and the Continent of Europe. I asked Doug, to tell me all about his trip. He replied, "I'll do better than that, when I get a little time to spare I'll write it out for you." He was as good as his word and although somewhat abridged we find his narrative very interesting.

"Three Months In Europe" was wanted to see fewer countries in greater depth and as a result we spent a little over seven weeks in England, Wales, Scotland, Ulster and North Ireland.

After flying to London we rented a car and headed straight west toward the resort counties of Devon and Cornwall. Our first night was spent at a hotel that had been patronized by King Charles the 2nd and the next morning my back felt as if it was the same bed. Offsetting this was a real thrill; seeing King Arthur's Round Table. They are still holding court in the same room used by King Arthur. At the back of the room is an opening about 14 x 14 inches running diagonally through the wall to a room on the other side. When the king tired of being in the courtroom he could go to the other room and listen in without being seen. This was called the King's Ear. Now we call it wire-tapping.

The Devonshire and Cornwall countryside is beautiful almost beyond belief; rolling hills in a giant crazy quilt in various shades of green, and sewn together by hedges, with everything so well ordered in typical English fashion. The hedges make perfect nesting places and we were greeted by bird songs everywhere we stopped.

We visited the quaint old fishing villages of Looe, Polperro, Penzance and St. Ives. The streets were so narrow that it is impossible to drive; everyone parked their car and walked. One of the surprising things we noticed was the number of palm trees here in England in an area as far north as Winnipeg, Canada.

Leaving Cornwall we went to Wales where the signs are tri-lingual and the people talk Welsh more often than they do English. One man told us that he couldn't get a job with 36 men and nothing but Welsh was spoken while at work. There was fine mountain scenery in Wales and we liked the friendly people with their musical way of speaking. Every home we saw was (apparently perfect) and these hard working people seemed happy in their way of life.

We took the 3 1/2 hour trip by ferry to Eire; then south to Cork and north along the west coast. There were many two wheeled carts drawn by donkeys hauling water to homes that didn't have wells. The people were friendly but there was much poverty.

On the other hand, North Ireland was prosperous, busy, clean and cheerful. There was a quaint ever-changing shoreline drive between Londonderry and Belfast. The Scottish influence is strong and the speech a fascinating mixture of Irish and Scotch. In Belfast we had an excellent fresh water salmon dinner in the 100 year old Grand Hotel with it's great chandeliers and 40 foot ceiling in the immense dining room.

Scotland was next. Princes Street in Edinburgh is supposed to be the most beautiful street in the world and I can't dispute it. Running east and west it is lined with fine shops on the north and a magnificent sunken garden on the south with Edinburgh Castle sitting on a hill overlooking the gardens. In the north and to the west of Scotland are the wild and seemingly remote mountains of the Highland Country. The mist enshrouded peaks are high above the passes and the only signs of civilization are the inevitable sheep and an occasional sheepherders hut. The Scotch seem to be a fine people, clean and wholesome looking. Even where their trees were deep lush valleys with hedges, farmlands and lakes against the background of beautiful green mountains. The roads were steep and narrow with grade as steep as 25%.

On our way to London we stopped at every quaint Stratford on Avon, called little America because of the hordes of American tourists.

Enormous and crowded London has a highly efficient subway system that forms a web for the whole city. It is well ventilated, clean, quiet and cheerful and the trains travel up to 65 miles an hour. We never were more than a few blocks from a station and we seldom had to wait more than two minutes for a train.

(More next week).

Mr. Milton Parke, resident of Ocean Breeze Park and previously supervisor of AARP Chapters in southeastern Florida, was the Program Chairman. His talk covered the many advantages and privileges open to the members of the AARP. Mr. Parke is a dynamic speaker and held the attention of the audience during all of his talk.

Mr. Lloyd Gardner, Vice President of the AARP and has under his supervision five states in the southeastern portion of the United States. He has visited the Ocean Breeze Park Chapter many times in the past and told of the plans now in process of formulation and to be announced in the near future.

There was also Mr. Samuel Boardman, who spoke in length about the many classes being formed throughout the country approved and sponsored by National Safety Council and in Florida by the Florida Highway Patrol. Mr. Krovarz has arranged with Mr. Boardman to furnish not only the membership but any others who are interested in obtaining classes for defensive driving with the necessary contacts to provide the films and instructors to carry on this very important movement. Several in the audience who have qualified already to attend the classes, for those who qualify and obtain their certificates will be entitled to ten percent reduction driver policy premium in the company carrying the AARP policies.

Monthly meeting of the Ocean Breeze Park Chapter of the AARP was called to order at 1:30 P.M. by Wm. T. Krovarz, Chapter President. November 30, 1967. Cook Grandson Recovering

Tom Cook arrived home late Sunday night, Dec. 3, via Air Canada to Tampa, where his wife, Nellie, and Mary Adrean met him. He reports that his grandson, Murray, was unconscious for a week following the accident due to a fractured skull. His condition was critical for some time following the operation, and it was very comforting to know that the pastors and congregations of All Saints' Episcopal and the Jensen Beach Community Church were joining with the churches, friends and relatives at Birch Hills, Saskatchewan, in praying for Murray's safe return to his parents.

It would appear these prayers have been answered for Thursday, Nov. 30, Murray had recovered sufficiently to be able to carry on a short conversation with his grandfather.

Tom and Nellie wish to thank all those kind people for their prayers, and they now have high hopes that at least one of their grandchildren will be spared.

Ambulance Committee Organizes

George Millar, Secretary Treasurer of the Ambulance Committee, reports the committee has reorganized, and the following officers have taken office. Al Colby President, and G. Millar Secretary Treasurer, with the following committee members, Dr. Book, Clifford Ogle, Henry Carling, and John Tognerri. The committee will meet in the Ambulance Building the first Monday in each month at 8 P.M.

Woozleys Write

The following is a letter we received November 30, Dear Mr. Cook:-

We think you may be interested in a news item. We take the Mirror and are glad that we did.

We are not coming to the Park this winter since Alice has been disabled for many weeks with a bad left hip. Was in Cleveland Clinic Hospital seven weeks and had the third major operation. Will be unable to step on the foot for several weeks more yet.

We have rented our place at 9 N.E. 4th Avenue to a Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Folsom from Maine. We are sorry not to come down but maybe next year will be better. I would like to thank all my friends there who sent cards and letters while I was hospitalized. (Too many to answer personally).

Hope you have a nice season.

Yours very truly,

Thank You

During my recent confinement in the Martin Memorial Hospital, I was greatly comforted by the interest and kindness of my neighbors and friends, the excellent care and attention by all in the hospital, and the skilled medical services. I thank all of you and am grateful to the Lord for my many blessings.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sears from Pownal, Vermont, who have several friends here from New England came into the Park last Monday, November 27.

They are renting a trailer on Bermuda Drive for a month. They are favorably impressed with the beauty of the Park, also the activities, and plan to spend the remainder of this winter and succeeding winters if they can find a trailer to buy here.

Mr. Sears is a retired mechanical engineer from the United States Navy. He spent eight years working in Spain previous to his retirement.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cumpsty and Rhonda arrived back from Newtonville, N.Y., Monday, November 27. Usually they are back when school starts each year, but were detained this time due to Rhonda's illness mentioned in an earlier edition of the Mirror. Rhonda is well again and attending Jensen Elementary School we are happy to say. Rhonda's mother told me the following story about Rhonda's visit to Buffalo, N.Y., to see her doctor before leaving for Florida. Stating late this year, it was the first time Rhonda had ever seen flurries, and she was so excited and kept saying to her doctor how beautiful the falling snow was and that each snow flake differed in shape and size to the others, a fact they did failed to notice, and anyway with twelve inches of ground already, they were hardly in an appreciative mood, but Rhonda kept remarking about the beauties of the snow, and as one Doctor left the room he was heard to say to another how "some" and being from the northern country we can understand exactly what he meant.

Arthur Johnson, who was taken to Martin Memorial Hospital Saturday evening, November 25, is progressing favorably according to Margaret, we all wish Art a speedy recovery.

Many of the old timers in here will remember Senior Cumpsys when they spent so many winters here. Mary Cumpsty is a widow now and is not able to come back to Ocean Breeze, but we know her heart is still here for she took up oil painting this year and sent Tom and I a very nice one for a gift, and her subject is the beautiful Indian River with a border of palms, and sail boats which appear to be drifting along so peacefully. A lot of credit is due to a lady of almost 85 years with no good eye sight who will take on a new hobby like that.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ridgway are at present located on number three Bahjan Drive. The Ridgways, Thomas and Violet, are from Fresno, Calif., now, but formerly were residents of Anderson, Ind., for forty years. They expect to be here about a month and are traveling with a Fan 20-foot travel trailer. They just love to fish and hope to try out many fishing resorts in Florida this winter.

Fred Balere of Bermuda Street has just bought a 10 x 36-foot Schaefer trailer from Jensen Trailer Sales and is having a 20 x 10-foot cabana built to complete what will be his permanent home in the future.

Nine-teen people attended the Camera Club meeting Thursday, Nov. 30. Clifford Ogle was program manager for November and started the month's entertainment with slides from the F.S.A. slide circuit, among the slides selected for this showing were five submitted by the Ocean Breeze Club. Clyde Rechtiger acted as commentator and told us which slides were selected by his committee.

To complete the evening's showing were slides taken by Doug Blyth of the Canyon Country. Doug did his usual good job of commenting on his showing.

The next Camera Club meeting will be Thursday, Dec. 7 in the clubhouse at 7:30 p.m.

Art and Jan Wingerter are here for the third winter and are located at 23 N.W. Oak Dr. They arrived back Nov. 27 and are looking forward to a winter of dancing, cards and shuffleboard.

Leonard Carlson, a brother of Carl, with Mrs. Carlson, have rented Diagle's trailer cabana on Oak Dr. for the winter. The Carlsons are from LaPeer, Mich. and are retired poultry farmers. They told me the weather was cold from the time they left home until they reached Florida.

Word has been received in the Park of the death of Mrs. Ransom Buck's (Anne) mother, Mrs. Benjamin Winters. Mrs. Winters died in San Antonio Hospital in Kenton, Ohio, Monday, Nov. 27. Burial was in Marion, Ohio, Thursday, Nov. 30. The sympathy of her Park friends goes out to Anne.

Carl Klimpist, who purchased Stanley Graber's trailer last May, passed away Sunday, Dec. 3, and will be buried in Minneapolis, Minn. He had intended to come to Ocean Breeze Dec. 16, so his passing was very sudden.

Elmer Mac Kenzie and his fishing buddy Jerry Jones caught a nice snook, weighing 12 1/2, 10 1/2 and 8 1/2 pounds, also a sheephead weighing 5 lbs. 8 oz. all off the Roosevelt bridge early Saturday morning December 2.

Clarence and Lucille Fulton of Crawfordville, Iowa arrived back in the Park Friday December 1st. The Fultons are farmers and Clarence says he ran the corn picker harvesting their 230 acre crop, which totaled 30,000 bushels. He said the younger folks tended to the storing of the corn.

Fultons report a cold summer, and says the season was so short the corn did not get harvested, in fact to a frozen September 15. It seems the ears did not ripen properly after the frost and the husks did not loosen as they usually do to allow the corn to dry.

The Fultons were in the path of two hurricanes this year, and say most of the summer was taken up in clearing the fields, and replacing buildings lost in the storms.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph and Judi Croft who returned Friday, December 1st, from their summer home in Kingston, Illinois.

Mary Bethune and John Tognerri, accompanied by Mr. Bookbinder took Mrs. Ilse Kirk of Indian River Drive to Martin Memorial Hospital, Friday morning by ambulance.

Ellen Sloan says her mother is progressing nicely at St. Marys Hospital in West Palm, and was released from intensive care November 28th.

It is good to see Jack Kinker back in the Park after spending the summer at his home in Michigan.

I met Rudy Werges with his son, John one evening this week and asked about their arrival in Ocean Breeze. This year John decided to spend the winter with his parents and get in some golfing in this nice sunny climate, so instead of his folks flying down as they usually do, he brought them in his car, and they had a delightful drive, stopping to see the battle ground at Vicksburg, the flight of geese in Louisiana, the beauties of Biloxi, and the interesting city of St. Augustine, Fla.

By the way gals I did hear John is a bachelor just sticking of course.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller had their granddaughter, Jennifer Jones and two friends, Sue Goldey and Sandy Heller, here to visit from La Fayette, Indiana. The girls spent two days here on their way to Nassau.

Easement Granted For Spoil Area

A tentative agreement has been reached with the Bradshaw Trust to grant a temporary easement to part of a spoil area needed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, according to County Attorney Dean Tooker early this week.

The spoil area is needed by the Corps to dump waste materials from the dredging of St. Lucie Inlet. It was discovered that part of spoil area "A" was located on the Bradshaw property, causing Tooker to recommend that the County Commission ask the Corps to exercise its paramount jurisdiction to deposit spoil on overflow land. The Corps said it would accept a temporary easement for one year.

Tooker said an individual who wants to sell or add to submerged land must advertise for three weeks, and property owners within 1,000 feet of the proposed change must also be notified.

The trustees of Internal Improvement Board are now asking if it applies to federal government, Tooker said.

It was hoped that dredging of the inlet could be completed in time for the Stuart Sailfish Tournament to be held this weekend.

To date 130 children are identified in the program where parents are engaged in agricultural work and across the county of state lines at least once during the school year, locating and identifying every migrant child in the county is one of the main objectives of the program, he said.

Wacha-Hussey Trade

Up Pops Politics In County Meet

Politics popped up in the county commission as a future election reared its head for a few good-natured, outright political moments in an exchange between Commissioners Frank Wacha and Bill Hussey. The exchange will come to a climax at the next meeting of the county commission when Wacha will ask the county to pass a resolution in favor of "Medicaid."

Wacha threw down the gauntlet when he reported that the state association of county commissioners had passed a resolution urging the legislature to override the veto of Governor Claude Kirk on the Medicaid bill. The bill had passed the Senate in a unanimous vote and had done well in the House.

Citing the efforts of Kirk to gain Federal funds above his election, Wacha pointed out that he felt that the reason for the veto was the failure of the legislature to provide funds for the program. He added that the people were under a misconception about the bill.

"The people feel that it sets up a plan," Wacha said. "It does not." It gives the governor the power to set up a committee of legislators and others in medical-oriented fields. Wacha said, to work out a plan to aid people in need, and to develop a state plan for outpatient services. The state would be able to receive some $45 million by putting up $14 million.

It was then that Wacha hit home, saying, "A veto of this bill was a veto of aid valorum tax relief for the people of Martin County." He then pointed out that Martin County taxpayers pay some $50,000 a year for indigents out of ad valorum taxes.

Republican commissioner Bill Hussey could not let the remark pass, and said, "I know that Commissioner Wacha was not thinking political in his remarks." He added that the governor had a no-new-tax pledge and was sticking by it.

Wacha retorted that he did not think that any man who is elected to office and then tries to pass off the responsibility of putting taxes on the people to the people themselves shows a "lack of guts." He said that the costs of referendums and bond issues elections would "pay for our indigents."

As the exchange began to warm up to the subject, which is certain to be a major political issue in the 1968 political campaign, Chairman Jack Saunderson rapped the gavel several times to bring the meeting to order. It was then that Wacha asked that the commissioners take a copy of the bill, study it and be prepared to vote on a motion similar to the state county commissioner association resolution at the next meeting.

A Long, Long Time

Thirty Seconds Completes A Year Of Island Zoning

by Dick Campbell

It took only a moment, but that moment was packed with a feeling of great accomplishment on the part of the county commission, the planning and zoning board, special committees and countless interested individuals who helped to put together a plan for Hutchinson Island zoning.

On Tuesday morning, the county commission passed the new plan, incorporating the zoning of Hutchinson Island into the overall county-wide zoning plan. It took only thirty seconds.

Chairman Jack Saunderson read the proposed changes. There were six in all. Some were minor in nature, some established new sections for the code. All were important.

Commissioner Frank Wacha told his fellow commissioners that the subject had been discussed for over a year, and the commissioners were aware of the changes and in agreement with them. He asked its passage.

Following its adoption, the commission passed a resolution to be sent to the members of the planning and zoning board, who had considered (sometimes heatedly) the plan several times, passed two plans and had one thrown back to them from the commission. The resolution thanked the board members for their work and effort on behalf of the county.

Another resolution thanked a select committee of local residents, sometimes referred to as a "blue-ribbon panel." The committee made recommendations to the planning and zoning board, and the ideas of the hard-working committee were incorporated into the eventual plan that passed Tuesday.

Serving on the committee were James Garvey, executive vice-president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County; E. C. Wareheim, president and chairman of the board of Jensen Beach Bank; Les Combs, president of the Hutchinson Island Property Owners' Association; Robert V. Johnson, retiring president of the Board of Realtors in Stuart, and John Law, Florida Power and Light district manager. Garvey selected the committee after being appointed chairman of the committee in April, 1967.

The new plan of zoning will upgrade the present zoning of the island and integrate it into the overall county-wide plan, which has been a major project of the planning and zoning board for the past four years.

In other zoning business, the county changed an area near Mars Hill in Jensen Beach from R-2 to R-2T, allowing trailers for three years in the area. It also tabled a request for an auto salvage designation of SY from interim zoning, awaiting the investigation of the applicant. Also, a 35-acre parcel of land near the high school on SR-76 was changed to permit construction of a trailer park there, reserving an area for commercial development.

Christmas In Pictures Edition Is Planned

Again this year, The Mirror will have a special feature at Christmastime,...the fourth annual Christmas party edition.

Anyone having a Christmas party is asked to call The Mirror office, 287-7333 or 287-7334. We will register the party and have a photographer at the party to take a picture for the "Christmas In Pictures" edition.

This special edition will be released December 28. In that edition will also be pictures of whatever Christmas lighting displays it is possible to take.

County Actions

The county invested some $250,000 in six-months savings certificates Tuesday, and looks forward to more investment when an estimated $250,000 is given to the county in the "next few days" by Tax Collector Andy Andrews. The board agreed to have the finance committee look into the money available when it is distributed to the 17 different funds of the county.

DICKERSON, INC. was the successful bidder on surfacing Post Farm Road in Indiantown. The 1.2 miles of road, 20 feet wide, will be completed within 30 days of the start of the contract.

SAVANNA PARK came in for the news when Commissioner Frank Wacha asked permission to buy a topographic map of the park area for "less more than $300." The 200-acre park aerial map will show ponds and land areas for planning future development for public use, according to Wacha.

COUNTY OFFICES and the courthouse will close on Christmas Day and New Year's Day, according to county action.

The CIVIL DEFENSE advisory council had the names of Hugh Leighton, Roland Merrill and Dr. Edgar Ernst added to its number on appointments by the county on the recommendation of CD Director Al Keaton.

STREET CLOSING included the end of First and Third Streets in Golden Gate.

TAXES DUE were forgiven on the county-purchased lots in Yacht Club Beach when County Attorney Dean Tookes reported that the county must pass a resolution to forgive taxes on the newly-deeded beachfront and road right-of-way.

The NATIONAL GUARD was thanked again by the county for helping to clear some 50 junked cars from the Indiantown area on Dec. 9 and 10.

A NEW STREET LIGHT south of Fruits on A-1-A was requested by Commissioner Saunderson for "folks who cannot find the road at night on their way home."

WEB ORDWAY was successful bidder on a truck for the county at $3,868.82.

Christmas Display Is Readied For Causeway

Last year's "Christmas-On-The-Causeway" met with such success and enthusiasm that plans are under way for the second annual presentation.

The Manger scene will be the focal point of the religious displays; eight others depicting Christmas carols will be shown in life-size figures on separate covered pavilions on the south side of the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Many local churches will take part, and their choirs will sing again this year as part of the Christmas pageant.

The presentation will start at 7 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 22, and the Jensen Beach Fireworks committee will put on a display of fireworks.

A Christmas tree in fireworks is being prepared by members of the fireworks committee. Those working on the project are Bill Varillo, Carl Barker, Vince Bocchino, Jim Tauly, Gene Oliver, Lou Tranowski and Woody Woodruff.

The directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce are raising money to pay for the fireworks and for the refreshments to be served on the Causeway. Five-hundred felt pennants printed with a sailfish and "Jensen Beach, Fla." in white on colorful backgrounds, are being sold for $1.00 each. The pennants are on sale at The Mirror office, at the office of the Chamber of Commerce and at other business establishments in the area. Chairman of this project is Dick Campbell.

Last year the Causeway spectacular drew 3,000 persons to hear the caroling and view the fireworks. Christmas tree which was floated on a barge on the north side of the causeway in the Indian River.

A State Road Department counter, installed at the west side of the causeway, recorded 15,37 cars crossed the bridge in seven days.

Of course, there are some folks who do not seem to be able to cooperate. Their long suit is criticism--destructive and not constructive criticism, at that. Robert Thum Home From Viet Nam

Robert (Bobby) Thum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harl E. Son, Orion St., Jensen Beach, is home for Christmas. Bobby has spent the last year in Tuy Hoa, Viet Nam, where he served as an aircraft instrumentation specialist, working with the 31st Tactical Fighter Wing of the Air Force.

Thum, 21, a resident of Jensen Beach for 14 years, returned from overseas duty December 2. He will leave for Offutt AFB, Nebraska, on January 3.

His buddy, Jim Hahn, 21, of Fort Lauderdale, is visiting with him for several days. The two met when both were stationed at Homestead AFB prior to their being sent to Viet Nam.

Both servicemen said Jensen Beach looks good to them and they're mighty happy to be "home for the holidays."

Conservation Report

By Lee Cason, Jr.

One of the long-range objectives of Supervisors of the Martin Soil and Water Conservation District is to provide all interested Martin County farmers and ranchers with a soil and water conservation plan. This service is available through cooperation with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service office, located in the old post office building, Stuart.

Conservation farming and ranching plans are helpful in planning land use and practices to be applied on the land, now and in the future. Plans contain soils information, land use maps, and a plan of practice application. Educational, technical, cost-sharing and other financial aids in planning and applying the conservation plans are available through the Soil Conservation Service and other agricultural agencies.

The policy of the Martin Soil & Water Conservation District and the U.S. Soil Conservation is to assist landowners with the preparation of their conservation farm plan; neither group dictates to the landowner how he must use and treat the land. Information given to landowners and technical help provided originates with and is pre-tested by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Florida Department of Agriculture, and land grand colleges before it passes on to the landowner.

The MS&WCD has about 200 farmers and ranchers cooperating in their program; about 150 have conservation farming plans in writing and are in the process of applying them on the land.

New cooperators with the district are Harvey Piley, Harris Wall and J.C. Pennington of Stuart; Richard Sheltra, Indiantown; and A. J. Sanchez, Port Mayaca.

'O, Holy Night'

Christmas Choral opens Jensen Causeway exhibit

The program for the night of caroling is being handled by the Martin County Ministerial Association. Master of ceremonies will be the Rev. William D. Crawford, who will introduce the participating groups. Serving on the Ministerial Association committee are the Reverends A. Smith, L. Smith, A. Stuart, N. Gunsalus, N. Tweedy and W. Lynn.

Frank Wacha, County Commissioner, said that he was pleased with the growth of the program of Christmas caroling on the Causeway, adding, "I am proud of the many local groups combining in efforts to put on a religious program. It is this kind of togetherness that makes this Martin County a wonderful place to live."

Cooperating in putting on the program are the Ministerial Association, fireworks committee, and the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

A community Christmas program, complete with choirs of various local churches, Christmas carol singing and refreshments for those attending, will be the holiday holy season opener for the Jensen Beach area, as local groups band together to provide a Christmas program for a backdrop of Nativity scenes on the Jensen Causeway.

Ten pavilions, used for picnicking throughout the year, have been converted into settings of the religious displays of the birth of Christ. They are lighted, and during the evening, Christmas music will be played over loudspeakers to add to the festive mood of Christmas.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. on Friday at the new stage on the south side of the Causeway, near the pavilions. Five local groups will sing special music, and there will be caroling by the assemblange. Choirs of the Church, First Baptist Church of Stuart, First Baptist Junior Choir, Sisters of St. Joseph Novitiate, and the First Methodist Church of Stuart mixed quartet will sing.

Following the program, there will be the traditional burning of a fireworks Christmas tree, erected on a barge in the Indian River, designed and constructed by the Jensen Beach Fireworks Committee, Bill Yurillo, chairman. The fireworks tree has become a symbol of the event since its beginning last year.

Christmas In Pictures Edition Is Planned

Again this year, The Mirror will have a special feature at Christmastime...the fourth annual Christmas party edition.

Anyone having a Christmas party is asked to call The Mirror office, 287-7333 or 287-7334. We will register the party and have a photographer at the party to take a picture for the "Christmas In Pictures" edition.

This special edition will be released December 28. In that edition will also be pictures of whatever Christmas lighting displays it is possible to take.

'Last gasp' party is planned

A New Year's Eve Carnival, "The Last Gasp of 1967", will be held New Year's Eve at the Jensen Beach Community Center.

Sponsored by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, the festivities will get under way at 9 p.m. and will end after the new year is welcomed. Young and old, residents and visitors are invited.

Activity will include group games, music for fun and dancing, a peep show and a fortune teller by the name of Madame LaZonga.

Mrs. June Rice is chairman of the committee in charge told The Mirror reporter at press time that a Chinese auction has been planned and a photographer will be on hand to take individual pictures. Tickets for the carnival are available at the office of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

"I HEARD THE BELLS"- The second annual Christmas-on-the-Causeway program will be presented this Friday night in Jensen Beach, starting at 7 p.m. The Manger scene will be the focal point of the religious displays, surrounded by eight others depicting Christmas carols, one of which is shown above. Many local churches will take part and their choirs will sing again this year.

Grumman to launch gunboat

Grumman's hydrofoil gunboat prototype for the Navy will probably be launched around the first of the year, according to Robert Johnson, marine director at Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. He spoke to the Stuart Rotarians last week and was introduced by Art Melrose, manager of the Stuart facility.

The gunboat will be based at the Port of Palm Beach for a couple of months of test runs, after which the Navy will decide between it and a similar prototype now under construction in Seattle, Wash., by Boeing.

The 75-foot long hydrofoil now being completed here will carry a Navy crew of 13 and will mount 20-millimeter guns, machine guns and mortars.

It will be launched in the St. Lucie River, using a path cleared through the trees and brush especially for this launching.

The hydrofoil is capable of retaining high speed in seven and eight-foot seas, an advantage over the PT-type boats.

It is hoped that the Stuart-built craft will win Navy approval, Johnson said. He is a former hydrofoil program chief in the Navy.

Sea lion visits in Salerno

A 80-pound, black-haired creature of the deep, a barkling sea lion, swam into the dock at a fish company pier in Port Salerno a few days ago.

Morris Pope, Eddie and Lonnie Pope were there to greet the seal, a bit startled, they admitted. The youths cleaned and fileted mullet which they fed to the animal. They put in a call to Ocean World at Fort Lauderdale to offer the sea lion to them. The offer was accepted.

The frisky animal was "caught" in a sheet of canvas and put into a pen in the water beside the pier docks

BOWLERS OF THE WEEK- Winners of this week's Mirror Bowler-of-The-Week awards were Mrs. Alberta Salajar, of WIBC, who bowled a scratch 688, 115 pins over her average; and Lou Papaidero, Jr., ABC, who bowled a 628 scratch series, 115 pins over his average. WIBC runners-up were; Zylph's Salyards, Orange Coffee League; Estelle Johnson, Indian River Mixed; Doris Randhar, Martinette; Lois Boyce, Hurricane, and Connie Bauman, Nassau. ABC runners-up were: Bob Radavich, Indian River Mixed; Leroy Glaze, M. C. Businessmen's; and Walter Bauman, Nassau. Bowler-of-The-Week will be suspended until January 6, 1968.

School Board Wins $5,000 Reimbursement

The Martin County School Board was awarded a reimbursement in the amount of $5,000 to be used in the Adult Basic Education program. This program is to service a basic school program for county residents, 18 years or older, who have not completed eighth grade.

The project will operate in the Indiantown area under the direction of Henry Childers, Ireneido and Lucretia Garcia. The grant, funded to provide increased services in Adult Education, includes teacher salaries, two tape recorders, an adding machine, instructional materials which include film strips, textbooks, workbooks and supplies.

Stuart joins 'Friendly Fla.'

The "Friendly Florida" program, sponsored by the Florida Council of 100, received a local boost last week when the Stuart Chamber of Commerce moved to participate.

Decals saying, "We are friendly FloridaNs" will be distributed to member establishments, according to Jack Sailer, Tourism Committee chairman. The program will encourage courtesy and hospitality to visitors, making them feel welcome in the area.

Employees will wear buttons, "Friendly Floridian" provided by the Retail Merchants Association.

Grumman Group Organizes

Foremen and department heads of Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. of Stuart held a kick-off buffet dinner at The Anchorage last week with 70 attending.

OFFicers for the newly-formed group will be elected at the next monthly meeting. Company personnel will be invited to speak at the meetings and will discuss major problems of the moment and new ideas and plans of the company.

Master of ceremonies was John Borgen, inspection department. Chairman was Richard Hunecke, avionics department.

The Department of Defense has authorized the U.S. Publishing Corp., Stuart, to manufacture and sell service flags for display in windows, according to Richard H. Feiler, president. The flags are mounted on a cross bar with gold-color spear ends.

Orchid diseases to be discussed

"Orchid Diseases" will be the title of a talk by Harry C. Burnett, plant pathologist, at the Dec. 21 meeting of the Martin County Orchid Society. The 7:30 meeting will be held in the Agricultural Center.

The public is invited to attend, according to Mrs. Margaret Hill, program chairman. Features will be door prizes of orchid plants and the usual display table.

Burnett, with the State of Florida Department of Agriculture, has written a bulletin on orchid diseases, copies of which are available free at the MC Agricultural office.

RIO CLUB DIRECTORS- Directors for 1968 of the Rio Civic Club were installed Dec. 14 at ceremonies held at Rio Civic Clubhouse. Left to right, above, they are: Ed Hastings, three-years; Mrs. John Koman, two years; Mrs. Henry Spencer, retiring after three years as president, one-year; Mrs. Jack Shommer, Ernest Jenkins and Alex Wilson.

MC above average in statewide tests

Martin County High School seniors scored above average in the Florida Statewide 12th grade tests given at the school. State average was set at 33 per cent; MCHS had 50 per cent in a class of 259 students earning qualifying scores to enter state colleges. A score of 300 is usually acceptable for college admission.

With a 495 as highest possible score, 63 per cent had scores ranging from 300 to 490. Of the students who did not make qualifying scores, 55 per cent ranged between 100 and 199, many of whom may request a second test, according to Mrs. Marie Huening and Walter Oden, members of the guidance department.

Those with scores over 400 were: Judith Ashley, Marianne Broome, Catherine Bruner, Ginger Burdge, Ann Christensen, James Conley, James Dragseth, Gary Elliott, John Foster, Charles Greenlees, Ricky Harless, Ralph Hartman, Susan Hills, Mark Hopkins and Paul Kanahr.

Also, James Kirk, Shirley Levene, Sally Leighton, Kathy Martin, Betty Mayhall, Corydon Nourse, Terry Penick, Carol Raphel, Robert Reed, Yvonne Rosmarin, Richard Ruhnke, Helen Smith, John Skavely, Richard Strauss, James Stuckey, Mary Lou Swain, Kenneth Tatje, Jan Teter, Patricia Thomason, Joann Trioca, Debbie VanTulnen, Frank Wacha, John Whitcar and Hazelann Woodward.

Navitsky pleased with education program

James Navitsky, Superintendent of Martin County Schools has expressed pleasure in the program suggested by the Governor's Commission on Quality Education. He pointed out that the committee's proposals are educationally sound and predicted that if the program is put into effect, ad valorem taxes in the county will decrease.

The state would pay 75 per cent of the county's educational needs, under the proposed program. The state now pays 48 per cent, with the county paying the other 52 per cent. The county will receive one dollar per pupil enrolled, and under the new program the county will have more management control over state funds. Local plans will have to be evaluated more closely, he said.

One of the most controversial proposals made by the commission was the creation of a state board of equalization, Navitsky said. This would eliminate the need for a local tax assessor and would tend to assure 100 per cent valuation of property in all counties.

Fire units vie for surplus

Three Martin County fire units are interested in a 10-wheeler chassis which could be used as the basis of a new fire truck. The chassis was discovered by County Commission Chairman Jack F. Saunderson, who recently spent two days at Starke, Fla. seeking equipment for the county at the surplus depot.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha wants it for the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department, which would build a new tanker on it. South County Fire Department wants it as the basis of a new fire truck, and Al Keaton, CD Director, wants it for CD transport, according to Saunderson. The chassis would cost $500, which is the handling charge.

Capt. Adams charter member

Capt. Francis A. Adams, 94 year old local resident, was a charger member and secretary of the Betsy Ross Memorial Association of Philadelphia. The association celebrated its 70th anniversary and the anniversary of the American Flag House, on Dec. 14.

Adams served as secretary from 1911 to 1921, he said last week, and is the only surviving charter member of 50 who saved the birthplace of the American flag, Betsy Ross House located at 239 Arch St., Philadelphia, Penna., a National Shrine.

Public warned of gypsies

Residents of Martin County are warned by Sheriff Roy C. Baker to be on guard against a band of gypsies in this county and Palm Beach county.

The group, housed in about 20 trailers and pickup trucks, are offering to paint roofs, coat driveways, pump septic tanks and repair hydraulic jacks, according to Baker, who said the work is inferior and victims usually lose money on the deal. The group was at Jonathan Dickinson State Park during the past weekend but has since disbanded into smaller groups in the area.

Poppleton Widening Requested

Martin County has requested that the Poppleton Creek Bridge on Palm City Road be widened by four feet to provide two lanes of traffic, according to Clarence Davidson, District State Road Department engineer. Davidson passed the request on to his Tallahassee office to consider.

He pointed out that the county is unable to furnish additional right-of-way so that the bridge can be widened and approaches constructed to meet the SRD SAFETY CRITERIA. He pointed out that the 108-foot bridge is a safety hazard.

Governor's Conference

About 200 conference members attended the Governor's Conference on Environmental Control held recently in Tallahassee, according to Stuary City Manager Joe N. Crowder. He said he was very proud of Martin County and its planning and zoning board and pointed out that some areas do not have such a unit.

Much of the time was spent on planning ways that Florida could meet problems which its rapid growth will bring, Crowder said, and suggestions were made on how to avoid mistakes made in the past. Reports will be made to the Governor's office, then will be forwarded to the Legislature.

School Board Hires Architects

The Fort Pierce architect firm of Starratt & Askiof will do the work on Port Salerno and Warfield Elementary Schools, according to a move made recently by Martin County School Board.

School Superintendent Jim Navitsky made the recommendation, culminating a three-month controversy as to who would do the work.

Navitsky said he had asked Richard Pryor, Stuart architect, to take the job but he declined because of a heavy schedule.

Chairman Joe Greenlees and Frank DeStefano indicated complete satisfaction with local architects; Barbara Britton and Homer Wall had expressed displeasure; and vice-chairman Jean Murfin remained neutral.

Ornamentals Can Be Dangerous

Sending small children out to play isn't as bad as tossing them into a lion's den, but it can be equally as dangerous, according to a recent news release by the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Florida.

Ornamental plants are the worst offenders.

Many parents believe in letting infants make "oral explorations" about the yard. It's one way for children to learn about their environment, they say.

Yet, some plants the child may taste are as deadly as a rattlesnake's fangs.

A light snack of Gloriosa (climbing lily) tubers has caused death in four hours. One tiny rosary pea with its scarlet jacket and jet black cap is a lethal dose. Luckily for children the seed-coat of this rabseye pea is hard and impervious to moisture. Uncracked, the seed can be swallowed without danger. But, one seed thoroughly chewed brings sure death.

In recent years, lantana has been blamed for the death of one child, the illness of two others, and a skin injury to a fourth. The death was attributed to eating lantana berries.

Scientists with the Florida Agricultural Experiment Station believe this is the first record of human poisoning associated with lantana.

However, it has been known for years that lantana can poison cattle. An alkaloid called lantanine is the killer.

Touching crushed lantana leaves is known to cause a skin reaction. One child made a rushed trip to the hospital after playing by a clump of lantana plants. The exposed skin was marked with white splotches and reddish areas.

Lantana grows throughout the state. In south Florida, native species bloom and fruit all year. Related varieties are grown in northern Florida as ornamental plants.

Lantana is a shrub from three to five feet tall. The flowers are displayed in disc-like clusters on long stalks. Individual flowers have four lobes and are tubular in the lower part. They may be creamy white, yellow, pink, orange, or scarlet.

The stems are bluntly square, green or brown, and may be armed with weak, sharp spines. Leaves are in pairs or whorls of three.

Lantana berries are green to blue or black, nearly one-fourth inch in diameter, and contain one bony seed.

One leaf of the oleander is reported toxic enough to kill an adult. Children have been made ill by carrying oleander flowers around in their mouths while at play.

A number of individuals have suffered serious poisoning after eating frankfurters roasted on oleander stems. Inhaling smoke from oleander stems is another way to get deathly sick.

Children playing with pokeweed use its purple berries to make "play ink" or as "war paint". They are safe until one young tester suggests sampling the berries. Cases of jimson weed poisoning have been reported in Florida after children ate its fruit or sucked on the flowers.

So far as known, the ilgustrum has a good record in Florida, but in Europe a number of children have died from eating the fruit of this glossy privet. The hydrangea has at least one mark against its name as a poisonous plant.

Most ornamentals are harmless, but to be safe enjoy their beauty but not their taste, it's a good idea to teach children to avoid putting anything in their mouths except food, suggests the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences release.

TOYS FOR TOTS- The gaily-wrapped packages under the Christmas tree, shown above, were donated to needy local youngsters by residents of the Anchorage Mobile Park, Rio. The Christmas toys will be turned over to the Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen who annually collect toys which are distributed to children.

'Gentle Giant' at the Lyric

"Gentle Giant," the Ivan Tors Production presented by Paramount Pictures is appearing this week at the Lyric Theatre in Stuart. The movie will start Wednesday (Today) and continue through Saturday, Dec 23.

"Gentle Giant" was filmed in Port Salerno during the past year under the title of "Gentle Ben", the story of the relationship between a boy and a bear.

The boy is Clint Howard, a seven-year-old, 65-pound towhead. The bear is a 750-pound black animal of Africa, U.S.A., the animal compound run by Tors in California.

The basic problem in making the film was to get the boy and bear to know and trust each other before production began. Ben and Clint made a screen test together in California, then both flew to Martin County where the actual shooting was done. Headquarters were set up in Port Salerno and many local people were used for background and bit parts.

"We like how the movie started, Ben and I were real pals," Clint said. "Just because he was so big didn't mean he was dangerous. You can trust Ben a lot better than some people," added the seven-year old.

Other stars in the picture include Dennis Weaver, Vera Miles, Ralph Meeker, Clint Howard (real-life father of Clint), and Gentle Ben, now known as "Gentle Giant".

THE GENTLE TOUCH- Vera Miles receives the gentle touch during the blending of makeup prior to shooting a scene for "Gentle Ben."

"INSTRUCTIONS" - Clint Howard and real-life father, Rance Howard, who portrays "Tater Coughlin" in the film "Gentle Giant", listen intently as instructions are given prior to shooting a scene. Filming was done [illegible]

Jack Hartman elected mayor of Stuart

Jack M. Hartman was elected mayor of the City of Stuart at Monday night's reorganization meeting of the City Commission, its newest A. E. Sims.

Hartman, who is beginning his fourth two-year term as a commissioner, also served as mayor in 1966.

Ray Cooke succeeded William F. Todd as vice-mayor. Joe N. Crowder was re-appointed city manager, T. T. Oughterson city attorney, J. Taylor police chief and Edwin Glanstorf assistant city manager.

T. A. Oughterson, local attorney, gave the oath of office to Commissioners Hartman, Todd and Sims, and Municipal Judge Harry Dyer. Don McClure and Cook won re-election in 1965.

CHAIRMAN ACCEPTS--Incoming chairman of the county commission, Timer Powers, who will take office January 1, and outgoing chairman of the commission, Jack Saunderson, accept the symbolic 10,000th telephone to be installed by Southern Bell in Martin County from Bill Burson, local Bell company manager. The ceremony followed the election of Powers as chairman and Saunderson as vice-chairman of the 1968 county commission on Tuesday, in which is becoming an annual rotation in the chair.

Board elects

Timer Powers heads county commission

Timer Powers, who relinquished four years ago on rotation of the chairmanship of the county commission was elected chairman of the board Tuesday as the commission reorganized for the 1968 session. Powers will take office in the first meeting of the new year.

Retiring chairman Jack Saunderson was named vice-chairman of the group.

At the end of the meeting, Powers said, in a prepared statement: "I wish to take just a minute to say that I do appreciate the opportunity to serve as chairman of this board. I am looking forward to working with this board in 1968.

"I am very proud to be a resident of Martin County, and more so, to have the opportunity to serve as a member of this board. I hope that my actions as chairman will be such to make you and all the people of Martin County equally proud.

"There is no doubt in my mind that this is the finest county in the state and we, the residents of Martin County have a great future ahead for working."

Saunderson thanked the board members for their cooperation in the past year and reiterated his interest in another year of service with them.

Bill Burson, local manager for Southern Bell, presented a telephone with a silver plate designating it as the 10,000th telephone installed in the county, to the county commission, for use in its board conference room.

In a short presentation to the commission, Burson said that there were 500 telephones in service in the county in 1947, 3,000 telephones in service in 1957, and on the first day of December, 1967, there were 10,000 telephones in service in the county.

Community Center

New Year's Eve carnival 'The last gasp of 1967'

The Last Gasp of 1967, a New Year's Eve party, is planned by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce to welcome in the New Year and say farewell to the old, according to June Rice, chairman of the event. The party begins Sunday night at 9 p.m. at the Jensen Beach Community Center. It will last "past midnight", Mrs. Rice said.

The party will feature carnival games, including a fortune teller listed as "Madame LaZoogs", and prizes will be awarded the winners. There will be music for dancing, carnival music and refreshments.

The "last gasp" party is the first in what is to be a planned series of events offering recreation to the area's visitors, Mrs. Rice said. She urged all who would like to see more and more activities centering around the Jensen Beach Community Center to assist in the planning and the actual committee work of putting on the party.

"I believe that this is the best way any newcomer, and some of the regular winter visitors, can get to meet each other and become socially acquainted. We might be able to work up a tourist club type of activity for our visitors, with several events each week," said Mrs. Rice.

One of the special features of the carnival aspect will be a photo board, and Polaroid pictures in color will be taken of the persons desiring them. The board depicts the Old Year carrying the New Year, with a hole cut out for the head of whoever desires the photograph.

John Power, Jensen Beach Chamber manager, said, "This is the least expensive and most fun New Year's Eve anyone has ever had. Ours will be a great place to meet old friends and make new ones."

Assisting in the planning for the celebration are: John Power, Ken Snyder, Fadina Price, Ernest Baker, Herb Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lantz, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Degenhardt, Jim Rice, Sheila Lewis, Rita Pullin, Bob Huffman, Bob Clark, Rosalee Accoe.

Also, Laura Atmar, Frank Feraberg, Dot Tomlin, Hazel Heritage, Johnny Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson, Janet Young, Don Wilkie, Deggeller Amusements and Dick Campbell.

LIGHT UP THE SKY- A glorious, colorful and spectacular Christmas tree, constructed of fireworks, lighted the skies in Jensen Beach last Friday night when Christmas-On-The-Causeway was observed. Thousands of spectators crowded the causeway to watch and listen to a musical program presented by local churches. The night was clear and warm, and the voices of the choirs lifted high in the air to be enjoyed by all.

Kickoff January 8

United Fund 1968 drive $11,000

The Jensen Beach-Rio United Fund is organizing for its 1968 fund drive and has set a goal of $11,000, according to Jacqueline Hall, president. The kickoff breakfast will be held January 8 at the Rio Civic Club.

The goal of the drive has been increased from $8,500 due to a commitment of $3,500 to the Pioneer Occupational Center for its crash building fund program, Mrs. Hall said.

"We must meet the needs of our organizations. The new building of the Pioneer Occupational Center is a must, and the money must be raised now. In order to avoid a separate drive in the Jensen Beach-Rio area, we have added the allocation of the area's share of the $40,000 building fund drive to our goal," she added.

Last year the fund drive raised just over the $8,500 goal, which served 14 local agencies in this area. The Martin County Retarded Children's Association has withdrawn from the United Fund this year, feeling that they can gain more money from this area with one drive of their own, of several fund drives on different projects.

Eleven agencies have remained within the organization of the "one-for-all, all-for-one" drive in the Jensen Beach-Rio area. They are The Samaritans Free Association, Jensen-Rio Little Scouts, Jensen-Rio Girl Scouts, Jensen Community Center, American Red Cross, Martin County Animal Rescue League, Martin County Crippled Children, Martin County Mental Health Association, Pioneer Occupational Center, Mars Hill Community Center and the Jensen Beach-Rio Emergency Fund.

Last year, $8,300 was distributed to the participating agencies. In the drive, expenses are kept in a minimum, according to Mrs. Hall. The only charges against the fund are for printing and miscellaneous expenses, such as the kickoff breakfast is donated, and the drive's chief source is a coffee-cruising event, not an expense. Two emergencies last year were handled by the organization, with hospital expenses of $200 being defrayed by the emergency fund upon request by local agencies. The emergency fund is designed to handle local problems not covered by the participating agencies.

A new constitution and bylaws of the United Fund was adopted this year, changing the makeup of the UF organization to allow an executive board to handle the fund drive, rather than one drive chairman. The changes make the president of the organization stronger in that more responsibility for the continuance of the drive is put upon that office.

Also, the responsibilities of the participating agencies are carefully outlined in the by-laws, especially the local solicitation of the agencies beyond the United Fund drive. A clause provides that the organization can hold special events of an item of value.

15 mph entry

New Savanna Road opens

Savanna Road, south of Legion Heights, was opened to the public last week, and residents of Legion Heights have already begun complaining to the sheriff's department about speeding through the subdivision.

Deputy Jim Mills pointed to the lack of speed limit posting as the reason for the driver uncertainty in speed limits. "They drive up to the sixty miles per hour on the road, and suddenly they are in a fifteen mile zone," Mills said as mile zone," Mills said as he asked County Commissioner Frank Wacha to set a speed limit on the road.

The fifteen mph zone is through Legion Heights, where there are many children living. "The children have been playing on the street for many years, and it was a dead end street. Now, suddenly, it is a through street and the kids are not yet used to the cars driving faster," Wacha said. He agreed to ask the State Road Department to set the speed limits. He would not say if it would be 35 or 40 mph on the undeveloped stretch of road.

The $129,000 project, which started shortly after the bid was accepted from Dickerson, Inc., by the State Road Board in late March, was delayed two months when part of the work had to be re-done. State specifications had called for a lime rock sub-base, which proved impractical as the rock sank. The base had to be replaced by marble.

The link is 1.5 miles and is a continuation of South Savanna Road, Jensen Beach, at SR 707-A, just west of town. It connects to Rio at the SR 707 grade crossing over the Florida East Coast railroad tracks.

A Haid Full Of Sporting Tips by Howard Lee Haid

The Christmas gun

The Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission kindly supplied me with a timely release which I passed on to the readers of this column.

Santa Claus has a supply of Florida hunting regulations and gun safety rules for the holiday season. On Dec. 25, many youngsters will experience the ultimate in Christmas joy when they find a long-awaited gun under the tree.

Private ownership of guns is the historical birthright of all Americans, and the first gun can represent a memorable occasion for a man. This birthright, however, carries a certain amount of responsibility, and anyone old enough to own a gun is old enough to use it safely and in a manner prescribed by law.

According to O. E. Frye, Commission Director, very few parents are familiar with Florida Statute 790.22 which provides that the use of BB guns, air rifles, and 22-caliber rifles by any child under the age of 16 years is prohibited unless such use is under the supervision and in the presence of an adult.

Frye said, "When Santa puts a gun he should also leave a copy of hunting regulations so that the young hunter might become familiar with the laws that are designed to conserve and stress use Florida's wildlife resources. A copy of the regulations may be obtained by contacting the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission at Tallahassee, Panama City, DeFuniak Springs, Lake City, Lakeland, Ocala Eustis, Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach or Miami."

He added, "It is a great temptation for a youngster to plink away at the first bird on a limb; however, most birds are protected by both state and Federal law and the young hunter should learn to identify protected birds, game birds and unprotected species."

If the Christmas gun is a first gun, parents should make every effort to see that the owner is properly instructed in the safe use and handling to assure many years of hunting pleasure. Santa may want to clip or copy the following safety rules and attach them to the stock of the Christmas gun.

Ten Commandments of Fireman Safet): 1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. 2. Watch that muzzle, carry your gun safely. 3. Unload guns when not in use. 4. Be sure barrel is clear of obstruction. 5. Be sure of 'target' before you pull trigger. 6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot. 7. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun. 8. Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water. 9. Store guns and ammunition separately. 10. Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during shooting.

NEWLYWEDS- Mr. and Mrs. Morris James Burnett, above, were married Saturday, Dec. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at Community Methodist Church, Ft. Pierce. The bride is the former Mrs. Elizabeth Johns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jennings, St. Petersburg. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Burnett, Jensen Beach, who hosted a reception at their home following the ceremony. The couple will reside at 3609 S. Indian River Dr., Ft. Pierce.

Mr. and Mrs. George Westling and two daughters of Libertyville, Ill., are visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Westling, Marguerite Court, Jensen Beach.

The elder Westling is a retired Chicago Tribune editor, George Westling is now an editor on the same newspaper.

Hopkins voted 'most valuable'

MC Tigers rack up 7 straight wins

Seven straight wins have been racked up by the Martin County High School Tigers, with a 61-56 victory over Jupiter last week.

In the Christmas Invitational Tournament, played in Jupiter, the Tigers were led by all-tourney choice, Robert Matheny, who totaled 17 points. The Warriors were led by Kee Harmon, center, with 18 points.

The Tigers' Gene McHardy came up with 13 points, followed by Charles Greenlees and Mark Hopkins with 12 each. Martin County led in the scoring column throughout the game, jumping to a quick 6-" lead in opening play.

In the opening game of the tourney, the Tigers smothered Riverwood Golf with Mark Hopkins, guard, hitting for 27 points. The Tigers were hot with 44 out of 70 free throws for a .700 per cent.

Mark Hopkins was named the 'Most Valuable' player in last week's Christmas Invitational Tournament, and Charles Greenlees received the 'Outstanding Defensive Player' award for the two evenings play.

The All-Tournament team named by a panel of sports-writers included Hopkins and Robert Matheny, of the Martin County Tigers; Kee Harmon and Wayne Corsoe, Jupiter; Bernard Parrish of North Shore, and Bill Franklin, Frostproof.

Campbell to speak on economic survey

Details of a new economic survey, recently completed in Martin County, will be revealed by Richard E. Campbell, editor-publisher of The Mirror, at a luncheon meeting in Stuart on Thursday, Dec. 28.

Campbell will be guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Retail Merchants Association of Stuart. Buying habits of local customers will be discussed and business owners are urged by H. O. Frank, president, to attend this meeting.

"These are up-to-date facts, some of them startling, that we should all be concerned with - the type of information that can help us with future plans, as individuals and as an organization," Frank said.

Violations are cited

The Martin County Fair Association will be asked to correct zoning violations that exist at the fairgrounds, on motion by the County Commission on Friday. A 60-day period is being given. County Attorney Dean Tooker charged the association had violated the lease agreement with the county, with repeated zoning violations including junk on the grounds and people living in trailers. He suggested revoking the present lease.

Tooker said the present lease was for use of the land for agriculture and fair purposes.

In other business, the commission:

APPROVED advertising for public hearings on zoning changes as approved by the Martin County Planning and Zoning Board, including areas on SR-76, SR-707, and Port Salerno.

VOTED to allow two Stuart consulting engineering firms to sign necessary papers approving subdivision roads, as county engineers. They are Greenlees, Arbogast & Montgomery, and Stafford & Brock. Commissioners Wachs, Hussey and Timer Powers will work with the firms.

Medicaid fails fireworks bid

What had been billed as a political possibility for fireworks in the county commission failed to materialize Tuesday as a resolution favoring a "Medicaid" bill passed the county commission unanimously. The proponent of the bill, Commissioner Frank Wachs, moved for passage, and his debating opponent of two weeks ago, Bill Hussey, seconded the motion.

Two weeks ago, Wachs asked the commission to investigate the bill as vetoed by Governor Claude Kirk, pointing that if the county was to receive relief from ad valorum taxes, the Medicaid bill would have done it. He added that the bill had passed the Senate without dissention, but a Republican minority had upheld the veto. His resolution was to ask that the legislature override any future veto of Kirk of the bill.

This brought Hussey into the debate as he pointed to the no new tax pledge of Kirk. The two were finally quieted in a gavel-rapping by Commission Chairman Jack Saunderson.

Commissioner Herb Bruner brought the item on the floor Tuesday, and in an obvious temperment of conciliation, the commissioners agreed to write the members of our legislative delegation to request them to vote favorably on the Medicaid bill or to present a new bill to the legislature that would be approved so that the county could get relief from indigent medical bills.

Dismiss request

Martin County has asked the Circuit Court to dismiss a suit against it, filed by William H. Melvin. He has protested the increase in valuation set by the County Commission, acting as the Board of Equalization, of his lands on North Jupiter Island. One plot was raised from $18,900 to $46,100; another from $66,500 to $366,650.

The court lacks jurisdiction, according to County Attorney Dean Tooker, who filed the county's answer in the initial suit, filed Dec. 11.

SANTA AND FRIENDS- Santa Claus and Mrs. Claus entertained last week at a Christmas party held for residents of Riverside Village, Jensen Beach. Some of the merry-makers are shown above.

Bay Drive has Yule lighting

Christmas decorations in the way of colored lights have received much attention in our park this year. For the past several years, the North Sixth area has demonstrated what combined effort can do in the way of making a spectacular display. This year, the residents on Cypress Drive went all out to have many strings of colored lights so that the whole street after dark became a fairyland of color, matching the combined effort of the North Sixth residents.

Not to be outdone, Christmas Eve saw a transformation take place on Bay Drive; 196 candles, each in a paper bag, lined both sides of the drive. News of this display spread quickly and soon groups of people arrived to view the display).

Dale Butler tells us that Mrs. Ethel McCurry originated the idea and her husband Otto, Harry Moore and other residents carried out the plan.

Mrs. Sarah Hoadley received word Friday, Dec. 22, of the death of her twin brother, Lawrence, of Syracuse, N.Y.

As it happened, the Masons did get too close to the tornado for comfort. She added that they plan to be down sometime in January and send their best wishes to their park friends.
